FRIENDS DEFEND ROSENWALD FOR OFFER TO SMITH

Confirm Story; Tell His Motive.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Close friends of Julius Rosenwald who have his confidence corroborate Frank L. Smith's statement that Mr. Rosenwald offered him $550,000 worth of Sears, Roebuck & Co. stock to withdraw from the United States senatorship race of 1926.

These men said yesterday they were unwilling to be quoted at this time because Mr. Rosenwald's illness not only prevents him from speaking for himself but also forbids their going to him and obtaining his consent to speak in his behalf. They said emphatically that if Mr. Rosenwald were a well man he would tell of the offer and justify it publicly.

Considered It Reimbursement.

According to these authentic sources, Mr. Rosenwald attempted only what he thought would be the best thing for Illinois—to save it from the shame of witnessing the rejection of a man it had elected to the senate—and for that reason he offered Smith what he considered reimbursement for the costs of the expensive primary battle he had been through and the heavy obligations already incurred for the election campaign then well advanced.

They pointed out that this attitude of Mr. Rosenwald was reflected in Prof. Carroll D. Wooddy's book, "The Case of Frank L. Smith," the distribution of which by Mr. Rosenwald irritated Mr. Smith into addressing an open letter to the author asking why he had not told of the offer.

"Another effort was made to induce Smith to withdraw," wrote Prof. Wooddy. "The initiative in this case was taken by Mr. Rosenwald. . . . Mr. Rosenwald arranged an interview with him and urged strongly that Smith abandon his candidacy on terms which would fully safeguard him from loss incurred by the effort and expense already invested in the campaign."

Believed Known to Wooddy.

It is believed that Prof. Wooddy was told the complete story of that interview, including the offer of Sears-Roebuck stock; but he has declined to state how complete is his information. Like others who shared Mr. Rosenwald's confidence in this matter, he is said to feel he is silenced by Mr. Rosenwald's own silence due to illness.

Those who have discussed privately Mr. Rosenwald's part in the 1926 campaign include in their analysis of what occurred an outline of the election duties of that year.

The state primaries were held on April 13. Smith won the Republican nomination from William McKinley. On the Democratic side George E. Brennan, now dead, won easily. By July the Reed committee investigation of the contributions of Samuel Insull and other public utility owners to Illinois candidates was well under way and all the main facts were known before the end of August.

Rosenwald Visits Coolidge.

During this period Mr. Rosenwald visited the summer White House. When he returned he said he had been told by "one very high in authority" that the senate would not seat Smith if he were elected. It was believed he implied that President Coolidge had expressed this opinion to him.

In the meantime a search had been begun for a third candidate. It was started and carried on by a group dissatisfied with both Smith and Brennan. Mr. Rosenwald was not identified with this movement and when the group brought out Hugh S. Magill as an independent Mr. Rosenwald had not even met him.

Magill's candidacy was announced on Sept. 27. As had been done in so many campaigns, financial aid was sought from Mr. Rosenwald. He agreed to contribute up to $5,000 but he had little confidence that Magill could win unless Smith was out of the way.

Outlined His Position.

His friends who speak in his behalf privately now point out that Mr. Rosenwald stated under oath before the Reed committee on Oct. 20, exactly what his position was in reference to both Magill and Smith.

Mr. Rosenwald's testimony on that day included the following while he was under examination by Chairman Reed:

Q.—Tell your connection with this matter.

A.—My interest started right after the revelations here before your committee. It seemed to me that after these confessions had been made a

Texas Shuts Off Oil Flow to Boost Price

Kilgore, Tex., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Higher prices for midcontinent crude and possible stabilization of the American petroleum industry were predicted by oil executives tonight as the great east Texas Texas producing area, placed under martial law by Gov. Ross S. Sterling, ceased to gush its flood of oil.

ROSS S. STERLING.

Nearly a thousand Texas National Guardsmen were on duty in four east Texas counties to enforce Gov. Sterling's order for a complete shutdown of the 1,600 producing oil and gas wells in the area.

No resistance had been met. The larger oil companies closed their wells before the soldiers arrived today to carry out the martial law proclamation issued at 6 a. m.

Hope of Stabilization.

Leaders of the industry, with few exceptions, hailed Sterling's action. They expressed the view that, with flush fields of Oklahoma already shut down by Gov. W. H. Murray's martial law edict and curtailment measures impending in Kansas, midcontinent crude prices would climb and there was real hope of stabilization.

E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum institute and head of the Barnsdall corporation, said at Tulsa:

"The action of Govs. Murray and Sterling will prevent physical destruction of property and will enable the authorities of the states to put into effect proper and orderly proration."

Gov. Sterling, himself an oil man, predicted higher crude prices and estimated the Texas and Oklahoma shutdowns would take about one million barrels a day off the market. He said martial law in east Texas will not be lifted until the state railroad commission has issued proration orders.

Oil Prices Increase.

Frank Prior, president of the Stanolind Oil and Gas company, Standard of Indiana subsidiary, said the Texas shutdown undoubtedly would serve to stabilize the industry.

The Sinclair Oil and Gas company today posted a price of 25 cents a barrel for east Texas crude, meeting the advance announced last week by the Magnolia Petroleum company. Crude prices in Pennsylvania also were increased today, partly in response to the midcontinent shutdown.

ESCAPED BANDIT, IN POLICE TRAP, GIVES SELF UP

Mike Romano, one of the three desperate prisoners who overpowered the lockup keeper in the Shakespeare avenue police station Sunday and escaped, was captured early this morning at the home of a woman friend at 2119 West Ohio street. Lieut. John L. Sullivan had received a telephone message telling him where Romano might be found. Taking three squads armed with shotguns and tear bombs, he went to the place.

The police called upon Romano to surrender, but the confessed robber refused for more than an hour to come out, expressing the fear, as he parleyed with the police through a closed door, that he would be shot down. Finally, however, on Lieut. Sullivan's assurance that he would not be shot, he came out with his hands in the air.

Romano told Lieut. Sullivan that after he and Robert Kearney, reputed member of the Purple gang at Detroit, and William Dardowski had escaped from the police station they went to a house on State street, the address of which he did not know. Then he went to the Dearborn Plaza hotel, 1030 North Dearborn street, where he took a room. He said he sold the gun taken from Gabriel Zaccone, the lockup keeper, to Robert Gault, living at the hotel. He accompanied Lieut. Sullivan to the hotel, where Gault, Jack Neahas, a Michigan City roadhouse keeper, and Neahas' manager, Bruno Filon, were arrested. Romano and Kearney have been identified in more than forty holdups.

6 Doctors May Lose Licenses in Cancer Quiz

Six Chicago physicians were defendants in a hearing yesterday before the medical committee of the state department of registration and education. They faced charges which may lose them their medical licenses because of their alleged association with Lester Tilton, so-called cancer healer of Clinton, Ia., who conducted a clinic at the Felician convent, 2800 Peterson road, until it was closed last May.

Never before have so many physicians been figuratively placed on trial at one time. Testimony yesterday at a hearing which extended from 9 a. m. until late hours of the night exposed methods in use at the Tilton clinic which made members of the committee, headed by Dr. M. L. Harris, former president of the American Medical association, gasp in astonishment.

First Case Completed.

The first day's hearing completed the state's case against Dr. Otto Holinger, 4632 North Rockwell street, a physician practicing in Chicago since 1902, and in good standing of the American Medical, Chicago Medical, and Illinois Medical societies. The next hearing will be Thursday.

The other physician defendants are: Dr. C. Judson Spruce, 321 North Central avenue; Dr. Charles Loffler, 25 East Washington street; Dr. Joseph T. Duffy, 5755 North Clark street; Dr. Ethel Fikany; and Dr. Alfred C. Thompson.

The seriousness of the charges was revealed at the opening of the hearing, when it was announced that Walter Mannon, one of the witnesses, had died of cancer since the case had been built by J. E. Edwards, chief of the state department, and Mrs. Hilda Bittner, another witness, was dying of the same malady.

Convent Sisters Quizzed.

Sisters Wenceslaus and Modesta of the Felician convent, who assisted Tilton in his administration of ointment and liquids to cancer victims, were subjected to long examinations by members of the committee. They told of treating hundreds of patients who applied for aid and of accepting fees which ranged from $100 to $500. Cardinal Mundelein ordered them to close the clinic last February, they testified.

Nurse Anna Krawczyk, another ministrant of the Tilton ointments, described the method of treatment.

"Did you ever see a cancer cured there?" Dr. Harris asked the nurse.

"No," she replied. Tilton's boast has been that he cured 3,200 cancer cases in his 25 years of practice.

The nurse said she often heard Tilton guarantee a cure, unconditionally.

Committee Given Shudders.

The story of Stanley Balcewski, 2866 West 22d place, gave the committee some shudders.

"I took my mother, Agnes, to the clinic last Feb. 26," he said. "We heard there was a cancer cure there. The Sisters said she could be cured easily. They gave her some medicine. Outside on the street corner my mother dropped on the street and went into convulsions. Every day we went there the same thing happened. She would take the medicine and then become awfully sick."

After three weeks and the collection of $400, all the money the mother had, Tilton told her she was cured, the son said. Mrs. Balcewski is now dying of cancer, other testimony revealed.

Dr. Holinger attended the clinic many times and assisted in the examination of patients, a number of witnesses testified. The physician, acting as his own counsel, made a lengthy statement in which he defended the virtues of the ointment.

Tells of Wife's Treatment.

John Lenard, 4440 South Whipple street, testified that his wife, Rose, was treated for cancer at the clinic in September, 1930. She was guaranteed a cure for $100 which she paid. She died last February.

Fred F. Bittner, 2322 Manitou place, whose wife, Hilda, was said to be dying, declared that Dr. Holinger guaranteed to cure her cancer. The Tilton treatment caused his wife to have severe hemorrhages, he declared.

Another witness told of experiments conducted upon guinea pigs with the Tilton salves and liquids. Healthy animals developed large ulcers and cancerous growths when given the ointments and medicines, according to testimony. The ointment was shown to be a salve containing powerful corrosive salts and the liquid medicine was a peat distillate.

Assistant Attorney General Philip Ringer, prosecuting the cases, said that the six physicians are accused on several counts, including obtaining a fee by guaranteeing a cure; making false claims of the efficacy of a medicine; association in practice with another who is not a physician.

Father of Four Strangles Eating Piece of Cake

Bruno Nardi, 1218 Argo street, Chicago Heights, died last night from strangulation when eating cake, Nardi was a widower and the father of two boys and two girls ranging from 3 to 13 years.

RECEIVER BARES BORROWINGS OF BANKER FAMILY

Says Most of Notes Were Unsecured.

Irwin T. Gilruth, receiver for the twelve Bain banks, issued a formal statement yesterday declaring that John Bain, head of the bank chain; his two sons, John H. and Robert A. Bain, and three affiliated Bain companies now owe the banks in excess of $2,000,000.

Practically the entire sum, Mr. Gilruth asserted, had been borrowed on unsecured notes, excepting only a small part, which was borrowed on notes secured by collateral of no present value, such as stock in the Lewa company, a Bain bank holding company.

Moreover, Mr. Gilruth declared that $500,000 of the total was borrowed by the Bain interests within sixty days prior to the closing of the banks on June 9. Of that half million, the receiver asserted, the Bains borrowed $90,000 in the final eight days before the banks were closed, putting their loans for that period at about $11,000 daily.

Unable to Collect.

Mr. Gilruth declared that he had called upon Mr. Bain to pay the amounts he owed on demand notes, and that the banker had failed to respond. The receiver gave it as his opinion that depositors of the chain, estimated to number 120,000 could not depend upon any of the $2,000,000 Bain loans for payment for their claims.

This opinion was confirmed by close associates of Mr. Bain, who asserted that the banker, in a heroic effort to save the institution prior to their crash, had pledged all his personal holdings even to the extent of borrowing on his insurance policies. Mr. Bain, they said, is practically without funds at this time.

Mr. Bain, a Scotch immigrant, who rose from a job as plumber's apprentice to dictatorship of a banking chain with listed assets of $21,000,000, was reached last night at his Beverly Hills home. The banker declined to discuss the receiver's statement, referring all inquiries to his personal attorney, Charles S. Deneen, former United States senator.

Deneen Speaks for Bain.

Mr. Deneen spoke for Mr. Bain in his present troubles. He is personally interested in the Bain financial enterprises. The ex-senator said he was a large stockholder in the Lewa company and the owner of 200 shares of stock in six Bain banks, while his lawyer partner, Roy Massena, he said, owned stock in eleven Bain banks.

"I doubt that the situation is as bad as Mr. Gilruth describes it," said Mr. Deneen. "I have been away for some time and am not acquainted with recent developments in the Bain banks. I have been informed, however, by Mr. Bain's banking associate, Charles Meacham, that there were no such large loans as Mr. Gilruth mentioned, within the sixty days before the banks closed, and I believe Mr. Meacham will confirm me."

Mr. Meacham, who was assistant to the president and chairman of the executive committee of the Bain banks until they closed, supplied the confirmation. To his knowledge, Mr. Meacham averred, the banks made no new loans whatever to the Bain family or affiliate companies within the sixty day period.

Refuses to Make Distinction.

Mr. Gilruth, he surmised, must have had reference to old loans, which were renewed. The receiver, when confronted with this statement, granted that it might be correct, adding that he failed to discern any distinction from the depositor's standpoint.

"Whether the loans were new or renewed makes little difference, with reference to the condition of the banks," he said. "In either case they were extensions of credit."

While cognizant of the gravity of his disclosures, Mr. Gilruth said he felt impelled, in the performance of his duty to the Bain bank depositors to issue a statement of the true condition of the banks. His only purpose, he said, was to prevent the depositors from "indulging in hope of any speedy or complete recovery of their deposits."

On July 14, it was recalled, the South Town Economist, a bi-weekly neighborhood newspaper, published an article quoting Mr. Bain in a statement that all his banks were solvent and would pay 100 cents on the depositor's dollar. So strong was the faith this statement inspired, that merchants and tradesmen in the Bain bank neighborhoods began accepting Bain bank checks at face value.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson learned of the situation. He summoned Mr. Bain to his office and there, in the presence of Mr. Gilruth and Attorney Massena, demanded that he retract the statement in the newspaper.

With tears in his eyes, the 63 year old banker is said to have argued his theories of bank management and defended his confidence in his banks, asserting that when they closed there was $21,000,000 of assets to meet the deposit liabilities of $14,500,000.

In contravention of this view, Mr. Gilruth included in his statement a declaration that upon his appointment as receiver he found cash of slightly more than $392,000 to meet the deposit liabilities. Other resources, he said, consisted of the $2,000,000 Bain debts; another $2,000,000 in bank buildings and furnishings inadaptable to other uses; and slightly more than $7,000,000 in real estate loans.

The remainder of the assets, carried on the books at slightly above $10,000,000 in value, included real estate holdings and real estate bonds, many of which were in default, the receiver asserted.

Finds Assets Frozen.

"In short," the receiver summed up, "the fact is that with the exception of the cash item and a relatively small amount of the remaining assets, the resources of the banks are tightly frozen and will require careful and patient handling if anything like their book value is to be realized."

The receiver declared it would be his policy to state the position of the banks plainly to the depositors from time to time, adding that for the present he found it impossible to predict what percentage of the assets the depositors would realize upon.

"The receiver intends to pursue the policy of stating the facts plainly to depositors from time to time, so far as he can consistently do so with regard to his duty to liquidate the assets of the banks to the best possible advantage and in the most economical manner," the statement declared.

Statement Covers Bank Chain.

"While it is true that each bank will be liquidated as an independent unit and some of the banks may be in better position than others, the similarity of conditions makes this statement applicable to each situation."

Mr. Gilruth listed the Bain debts of more than $2,000,000 as follows:

John Bain	$ 696,544.37
John Bain, Inc.	903,574.46
John Bain R. E. Impt. Co.	47,500.00
The Lews company	257,600.00
John H. Bain	43,645.67
Robert A. Bain	24,992.26
Total	$2,046,356.76

In support of his opinion that none of the $2,000,000 is collectible, Mr. Gilruth cited the condition of the Bain companies as follows:

"John Bain, Inc., is in receivership because of alleged mismanagement. Chief among its assets are nineteen properties, carried on the books at $6,060,000, and with $4,015,000 in bonds outstanding against them, leaving an equity, according to the books, of $2,045,000. A competent appraiser has advised the receiver that the present value of the properties, instead of being $6,060,000, is only $3,580,000, or a little more than one-half the amount of bonds outstanding on them.

"The Lews company is the record owner of nearly 25 per cent of the stock of the twelve closed banks. The receiver is not advised with respect to its other assets or liabilities, but believes it is apparent that the company cannot pay what it owes the banks and also respond to stockholders' liability, if, as a matter of fact, it can do either."

Probe May Be Ordered.

Grand jury investigation of the Bain bank management is possible, it was learned. State's Attorney Swanson, learning of Mr. Gilruth's statement, declared that if the facts were established as alleged, he would order an investigation by his assistant, Henry Ayes, the prosecutor in charge of the state's attorney's bank bureau.

The fact that Mr. Bain was fifteen years a member of the south park board and south side political leader of the Deneen-Swanson forces in the Republican party would in no way impede the investigation, Mr. Swanson was quoted as saying.

The original Bain bank—the West Englewood Trust and Savings at 1624 West 63d street, was founded in 1906. Mr. Bain, previously the proprietor of a small real estate office in the neighborhood, incorporated the bank in partnership with Edward C. Barry, William Blumer, E. L. Schweder, and Michael Maisel.

Builds Up Bank Chain.

By launching banks in the then sparsely settled neighborhoods and, in some cases, by acquiring banks that had failed, Mr. Bain built up the chain.

On last April 12 Mr. Bain, observing his twenty-fifth anniversary as a banker, was tendered a banquet attended by 400 employés and associates at the Shoreland hotel. Referring on that occasion to the business depression, Mr. Bain reaffirmed his confidence in the soundness of the institutions bearing his name.

On the day the banks closed John H. Bain, echoing his father's sentiments, pledged that the Bain banks would pay off 100 per cent.

"This is just an outgrowth of the Foreman-State situation and the general uncertainty which was aroused by that development," he said. "We will pay out 100 cents on the dollar and there will be a substantial equity for the stockholders."

Twelve Banks Involved.

The list of Bain banks is as follows: Armitage State, 3400 Armitage avenue; Auburn Park Trust & Savings, 734 West 79th street; Brainerd State, 8640 South Ashland avenue; Bryn Mawr state, 2130 East 71st street; Chatham State, 7850 Cottage Grove avenue; Chicago Lawn State, 3150 West 63d street; Elston State, 4332 Elston avenue; Ridge State, 7048 South Western avenue; Stony Island State Savings, 82d and Stony Island avenue; West Englewood Trust and Savings, 1624 West 63d street; West Highland State, 7900 South Ashland avenue, and West Lawn Trust and Savings, 63d street and Crawford avenue.

TRUCK MILLIONS THROUGH CROWDS TO SAVE BANKS

Toledo Depositors Paid as Guns Hold Back Rush.

Toledo, O., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Giant trucks, bearing men heavily armed with rifles and tear gas bombs, today trundled into the downtown district of Toledo carrying eleven million dollars in cash.

The money had been sent to the Toledo Trust and the First National bank, which, had opened before their usual hours to pay off depositors who were worried over the closing of five other banks within 48 hours.

Stay Open to Pay Depositors.

The banks remained open after closing hours, still paying out all depositors who sought their money. The lines of depositors began to dwindle when it was seen that the banks, with the aid of the federal reserve bank, the Cleveland and Detroit bankers, were ready to meet all demands.

It is estimated that 150,000 of Toledo's 290,000 residents had savings or checking accounts tied up in the five closed banks which officials insist are solvent. The banks are the Commerce Guardian Trust and Savings bank, the Ohio Savings Bank and Trust company, the Commercial Savings Bank and Trust company, the American bank, and the Point Place State bank.

The five have combined resources of $100,000,000 and deposits of around $80,000,000. Their closing came at the expiration of the 60 day withdrawal notice which they posted when the Security-Home Trust company closed two months ago.

Reserve Funds Are Tied Up.

The closing notices were accompanied by an announcement that the action was taken to protect depositors. Officials of the American bank said it could have met normal conditions, but its reserves were tied up with two of the closed banks.

The Spitzerrorick Trust and Savings bank and the West Toledo National remained open as usual, as did the Morris Plan and Industrial banks.

Immense crowds filled downtown streets in front of the closed banks and their branches. As the gold bearing trucks drove up to the curb before the banks remaining open the depositors and the crowd of curious were hustled back as guards presented firearms and tear gas weapons.

Hundreds Jam Lobbies.

While hundreds jammed in the lobbies of the two open banks, officials went through ti > crowd and directed porters to hand ice water to women suffering from the heat. Elderly women were escorted to chairs and clerks assigned to their places in the line. Extra electric fans were placed at vantage points and other efforts made to assist those who had stood in line for hours to reach the tellers' cages.

Business leaders and officials took steps to make funds available immediately to small depositors. The county commissioners asked courts to suspend foreclosure proceedings for a year providing interest on mortgage loans is met, and the county treasurer appealed to the state tax commission to extend the tax paying period.

6 Nebraska Banks Close.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Six Nebraska state banks today failed to open their doors. Gov. Charles W. Bryan and E. H. Lulkart, secretary of the state department of trade and commerce, said the closings were the result of recent bank suspensions in Omaha. The six banks had deposits of $1,120,000.

STATE RESERVE BANK ASKED TO AID DEPOSITORY

Formation of an Illinois Reserve bank, patterned on the federal reserve system, was proposed last night at a meeting of fifty representatives of depositors' committees of closed banks, held in the offices of the Cook County Real Estate board, 100 North La Salle street.

The proposal was drafted in the form of a resolution calling upon Gov. Emmerson to summon a special session of the legislature for the purpose of incorporating the bank and providing its capital by a state bond issue. With this capitalization, it was proposed that the bank would purchase the assets of closed banks under repurchase agreement with individual receivers, so that substantial percentages of the deposits might immediately be returned to the people.

The proposal received a setback when Attorney Maurice Waller, representing depositors of the Stony Island Trust and Savings bank, pointed out that incorporation of the bank would require an amendment of the state banking act, permissible only after a referendum, which would not be called for two years.

Railway Sues Truckman for Stalling on Track

An unusual suit was filed yesterday in the Lake county, Indiana, Circuit court by the Monon railroad against Henry Downey, a Hammond contractor. The road asks $50,000 damages because a truck owned by Downey became stalled on a crossing at St. Johns, Ind., on May 25, 1928, derailed a locomotive which struck it, a baggage car, and several passenger coaches.

License Issued

A license was issued yesterday to Edward F. Cleary, a banker, 31 years old, of New York City, to wed Miss Julia F. Compton, 26 years old, of 221 South St. Louis avenue, a dancer. The couple plan to be married on Thursday at Our Lady of Sorrows church, 3121 Jackson boulevard. Miss Compton is a member of the Pavley-Oukrainsky dancers employed by the Chicago Civic opera.

ASKS GRAND JURY PROBE OF CLOSED WAUKEGAN BANK

State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Waukegan announced yesterday he would go before Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady tomorrow with a petition asking an investigation by the Lake county grand jury of the operation of the Waukegan State bank, which was closed on June 17.

Mr. Smith asserted he had evidence that officers of the bank accepted deposits and sold bank stocks while aware that the institution was insolvent. Bank examiners, investigating resources after the closing, found only a fraction of the $1,224,000 cash the bank should have had on hand, he said.

IDENTIFY SLAIN CHICAGOAN AS A BANK ROBBER

Found Murdered on Road in Minnesota.

The body of a man about 45 years old, found bullet riddled on a lonely road near Red Wing, Minn., early yesterday, was identified last night as that of Harry Morris, alias Slim Moran and a half dozen other names, a bank robber for whose capture and conviction a reward had been offered.

It was identified also through circumstantial evidence as that of John A. Camden, a Calumet City bootlegger. The police believe that Camden was only one of the false names that Morris gave in his checkered career as a racketeer, safe blower, and robber.

Records of the bureau of identification show that Morris participated in the robbery of the Emmet County State bank of Estherville, Ia., on Aug. 30, 1929, and that he was indicted for this offense. They show also that he was arrested in Chicago in 1927 for carrying a pistol. At that time he declared he was a gambler.

Glasses Give a Clew.

The first clew to the identity of the slain man came through the tracing of the ownership of a pair of spectacles and their case. The case bore the name of Dr. R. S. Churchill, an optometrist at 2138 East 71st street. Dr. Churchill found that he had given glasses like those found with the body to a John A. Camden of 8100 Essex avenue—an address which Camden had left a year ago.

The tying up of Camden with the bootlegging racket in the southern suburbs came through another police record. On June 27 a John A. Camden reported to the South Chicago police that three men had tried to rob him at 95th street and Torrence avenue, that he had escaped my leaping from his car, but that the robbers had kidnaped his wife.

Woman Tells About Holdup.

Camden did not get in touch with the police again. The woman did. Released by her captors, she informed the South Chicago station that at the time of the attempted holdup Camden was carrying $30,000. She added that although he pretended to be a resident of California he was actually a prosperous bootlegger.

The automobile was recovered some time later. It was not claimed. Camden, believed to be Morris as well, had disappeared.

In Minnesota the authorities were unable to find any trace of the killer or killers. They are of the opinion Morris was killed during a quarrel over the disposition of loot in some recent crimes. There were signs of a desperate struggle where the body was found. Two pistols were nearby and the print of a woman's slipper was discovered in the roadside mud.

CAUGHT BY FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Japhet Simeon, colored, 44 years old, broke into the home of Mrs. M. M. Gordon, 1612 Prairie avenue, early yesterday, but was captured by eighteen football players who room in the Gordon house. He was held to the grand jury in bonds of $5,000.

REVOLT IN CUBA FLOPS AS REBELS LAY DOWN ARMS

Machado Insists Uprising Is Wiped Out.

BY DEAN SANBORN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Aug. 17.—Except for an inevitable last minute effort, Cuba's rebellion is a most outstanding and complete flop. It lasted only eight days.

COL. HERBERT PELAEZ.

Commander of the revolutionary movement the federal government troops captured when President Mario J. Menocal and Col. Carlos Mendieta last Friday.

President Machado, who is in the city of Santa Clara, tonight announced that the revolt is over, that the rebels are surrendering everywhere, and that peace throughout the island is assured within the next few days.

According to observers, the bottom dropped out

Make Final Gesture.

The next day insurgents in a desperate effort, raided and burned several towns in Santa Clara province, before capturing three towns and ransacking government buildings, apparently to cause the impression that the rebellion would attain success despite the loss of its leaders.

The last 24 hours have been filled with conjectures as to whether the people would join the ranks of the rebels "in compensate" for the banishment of Menocal and Mendieta, or support the government.

Except for a few of the fugitive rebel chieftains, others considered that further attempts to overthrow Machado would be futile, and only cause further bloodshed, and thus today the revolt has practically ended. Hundreds of rebels surrendered throughout the island, particularly in Santa Clara province, and laid down their arms to take advantage of the president's amnesty offer.

Latest bulletins from army headquarters report minor clashes today in Remedios, Corralillo, and other towns in Santa Clara, the rebels "routing defeat everywhere, with many members surrendering to the government every hour."

Fly Over Rebel Stronghold.

Machado's crack pilots, Martuli, Diaz and Herrera, flew over the rebel headquarters in the hills of Santa Clara this morning, dropping messages and leaflets announcing the crushing of the rebellion as well as the imprisonment of Menocal and Mendieta.

The leaflets urged all to surrender immediately, announcing that President Machado would extend the terms of his amnesty offer another twenty-four hours. It was made clear that none of the rebellion who are still at large will be prosecuted. The present outstanding leaders are Col. Mendieta and Col. Aurelio Hevia.

Efforts by the government to persuade Pelaez and Hevia to surrender have proved futile, as their whereabouts is unknown. It is insistently stated that they are heading two separate groups of 600 men each in Santa Clara.

Rebel Leader Stricken.

Six hundred fresh troops left Havana for Santa Clara at 7 o'clock tonight. Two trains, with eighty prisoners each, arrived here tonight. The prisoners were taken to Cabanas fortress. Col. Mendieta has become ill and unable to act as a result of his flight with government troops before his capture and special permission has been granted Dr. Luis Ortega, famous Havana specialist, to attend him in his cell.

All radio stations tonight were ordered to stop broadcasting all propaganda. No reasons were given. Strict censorship of news reports was also ordered today. Army officers inspected the prisoners for the day.

Rebels Lauud Machado Stays.

SANTA CLARA, Cuba, Aug. 17.—Ex-President Machado of Cuba today abandoned plans for returning to Havana when indications in this province, the hotbed of the revolution, pointed to the possibility of an immediate conflict between insurgents and loyalists.

The presidential train maintained a full head of steam on the siding here, but the arrival of Senate President Clemente Vasquez Bello, like the president a native of Santa Clara, put strength to the apparently authentic information that the president's return would be postponed.

Several brushes between infantry and insurgents occurred over the country today. All roads are carefully watched.

Clean Revolt Unpopular.

A statement issued by the military aid to Machado said the "pacification of the country has been complete and highly satisfactory on account of the efficiency of the army, navy, and guards of the government, working in unison."

"The attitude of all classes as well as the unarmed people of the island toward this revolution, and this province was the big factor in its complete," the statement said.

The president declared the entire nation to be "indifferent to the revolutionary movement" despite reports that the New Revolutionary junta intended to continue direction of the rebellion following the capture of Menocal and Mendieta.

GIRL, 20, HOSPITAL.

Despondent because of an insistence on writing romantic notes to Miss Margaret Garrity, 20 years old, 1220 Sherman street, his teacher in a night school class at Carl Schurz High school, John Parks, 24 years old, 3010 Lake Shore avenue, was ordered to the psychopathic hospital for examination by Judge Harry Fisher yesterday.

VOGEL, PUBLIC ENEMY, IS SHOT DURING HOLDUP

George [Butch] Vogel, public enemy and at present reputed boss of beer distribution in the "Valley," was wounded by a bandit yesterday when he refused to turn over a large diamond ring. The shooting occurred outside a soft drink parlor at 2411 South Albany avenue owned by Oliver Cortopassi, who was robbed of $50.

GEORGE VOGEL.

Vogel, whose criminal record extends from the beginning of the century, was seated in his car in front of the place when four men drove up, two entering, one standing in front of the door and the fourth remaining at the wheel of the car. The hoodlum was unaware of the stickup and was sprawled in his machine, one diamond studded hand hanging over the side of the door. This drew the attention of the "lookout."

"Let's have that rock," he said, walking to the car, a gun in his hand.

"In your hat," replied Vogel. "I'm the big guy in this district."

The other looked determined and Vogel jumped from his car and sped down the street on foot. The bandit fired at him five times, bringing him down with a bullet behind and above his right knee. At this moment the bandit's companions came out of the soft drink parlor and the four drove off, not bothering to take Vogel's diamond. The hoodlum limped to his car and drove to the Bridewell hospital, where his condition was said to be not serious.

ROD DEPUTY CORONER'S PARENTS.

Three armed men early yesterday tied up Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Schewel, parents of Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel, in their home at 3811 West 13th street, and ransacked the house for $145 in cash and jewelry valued at $225.

Wing Hits Post

Joseph Monfort, 20 years old, 127 South 17th avenue, Wilmette, ran out of gasoline yesterday on a flight from Detroit to Chicago, and provided a thrill for thousands of Berwyn residents when he brought his plane, carrying two passengers besides himself, to a crash landing at Oak Park avenue and 16th street in Berwyn.

Emil F. Hess, 1225 Central avenue, a garage owner and the employer of Monfort, received a fractured elbow. Monfort and Miss Irene Hess, of Berlin, Wis., cousin of Hess, escaped with a few cuts and bruises. The plane was wrecked.

Monfort, who held a private pilot's license which expired last week, flew Hess and Miss Hess to Detroit yesterday as a demonstration of the plane, which he hoped to sell his employer. They took gasoline there which should have been sufficient for a five hour flight on their return, and had been in the air only three hours when the supply ran out, Monfort said.

He first attempted to la. in a field at 16th street and Euclid avenue in Berwyn, but saw a large crowd there watching a twilight baseball game and glided a block farther to another field. He would have landed safely had a wing of the plane not struck a steel post. Monfort was questioned by George Vest, inspector for the department of commerce, and he admitted his license had expired.

OLD QUARRY POND TO BE SEARCHED FOR GANG BODIES

Chief Investigator Patrick T. Roche of the state's attorney's office made plans yesterday to dredge an abandoned and water filled quarry west of Summit, which, he was informed by underworld sources, contains the bodies of one or more victims of gang rides.

Roche was told that the body of Tommy Abbott, missing north side hoodlum, is probably lying at the bottom of the pit and the information was that several others are there.

WOMAN IN TICKET FRAUD SCANDAL FALLS TO DEATH

Mrs. Maybelle Fuller Douglas, 45 years old, was found dead beneath her hotel window in Aurora yesterday, apparently a suicide. She had registered there Saturday, after coming from her home in Quincy en route to Chicago.

The window screen in the room had been removed and placed in the bathroom and on the writing desk was a note, addressed to her sister, Mrs. Maude McCane of Quincy, which read: "I'm in poor health; going to end it all." Her body was lying in the front driveway of the hotel about 5 a. m. and was found by a bell boy directly beneath her room window, six stories up.

In 1924 Mrs. Douglas was involved in a theater ticket swindle investigation. As a state witness she accused several prominent men, but the case eventually collapsed.

WEALTHY WIDOW KILLS SELF NEAR MATE'S GRAVE

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Although Mrs. Elizabeth Bond Sweatt, 77, had the millions bequeathed to her by her husband when he died two years ago, she could not live without him. She shot and killed herself today in Mount Auburn cemetery, where her husband is buried, that she might join him in death.

Mrs. Sweatt had an old fashioned revolver, made in 1871, with six cartridges in it. Five times she pulled the trigger, but the first five shells failed to explode. She resolutely held the muzzle to her temple and the last cartridge did its work.

Marks on the unexploded cartridges told the police the story of her death.

LABOR FEDERATION COUNCIL ASKS U. S. TO JOIN WORLD COURT

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor, in session here today, approved a proposal that the United States accept membership in the world court, in accordance with the Root formula.

The council's statement on the world court said:

"So long as the interests of the United States are adequately safeguarded and so long as guarantees are given that there will be no interference in purely domestic questions, the American Federation of Labor believes that the United States should take its place with other nations in advancing the cause of world peace through the settlement of questions which require judicial examination and action."

The council also expressed approval of the silk workers strike in Paterson, N. J., and declared the employers were in violation of the wage scale maintenance pledge to President Hoover in 1929 by continued reductions in the wage scale.

William Green, federation president, speaking for the council, said that more than 90 per cent of the strikers were members of the organization identified with the federation and had nothing to do with communistic elements.

ASSESSORS DROP PLAN TO PRY INTO BANK ACCOUNTS

Halt Move Aimed to Tax Deposits.

Banks in Chicago and Cook county will give the board of assessors no information regarding their depositors' accounts on which personal property assessments may be based, E. N. Baty, executive secretary of the Chicago and Cook County Bankers' association, so informed Assessor John E. Conroy, secretary of the board, at a conference yesterday.

Following the conference Conroy said that the board would make no further effort to get information on bank deposits, the largest single item in its campaign to put personal property on the tax books.

"The request for information, made in the letters which we have sent to all banks, is as far as we can go," he said. "The board will not take up the matter with the state's attorney or the grand jury. If the real estate men who threatened such action the other day want to see the grand jury about it, that is their business."

Gives Reasons for Refusal.

"There are two reasons why that information will not be furnished," Baty said after the conference. "In the first place, the demand is illegal, and the assessors have no power under the law to enforce it.

"Secondly, for a bank to furnish such information would be a violation of the confidential relations between banker and depositor. A number of uninformed people, disturbed by the demand of the assessors, are certain to withdraw money from banks if we agree to give out this information. This would be a great way to precipitate more bank failures in the county.

"The association will send out no bulletin on the subject. It would be like telling the bankers not to accept counterfeit money. They know their business."

Board Speeds Up Hearings.

The board of review started hearing complaints against the 1930 assessments at the rate of 1,200 a day, having increased the number from 900 a day which had been heard up to the present.

Andrew W. Gatenbey, chief clerk of the board, renewed his request for an emergency appropriation for $59,300 for clerical help in handling the complaints. The present appropriation for clerical hire will be exhausted next Monday, he stated in a letter to the county board.

"At the present rate of hearings," he said, "we can dispose of all tax complaints by the end of September.

A standard that has never wavered—one of the most notable achievements in Henrici's 63-year record.

The daily service of a wide variety of foods of uniformly highest quality is not only a matter of conscientious effort and willingness to pay the price which quality commands. The most sincere endeavor toward that end is certain to fall short of accomplishment frequently unless guided by unerring skill; first, in selection of the foods in the market and, second, in their keeping, preparation, cooking and service. The reason Henrici's has never faltered in this respect is that the Henrici organization has always attracted to your service the best of the skilled talent in every department of the restaurant industry.

COUNCIL PASSES BILL ABOLISHING 122 CITY JOBS

$305,016 Saved Yearly in Salaries.

The city council yesterday passed an ordinance abolishing 122 civil service jobs, the holders of which have already been dismissed or transferred to other duties in Mayor Cermak's economy drive. Annual salaries of the abolished jobs totaled $305,016.

J. C. MORELAND.

At the council meeting the mayor stated that he had requested the civil service commission to furnish him the names of all policemen over 65 years old, and implied that action will be taken to complex the majority of such employés to retire on pensions.

"I know it's not popular, but I am going to do what the taxpayers would want the general manager of any large corporation to do under similar circumstances," Mayor Cermak said.

91 in Health Department.

Of the jobs abolished yesterday 91 were in the health department, 4 in the city collector's office and 28 in the controller's office. The remaining four jobs were on the finance committee staff, unfilled at present, and were included under an amendment offered by Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the committee.

The vote on the ordinance was 35 to 3, the dissenting vote being cast by Ald. James C. Moreland [41st]. He charged that eleven civil service laborers at the municipal tuberculosis sanitarium had been discharged, and their jobs turned over to temporary appointees under another civil service classification. Mayor Cermak denied the charge, stating that the positions had not been filled.

Denies Story of Painter.

Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th] asked if it was true that on one job a painter and a foreman had been found assigned, the foreman's only duties being to watch the painter paint.

"No," replied the mayor. "We couldn't find the painter."

Following the meeting the mayor said that since he took office in April he has had 175 civil service jobs abolished by council action and has laid off 910 temporary workers, not including those holding seasonal jobs. The total saving by that action, he said, is $2,483,041 a year.

The council repassed the ordinance, in which technical flaws were found, authorizing the controller to sell $8,968,000 worth of 1930 educational fund tax warrants of the school board, held in the city's aggregate of funds, and to purchase a similar amount of 1931 educational fund warrants.

COUNCIL IN MOVE TO FORCE R. R. TO DEPRESS TRACKS

The city council yesterday adopted a resolution offered by Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th], calling upon the governor and secretary of state to refuse to renew the charter of the South Chicago Railroad company, which expires Sept. 19.

BARNET HODES.

The railroad is now operated by the Illinois Central railroad as a suburban branch to South Chicago. The action was taken by Ald. Hodes in the hope of finding a weapon to compel the railroad to depress its tracks in that area. The I. C. has offered to elevate its tracks and is willing to depress them if property owners will pay the difference between the cost of depression and that of elevation.

The number of passengers carried annually on the South Chicago line increased from 2,882,512 in 1919 to 10,693,799 in 1928, Ald. Hodes said.

N. Y.-LOS ANGELES IN 30 HOURS BY NEW AIR SERVICE

New York and Los Angeles are now 30 and one-half hours apart by regular airplane service, the United Air lines announced yesterday. The new service is made possible by a connection at Salt Lake City between United planes and those of the Western Air Express which carry passengers and mail to the principal cities of southern California.

The trip between Chicago and Los Angeles requires 22 and one-half hours. The trans-continental service will be the fastest schedule now in operation, the announcement stated. Passengers may leave the Chicago airport at 4:30 p. m. and arrive in Los Angeles in time for a late luncheon the next day. Eastbound, the passenger would leave Los Angeles after breakfast one day and arrive in Chicago for breakfast the next morning. Night flying will be between Iowa City and Salt Lake City westbound and between Rock Springs, Wyo., and Iowa City eastbound.

On Lehmann Estate

A dozen unemployed men, and the wife of one, have squatted on land just north of Lincoln park, erected crude shacks and tents, and call themselves, a sign revealed yesterday, "The Lost Battalion." Their camp is located on the Lehmann estate, east of Commonwealth avenue and Diversey parkway.

Four groups comprise the makeup of the camp. Most pretentious of the dwellings is the wooden slat hut occupied by L. A. Armstrong and F. J. Brandon. They have an improvised bed inside and do their cooking on a rickety but adequate stove constructed of tin and old metals over an open fire. They have also constructed rustic furniture from old boards. Brandon is working two or three days a week in a nearby bakery and manages to get bread for himself and his companion, which comprises the principal item on their menu.

The area of the camp is heavily wooded, which offers some protection from rain for the others in residence there.

TELLS PROGRESS ON OUTER DRIVE BRIDGE PROJECT

Construction work on the $10,000,000 outer drive bridge at the mouth of the Chicago river is progressing satisfactorily and according to schedule, Eugene S. Taylor, manager of the Chicago plan commission, announced yesterday. Work on the building of two huge cofferdams inside of which will be placed the bridge pier supports is now under way, Mr. Taylor said. The northern approach to the span virtually has been completed. The entire structure is to be finished in October, 1932.

TEACHERS SPLIT ON OPPOSITION TO SCRIP WAGES

Presidents of Two Groups Favor Acceptance.

A split in the ranks of school teachers hitherto firmly opposed to the acceptance of scrip was indicated yesterday after a closed meeting attended by Miss Agnes B. Clohesy, president of the Elementary Teachers' union, James A. Meade, president of the Men Teachers' union, and E. H. Jayne, construction engineer for the school board. The two teachers' groups will meet today to discuss means of opposing Miss Margaret Haley, business representative of the Chicago Teachers' federation, in her efforts to dissuade merchants from accepting scrip.

Miss Haley announced at the last meeting of the school board she had sent letters to the twenty concerns which had agreed to accept scrip at its face value, urging them not to accept the paper on the ground its issuance is illegal. Since her activity the board has not posted the list of those accepting scrip. The teachers' organizations, represented by Miss Clohesy and Mr. Meade, had been united with Miss Haley in urging their members not to apply for the paper.

Mr. Jayne, said he had found other employés of the board opposed to Miss Haley's action. He invited the other organizations to express a stand, particularly since Miss Haley had represented herself as spokesman for the majority of teachers, he said.

After the meeting Miss Clohesy and Mr. Meade said they would explain the situation to members of their organizations at a joint meeting at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Both indicated they would use their influence in favor of scrip, declaring they were inclined to change their minds on the form of payment.

"It is too bad that Miss Haley is trying to discourage merchants from taking scrip," Miss Clohesy said. "It affords many of the employés their only means of obtaining the things they need. If Miss Haley has told the merchants she represents the teachers, that is unfair. She may be speaking for 200 or 300 in her group, but that is but a small minority of the 14,000 teachers in our system."

BACHELOR SHOT; HIS COMPANION AND HER HUSBAND SEPARATED

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—E. Wallace Kolb, president of the Kolb Baking company, a bachelor, was shot in the left thigh early this morning while in his automobile with Mrs. Nellie Greene, member of a prominent Augusta, Ga., family, who two years ago was separated from her husband, J. Woodall Greene, former Baltimore attorney, now in the real estate business in New York.

Police reports first gave Mrs. Greene's name as Mrs. Margaret Reamy and quoted the man who shot Mr. Kolb as having said:

"I've got a notion to blow your brains out."

Mrs. Greene tonight insisted his words were: "Stick 'em up and get out of the car."

The shooting occurred as Mr. Kolb was taking Mrs. Greene to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Steele, whose guest she is.

SWANSON DRAFTS PROPOSAL TO END MOVIE LOCKOUT

Possibility of a reconciliation between the Allied Theater Owners of Illinois and the Motion Picture Operators' union, developed yesterday for the first time since the theater owners closed their doors and declared a lockout a week ago in protest against the union demand for continued employment of two operators in each theater.

A basis for negotiating settlement of the dispute was reached at a meeting over which State's Attorney Swanson presided in his office in the county building. The union was represented by its president, Thomas Reynolds, and its business agent, Thomas E. Maloy; the theater owners by their president, Aaron Saperstein. Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Lounsbury and Charles Bellows, who recently procured Maloy's indictment for alleged racketeering, were also present.

While a formal announcement of the result was withheld, Mr. Swanson said measurable progress had been made.

U.S. FLYERS MADE 'GOATS' OF TOKIO 'SPY SCARE' PLOT

Officials Twist Testimony of Aviators.

HUGH HERNDON JR.

aviators, today paid a Japanese court a fine representing $1,025, and assessed against them for landing in this country without a permit and taking photographs of fortifications.

Pangborn, as the case waited a decision as to whether they will be permitted to accept their proposed flight from Tokio to Seattle, it was revealed that the aviators had been made the "goats" of a rather strange situation.

In a nutshell, it appears that the Japanese authorities attempted, to call up a sensational "spy scare" to use in whipping up national enthusiasm, and failed to succeed.

"Spy-ite" is almost an epidemic here, and the aviators, certain quarters insist, were merely unfortunate enough at a time that the officials needed a bit of fuel for the fire.

Treat Men as Spies.

The airmen actually came to Japan without a permit and, according to the officials, in violation of direct orders not to come. Friends of the fliers point out that the telegram warning the Americans not to come here without obtaining permission failed to reach them. This, they say, the authorities seemed to forget, and as a result the flyers were treated as spies throughout the hearings.

Also, the flyers flew over fortified areas, taking photographs, and thereby "injured national dignity," according to the Japanese officials, who, it would seem, seemed to care more for the national feelings of the nation than for any material military information revealed by the camera.

With nationalism aroused, the officials reported to have been obsessed with the idea that they were dealing with spies, set out to prove "something" against the flyers. Just what, the officials themselves seemed not to know. When the flyers testified as to their movements and attempted to explain their misunderstanding of the law, the officials kept their testimony to themselves. Friends of the flyers point that the officials made public only such part of the testimony disadvantageous to the men.

"Wisecracks" Misunderstood.

Language difficulties also did much to cause misunderstanding, it is declared, especially when, after weary hours of questioning, the flyers began to make "wisecracking" answers to the interrogations. They were taken seriously, and the belief that they were clever spies was strengthened. Meanwhile, the press and public was unsympathetic toward the aviators, probably chiefly because of a traditional antagonism toward the United States, which has not yet ended the exclusion clause.

Contact between the American embassy and Japanese officials was said to have been poor during the earlier hours of the case, due to the absence at summer resorts of the ambassador and other higher officers. The day the fliers arrived, Japanese high officials asked the American officials for an explanation, or an apology, which the embassy did not give. The Japanese officials took this to mean that the embassy was indifferent.

An unfortunate group of circumstances recoiled about the flyers and, meanwhile, reactionary groups hailed the opportunity for stirring up the ultra-nationalistic feeling which is ever present, although usually dormant. The chauvinists' threat of nation-wide demonstrations, if leniency were shown, evidently forced the hands of officials to some degree.

DENIES CHICAGO IS ELIMINATED AS CONVENTION CITY

Reports that Chicago had been eliminated from consideration as the site of the next national Republican convention were denied yesterday in a telegram received by Senator Otis F. Glenn from the office of Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the G. O. P. national committee.

The message stated that no decision had been made on the location of the convention; that only the national committee could make one, and that it was probable a meeting for discussion of the matter would be held in December. No foundation exists, it was added, for reports that any city had been eliminated.

A local committee, headed by Edward N. Hurley, is striving to have both the Democratic and Republican conventions of 1932 held here.

LINDYS HELD IN SIBERIA; STORMS RAGE ON ROUTE

BULLETIN.

San Francisco, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The St. Paul Island Naval Radio station announced receipt of a message from Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, saying she and her famous husband would take off from Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, today for Nemuro, Japan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 18.—[Tuesday.]—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh settled down to another day of rest in Petropavlovsk, today, as storms and fog over the Kurile islands made the hop to Nemuro, Japan, too dangerous to be attempted. They had previously intended to make the flight this morning.

No definite decision has been made as to when the hop will be attempted, that depeding entirely upon weather conditions.

Weather reports today said there were thunderstorms over Paramushir, the most northern island of the group, and thick fog over Iturup island, the most southern. Over the entire area a northwest by west wind was blowing.

The 897 mile flight from Petropavlovsk to Nemuro is regarded as the most dangerous to be made by the Lindberghs on their vacation trip to the orient, because of the sudden storms which are frequent among the islands.

Meanwhile, the famous flyers were watching weather reports and getting acquainted with the Russians, Japanese, Chinese and other inhabitants of that town of 10,000 persons of all races.

In Nemuro, plans for an elaborate reception for the visitors were being made, and officials, sightseers and reporters were flocking to the town. Already all available rooms but two have been taken, and those have been reserved for the flyers. While there they will be quartered in the Nihiki Ryokan, which, freely translated, means "The Two Smiling Beauties Inn."

Already 89 newspaper reporters are in Nemuro, including nine men and two airplanes sent by the Tokio Asahi. The Nichi Nichi has six reporters but no airplane, while the Hokkai Times of Sappolo City has five reporters and one airplane ready for whatever journalistic emergencies may arise.

From Nemuro the Lindbergs will fly to Tokio, where they will remain at least two weeks.

4 BANDITS ROB DAIRY STATION IN EVANSTON

Four men, the leader carrying a shotgun and the others armed with revolvers, entered the office of the Wieland Dairy company, 2050 West Railroad avenue, Evanston, yesterday and took $2,700 in cash and $3,000 in checks—the day's receipts—from the vault. They escaped by driving west on Simpson street in a dark colored sedan.

Two of the bandits, clad in overalls, had been observed loitering around the plant most of the morning, but little attention was paid to them. They entered the plant with two others, and the leader pointed his shotgun at the three occupants of the office, Roy S. Fox, cashier; Miss Alice Weber, bookkeeper; and Miss Beatrice Doyle, forcing them into an inner room.

Chicagoan Falls from Boat at Pistakee; Drowns

Edwin Erickson, 35 years old, of 1002 North Mozart street, a district manager for a mercantile house, was drowned last night when he fell off a rowboat which was being towed by a motor boat in Pistakee lake.

STOCKYARDS STABLES BURN; LOSS IS $25,000

Fire yesterday afternoon destroyed the stables at Green and 44th streets owned by the Union stockyards. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

The stables, roofless structures in which are kept the horses sold at the weekly auctions, were unoccupied at the time the flames were discovered. A 3-11 alarm was sounded for the fire and twenty-five engines and twelve trucks were called to prevent its spread to adjoining buildings. The origin of the blaze was undetermined.

In another fire early last evening damage of about $500 was caused to the Jewish Orthodox Home for the Aged at 1648 North Albany avenue. It began in an elevator shaft to the rear of the three story building. Nearly all of the eighty residents, according to Supt. Julius Savit, were on the porch or in the yard when the fire was discovered. It was extinguished quickly by firemen.

COMPLETE PLANS TO HANDLE MUSIC FESTIVAL CROWD

Throngs at Soldiers' Field to Be Moved Smoothly.

The preparations for the second annual Chicagoland Music Festival, which is to be held next Saturday night at Soldiers' field, speeded up yesterday into proportions which are expected to make it the greatest musical event ever heard—or witnessed—in Chicago.

Numerically, its personnel will be larger than the first festival held last year; qualitatively, it is expected to excel that festival. It is predicted that 150,000 persons—the same number which jammed Soldiers' field last year—will attend Saturday night's event.

Crowd to Move Smoothly.

The festival this year will be distinguished by two important improvements. One is in the handling the crowds in a manner which will permit smooth flow into and out of the stadium. The other is in the amplification of the concert so that it will reach the most remote corner of the great stadium.

To do the job thoroughly 150 ushers, doormen and directors will be assigned. In addition will be scores of uniformed policemen, supplied by the south park board and the city.

All entrances except the north, which is to be used by the active participants in the festival, will be open to the public. The 11th street bridge will be barred to motor traffic but open to pedestrian traffic during the rush hour of the festival.

Arrange for Transportation.

Buses will unload passengers in the Court of Honor, the lane between the north side of the stadium and the Field museum. Taxicabs will discharge passengers on the south and east sides of the field. Shuttle bus service from Michigan avenue to the stadium will carry thousands directly to the scene. It is expected that one bus will arrive every 8 seconds.

For the convenience of those who will drive in their own cars ample free parking space will be provided south and east of the stadium and north of the Field museum. Capt. T. J. Howard of the south park police said yesterday that no "official car watchers" will be permitted, and that any one who attempts to solicit a fee for alleged watch service should be reported to the nearest officer.

Helping to facilitate the flow of the crowds, the surface and Rapid Transit lines, the Chicago Motor Coach company, the Checker Taxi and Yellow Cab companies, and several railroad systems have pledged cooperation by putting out extra service.

Amplification Is Increased.

Thus, with the orderly handling of crowds assured, one of the big problems of a great outdoor event is provided for. The other problem, that of amplification, is more involved, but arrangements already completed promise perfect dissemination of the music.

There will be eighteen speakers, or horns, at this year's music festival. At last year's there were only six. The electric power used this year will be 400 watts. Last year it was only 30. The eighteen horns this year will be placed at an elevation of 25 to 40 feet. Last year the horns were on the ground.

Thus the amplification will send the music to every section of the stadium. There will be no "dead spots." The softest nuances will be transmitted with delicate accuracy, and the chimes which will be rung out in the "1812" overture, a feature of the program, will be carried clearly to every listener.

Weeks of study and work by expert engineers of the south park board, the Erickson Electric company, and Thomas B. Gibbs & Co. were required. The tonecasting will be from the north end of the stadium, and the greatest difficulty encountered was to overcome the obstacles of outdoor acoustics, and possible distortion, in sending the sound waves perfectly to the south end. This difficulty has been overcome. The horns, each a powerful unit, are placed in such positions that every section of the stadium is in range.

Not only volume of sound but quality of tone is guaranteed in this amplification hookup, which is the largest yet devised in all the world.

A Two Hour Program.

The program will begin shortly after 7:30 o'clock and last for more than two hours. Its makeup will include mass choral singing and mass instrumentation. There will be illustrative fireworks, augmenting martial numbers. There will be noted conductors, among them the "march king," John Philip Sousa. He will direct the band of 2,200 pieces in a rendition of his famous air—"The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Outstanding among the martial airs will be the "1812" overture, depicting the battle of Moscow. Here fireworks, signifying cannon bursts and rifle fire, will be displayed.

There will be numbers by a massed band of 800 pieces from the Chicago high schools, and by the Girls' Centennial Concert ensemble, of 50 instruments, representing four Catholic high schools.

MUSIC FESTIVAL NOTES

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

The splendid radio reception of last year's festival, at which more than 150,000 people were in attendance in Soldiers' field, has recruited many singers for the "Messiah" chorus, Kathryn M. Foote of Muskegon, Mich., writes:

"I was thrilled last year listening over the radio to the Chicagoland Music festival. I will bring my copy of the "Messiah" chorus and do my bit next Saturday. Mrs. Harold F. Foote, my sister, also wishes to sing this number."

The only rehearsal of this piece by those who have enlisted by filling out an entry blank in THE TRIBUNE will be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Gold ballroom of the Drake hotel. Noble Cain, the director of this oratorio for Saturday night, will be present.

Thomas Gilleran, a Boy Scout, is drum major of the Our Lady Help of Christians parish of the Catholic Youth organization, which is entering three corps in the juvenile contest division of the festival. The Rev. Joseph B. Heidmann, assistant pastor of the church, is in charge of this unit. The contest is next Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in Grant park, east of the Art institute.

The Lyon and Healy music store has an interesting window display on the second Chicagoland Music festival. Grouped around the picture of Sousa, who will be guest conductor of the massed band of 2,200 pieces Saturday night in Soldiers' field, are pictures of other leading figures in the coming entertainment and a huge reproduction of the crowd at the first festival.

Carleton Smith, youthful lecturer on classical music, passed through Chicago yesterday enroute to New York where he will be the guest of Deems Taylor, eminent composer. Mr. Smith, who has been reading of the plans for the festival in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, said that he will be with a group of prominent composers and music critics in New York on the night of the festival and they will have their radio tuned in on W-G-N and other stations of the National Broadcasting company network to pick up the festival program. "I'm going to give a radio talk soon on the merit of your great festival. I think you are doing more to educate people to good music by your sort of festival than any other agency in America. From what I have read the program you will give Saturday night is worth the highest price paid for grand opera," he said.

The Negro massed choruses will hold the following rehearsals each night at 8 o'clock:

Tonight—Quinn chapel, 24th street and Wabash avenue.

Tomorrow night—Metropolitan Community church, 41st street and South Parkway.

Thursday night—Ebenezer church, 41st and Vincennes avenue.

Thomas L. Boom, Illinois department, Sons of Union Veterans, 502 East 60th street, will be in charge of the 30 Civil War veterans who will be guests of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Saturday night at the festival. The veterans will leave the Hotel Sherman at 7:45 and arrive at the south entrance to Soldiers' field at 8:15 in cars provided by the Chicago Automobile Dealers' association. Entry into the field will be made about 8:30. Motorcycle police escorts will take them through the crowds. The veterans will be driven to the festival bandstand and take their seats while the festival band under the direction of Victor Grabel plays a medley of Civil war tunes.

RENEW EFFORTS TO INDUCE GANDHI TO VISIT LONDON

Holy Man Reported Ready to Withdraw Demand.

BOMBAY, India, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Redoubled efforts were being made today by unbiased intermediaries to persuade Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, to follow the first contingent of delegates to London for the second round table conference on Indian affairs.

The prospect of his ultimate departure became distinctly brighter when it was learned he was willing to withdraw his demand for the appointment either of an arbitration board or of a high court judge to investigate alleged breaches in the Delhi pact, provided the government designates a single trustworthy civilian or government official to hear his complaints.

This fact has been communicated both to Viceroy Willingdon at Simla and the cabinet in London. It was believed the viceroy may be instructed by Wedgwood Benn, secretary for India, to act favorably on Gandhi's latest suggestion, because it is understood that the Labor government as well as Gandhi himself is anxious that all political groups in India be represented at the conference.

It is argued by neutral observers here that all the fruits of the Delhi pact, one of the main purposes of which was to insure Nationalist participation in the conference, will be thrown away if Gandhi does not go to London.

It is also pointed out that the principal object in adjourning the first conference was to give Gandhi and his colleagues an opportunity to study its results so they could determine whether it was worth their while to participate in the second conference.

Want Gandhi in London.

It is largely because of these factors, observers believe, that the British government will exhaust every reasonable means to make it possible for Gandhi to change his mind. Both the home and foreign governments are said to be anxious to avoid, at any cost, a renewal of the ruinous civil disobedience movement, which cost England millions of pounds and filled the prisons of India with thousands of rebellious prisoners.

The effect of Gandhi's civil disobedience movement and the boycott of British goods, coupled with the general economic depression, in India last year was indicated by official statistics issued today, revealing a slump in foreign trade.

Foreign trade at India's three principal seaports, Bombay, Calcutta, and Karachi, for the year ending March 31 was shown to have decreased by $529,000,000, for a total of about one-third less than the previous year's trade. For the first time since India became a part of the British empire, Great Britain yielded the pride of place in trade to Japan, largely because of the Indian boycott of British goods. Imports from the United States suffered heavily, especially of automobiles, which for the Bombay presidency alone declined from 6,346 to 2,735 cars. This, however, was owing to the general commercial situation rather than the boycott.

Los Angeles Pays Way Home of 1,200 Jobless Mexicans

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—With Los Angeles county paying their railroad fares, 1,200 Mexicans today entrained for their home country. They have been unable to find employment in southern California. The hegira has depleted the Mexican colony in this city heavily. Belvedere, where numerous stores depended upon this trade, is hard hit. It is reported 90,000 Mexicans have left California during the year.

MAIL STOLEN FROM POUCHES ON LEVIATHAN

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Another mysterious ocean mail robbery came to light today with the arrival of the United States liner Leviathan. A pouch of English registered parcels mail from Nassau, Bahamas, carried on its last eastward trip had been cut open, pilfered of seven pieces of mail, and tied up again.

The theft was linked with a similar robbery a few weeks ago, when $25,000 worth of currency bound from Nassau to the New York branch of the Royal Bank of Canada disappeared from a mail pouch on the Cunarder Mauretania.

The theft that was disclosed today was of articles of "comparatively insignificant value," according to C. H. Claraban, inspector in charge at the general postoffice here.

U.S. CONFRONTED BY RECORD LOW FOR INCOME TAX

Current Year Promises Added Decrease.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special]—Another huge slump in income tax collections is anticipated by the government during the current fiscal year. Government experts, charged with the task of figuring out future treasury revenues, expect that receipts from corporation and individual income taxes will run at least 200 millions and perhaps 400 millions below the collections for the 1931 twelve month period.

As figures made public yesterday indicated that the 1931 receipts from income taxes slumped 550 millions below those received for the previous year, it is apparent that the total income tax collections will touch a new low for recent years. With income tax collections reduced to $1,000,000,000 or less, the deficit would be well soaring probably above the billion dollar mark by the end of the current fiscal year, June 30, next.

Corporation Profits Cut.

Falling corporation profits resulting from the business depression coupled with a diminution in the income taxes of tax payers in the higher surtax brackets are important factors in cutting down the prospective revenue from income taxes. Figures showing the treasury from statistical computations show that many business organizations are transacting less business than a year ago, in some cases dropping as much as 50 per cent.

Although present prospects are that income receipts will be somewhat larger than last year due to depleted stocks in importers' warehouses, indications are that total receipts from all sources will be something more than a billion dollars below expenditures now anticipated. With eight months of the 1931 calendar year gone, government officials cannot see how any but a very substantial improvement in the business situation could be of help in swelling income collections during the 1932 fiscal year.

The collections of income taxes from now until July 1 next, when the 1932 fiscal year ends, will consist of two installments of taxes based on incomes during the 1930 year and two installments of taxes on incomes earned during the 1931 calendar year ending Dec. 31.

Pin Hopes on Customs.

The principal hope of the administration lies in receipts from customs. Should business improve, then the better economic situation would be reflected in customs receipts on imports entering the United States up to the end of the fiscal year. Business conditions after Jan. 1 would have no effect on the income tax receipts for the 1932 fiscal year.

On his return from Europe within the next few days Secretary of the Treasury Mellon will be faced with the task of figuring out what to do about the prospective deficit for the current year as well as prospective deficits in the years following. As a tax increase would be of no help during the current fiscal year it is probable that the losses in revenue from taxes as well as losses occasioned by the postponement of war debt payments will be added to the public debt. An increase in the public debt of as much as three quarters of a billion dollars may ensue.

It is known that the administration in considering the question of tax revision is thinking only of taxes to be laid on earnings after Dec. 31, this year. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, in an address last spring, called attention to the tendency of income taxes to fluctuate widely and suggested the advisability of working out a more stable taxing system.

LADY INVERCLYDE.

Reno, Nev., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Lord Inverclyde, who as John Alan Burns is a leading official of the Cunard Steamship company, was divorced here today by the London music hall favorite, June. She charged extreme mental and physical cruelty.

Lady June, who appeared in court dressed in black, testified her husband "drank far too much and never was entirely sober," that he was sullen and resentful and that he frequently insulted her friends.

In Paris in November of 1929, she testified, he grabbed her by the throat and threatened to choke her.

It was shortly after this occurrence, according to her counsel, William Woodburn, that Lady Inverclyde brought suit in London to have their marriage annulled. The suit was dismissed, because the London courts held they were without jurisdiction.

Although she has admitted that she hopes some day to marry Lothar Mendes, Hollywood film director, Lady Inverclyde said today the event would not take place immediately.

DEMPSTER GRADE JOB IS INVOLVED IN $195,000 SUITS

A petition for an injunction to restrain the county from the use of land at the grade separation at Milwaukee avenue and Dempster road, and the praecipes of three damage suits against the county involving the same project, in which a total of $195,000 was asked, were filed in the Circuit court yesterday by Attorney Edwin D. Lawlor.

The injunction was sought by the Chicago Title and Trust company, which also asked $60,000 damages as trustee of an unnamed person. The other praecipes were filed in behalf of the Des Plaines State bank which asked $60,000 and $75,000 as trustee of two other unnamed persons.

Maj. George A. Quinlan, superintendent of the county highway department, said that the work is being completed on the grade separation which is now in use. He declared the county had acquired the land by condemnation, paying $75,000.

GERMAN EXPORTS EXCEED IMPORTS FOR NEW RECORD

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—For the eighteenth successive month, Germany's trade balance for July is favorable, reaching a record surplus of exports over imports of $80,000,000, including deliveries in kind for reparations.

To bring cash into the country and to make up for the withdrawal of short term loans, German salesmen worked overtime and succeeded in exporting $197,000,000 worth of goods. Simultaneously, imports were throttled down until they reached the lowest level in years, totaling $123,000,000.

Last year Germany purchased a monthly average of $206,000,000 worth of goods abroad.

Prices About the Same.

Business leaders insist that increased sales were not achieved through dumping. They state that their prices for finished goods, which form the bulk of Germany's exports, were only 1 per cent lower than the previous month. They add that merchandise from other countries dropped the same percentage or more. The official trade report also lists the export of $98,000,000 in gold. Part of these millions was paid out by the Reichsbank in June, although this payment was not listed under that month's exports. This brings the Reichsbank's exports for June to $216,000,000. A share of its gold exports for July went to America, about $37,000,000. England received $48,000,000.

The cabinet today called in nine prominent economic experts of Germany to aid in devising means for supervision of banking operations and to help reorganize national business. The bourse will reopen Oct. 2, it was announced today. It is believed that the stock exchange then will restrict trading at first to bonds. Later, it may extend trading in stocks in restricted amounts.

Vote to Renew Berlin Credit.

PARIS, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Swiss telegraphic agency reported from Basel, Switzerland, tonight that the Bank for International Settlements' committee investigating Germany's credit needs, has adopted a report proposing renewal of a credit of 5,000,000,000 marks, [roughly $1,250,000,000] for six months.

The report, prepared by Sir Walter Layton, recommends renewal of condition that the central banks of France and England, the Federal Reserve Bank and the Bank of International Settlements also renew the credit of $100,000,000 which they recently granted, for another six months from the date of the signing of the accord, Aug. 18.

British Columbia Profits $2,003,104 on Liquor Sales

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Government officials have announced that British Columbia made a profit of $2,003,104 on its liquor business for the six months ending last March 31. The sum brought the total profits for the year to $4,021,510. Profits from the sale of beer were not included in the totals.

Shot Down in Front of Morgue; Won't Talk

County morgue attendants were roused early this morning by shooting in front of the building. They found John Lawlor, 43 years old, of 5307 West Van Buren street, lying on the sidewalk in front of the place, suffering from a bullet wound in the right leg. He was given first aid at the county hospital and then transferred to the Bridewell hospital. He refused to tell the circumstances of his shooting.

CORN ON COB AT MIDNIGHT HABIT BREAKS UP HOME

Leo I. Lesh was so fond of corn on the cob that he made his wife, Bertha, 23 years old, 1220 South Avers avenue, get out of bed at 2 o'clock in the morning to prepare the dish for him, she told Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude in asking a divorce yesterday.

She said she filed a divorce bill in May, 1929, but her husband had promised to reform and they were reconciled. A year ago, however, he had a relapse, she charged, and routed her from bed to boil several ears of corn. She left him the following day.

Judge Trude granted the divorce and gave Mrs. Lesh the custody of her daughter, Judith, 2 years old, at the plea of Attorney Harry X. Cole who represented her.

FRIENDS DEFEND ROSENWALD FOR OFFER TO SMITH

Confirm Story and Tell His High Motive.

criminal state of affairs had been revealed, and it seemed unbelievable that the state of Abraham Lincoln had sunk so low that it was ready to go before the world and say; "This is the man we want to represent us in the senate." It seemed that no self-respecting citizen could sit idly by and watch such degradation.

Magill Fund Small.

Mr. Rosenwald testified that up to that time he had given $1,000 to the Magill campaign and later hearings by the committee showed that his total donations were less than $3,000. The total Magill fund was only slightly more than $25,000.

Those who talk in behalf of Mr. Rosenwald point out that the now famous interview with Mr. Smith at the Congress hotel was on Oct. 3, almost a month before the election on Nov. 3. The Smith campaign budget liabilities already had been incurred—printing and bill posting contracts let, county appropriations for the entire state had been set aside, and it was deemed probable in view of the Smith primary campaign fund of $237,000 that his total expense for the two campaigns would exceed $500,000.

Motive Is Explained.

"What Frank Smith has said is substantially true," said a man strongly bound to Mr. Rosenwald by ties of affection.

"Knowing that Illinois was almost certain to elect a Republican, feeling so strongly that Smith was disqualified, and believing that he could not be seated, he tried to do what he felt was a fine thing for Illinois.

"Mr. Rosenwald knew that he was one of the few men who had the financial means to carry out his idea. So, without consulting any of his friends or advisers, he went alone to Frank Smith and urged him to retire for the sake of Illinois."

Another friend of Mr. Rosenwald added that the financier also was actuated to a slight extent by a feeling that Brennan might win and that such a victory would weaken the hold of his friend, President Coolidge, on the senate.

It was announced by representatives of Mr. Rosenwald that there will be no formal statement in his behalf by members of his family or by his business associates concerning the Smith story.

TWO VERA CRUZ CHURCHES FIRED BY TERRORISTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 17.—As result of continued raids by terrorists and the attempted burning last night of the parish church, the townspeople of Villa Cuautemoc, state of Vera Cruz, today organized a "home guard" to protect church property. The better class, politicians excepted, charge openly that Gov. Tejeda is instigator of the terrorist plots.

A crowd entered Villa Cuautemoc at 11 o'clock last night, poured oil on the floor of the church and set it afire. Valuable paintings were destroyed before the flames were extinguished.

Shortly before daylight another crowd set fire in similar maner to La Pastora church in Vera Cruz city, and destroyed the altar, benches, pictures of saints and images. The entire church was gutted before the flames were controlled.

MICHIGAN ADDS TO STATE POLICE IN WAR ON DIVES

5 Women, 12 Men Are Taken in Raids.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Thirty state police recruits will be added tomorrow to the force assigned to wipe out the moonshine dives that infest Michigan's rural communities. Five women and 12 men were arrested Saturday and Sunday in raids by the state police.

Governor Brucker ordered the eradication of "every blind pig and hoodlum hangout in Michigan" as a result of the murders of two high school girls and two high school boys by three moonshine crazed men.

Capt. Donald A. Leonard, in charge of the state police in the Detroit area, appealed to the public to help in the statewide campaign.

"We will act on every complaint, either signed or anonymous," Leonard announced today. "We need the coöperation of every citizen."

Girl Victims Burned Alive.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Dr. J. C. Bugher, pathologist of the University of Michigan, reported late this afternoon that Vivian Gold and Anna May Harrison, torch murder victims, still were alive when their slayers set fire to their gasoline soaked bodies.

Doctor Bugher said microscopic examination of lung tissues established beyond doubt the girls still were breathing, though probably unconscious, when the torch was applied. His revelations were contained in a formal written report made to Dr. Edwin C. Ganzhorn, Washtenaw county coroner.

The report also sets forth both girls were criminally attacked. Testimony of Frank Oliver, David Blackstone, and Fred Smith, the killers, was that only one of the girls had been assaulted—that Miss Gold was spared when she begged at Blackstone's knees for mercy and screamed she would rather die.

Woman Cleared of Slaying.

A definite charge is still lacking against Catherine Keller, at first believed an accomplice in the slaying, but it is anticipated that she will either be arraigned Tuesday or will be released. Prosecutor Albert J. Rapp, Edward A. Bilitzke of the attorney general's staff, and Sheriff Jacob B. Andrew believe now that the girl had no connection with the slaying, though it is thought she knows of other crimes in which Fred Smith, one of the slayers, was involved.

Otis Oden, operator of the speakeasy in which Smith, Frank Oliver, and David Blackstone, the killers, obtained their liquor, is to be charged with violation of the prohibition law. Howard Forwalder, also taken in connection with the case, probably will be released Tuesday.

KENTUCKY COURT OPENS TO TRY 15 MURDER CASES

Judge Calls Red Agitators N. Y. 'Snake Doctors.'

Harlan, Ky., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Plans for proceeding Wednesday with the trial of William M. Burnett, miner charged with having fatally shot Deputy Sheriff Jesse Pace during a Harlan county labor dispute, and for transferring at least fourteen Evarts murder cases to some other county were announced here late today by Commonwealth Attorney W. A. Brock.

Pace was killed shortly before the clash at Evarts in which four men were slain and for which thirty were indicted. Notice has been served on fourteen of the defendants in the Evarts case that they would be tried in some other county not adjoining Harlan county. Brock said the notices were filed under a statute making it mandatory for the court to grant a change of venue.

Look Into Syndicalism.

In organizing the grand jury, Circuit Judge D. C. Jones instructed the jurors to take up cases of violence in the coal fields not covered by the previous grand jury. He told them to investigate criminal syndicalism charges first.

Touching on conditions in the Harlan county coal fields where men have been on strike since last February, Judge Jones denounced communism and warned those summoned for grand jury and petit jury service to advise him if they have any communistic sympathy.

"Communism and law and order cannot sleep in the same bed," he said. In declaring that communistic principles have been brought into the mountain coal fields, Judge Jones said it had been done by agents from outside whom he termed "snake doctors from New York."

Stage No Demonstration.

A demonstration designed to show sympathy for more than 100 men facing trial as a result of the labor controversy failed to materialize. The courtroom was hardly filled. Many men sat in overalls on the courthouse steps, but the streets were not crowded.

Deputies under Sheriff J. H. Blair were armed with rifles and guarded the building housing the jail and court. They had tear gas bombs ready in case of emergency and in front of the building stood a hand made armored car converted from an old bread wagon and reinforced with steel and asbestos.

This afternoon officers arrested Vincent Blotti and Robert Dean at Evarts and brought them to jail here. The men were accused of distributing radical literature. Officers said Dean was armed.

Boris Israel, correspondent for the Federated Press, was shot in the left leg near here late today and was taken to a hospital at Pineville. Officials said Israel was beaten and chased out of Harlan. He had been in the Harlan county coal fields furnishing news to radical labor newspapers.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Nels Erickson, 56 years old, was found dead in bed in his room at 811 Milton avenue yesterday of heart disease.

YOUTH IS HELD AFTER SHOOTING AT WILD PARTY

George Kane, alias "Red" Donovan, 19 years old, said by police to be a henchman of Thomas Maloy, indicted head of the Motion Picture Operators' union, was a prisoner last night following a party yesterday morning at 2343 East 90th street, at the climax of which he attempted to shoot a tenant of the building.

According to the stories told police, Kane and a companion picked up Margaret Healy, 23 years old, said to be a sister of Clyde Healy, a south side bootlegger who was murdered three years ago, and Norine Hall, also 23, in the Frolics cafe on 22d street. They went with the women to their home at the 90th street address.

Shortly before 7 o'clock yesterday morning, several shots were fired in the women's apartment. Other tenants called police. Before they arrived F. M. Holwick, one of the tenants, left his apartment to go to work. Kane staggered out of the latter's apartment, revolver in his hand.

He pointed it at Holwick, but the latter's daughter, Mrs. Jean Rowton, who had gone to the door to say her father goodbye, struck Kane with an ashtray, causing the shot to be deflected through a window. Holwick seized the gun. Police arrived a moment later and arrested Kane and the two women. The other man escaped.

"They're out—so they can't be in!"

The finest tobacco quality plus throat protection.

Every LUCKY STRIKE is made of the finest tobacco leaves the world can offer—the finest from Turkey—the finest from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—the Cream of many Crops throughout the world. But all tobacco leaves, regardless of price and kind, as nature produces them, contain harsh irritants. LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—a process that mellows, that purifies, that includes the use of the modern Ultra Violet Ray—expels certain harsh irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds, who use them as a base in making sheep-dip*, as well as a powerful spraying solution for trees, flowers and shrubs—enough to permit the daily dipping of over 50,000 sheep or the daily spraying of many thousands of trees. Thus, you are sure these irritants, naturally present in all tobacco leaves, are not in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!"

JUNKETERS URGE PRISON SYSTEM A LA EUROPEAN

Will Ask Illinois to Shake Up Present Laws.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 17.—Crime and punishment will not be recognizable to their respective practitioners in the state of Illinois when the special prison commission, which has been studying conditions over here, turns in its report. That, at least, is the conclusion drawn from the remarks of Judge Denis E. Sullivan of Chicago, vice president of the judicial advisory council, who joined the commission by special invitation and who has just arrived in Paris.

JUDGE DENIS E. SULLIVAN.

The rest of the commission is studying conditions in Switzerland, Italy, and Czecho-Slovakia for the next few days, but Judge Sullivan states that work is piling up back home and that he will sail on Wednesday.

Compliment to Cermak.

At any rate, it appears that the commission has completed its work and its present travel is construed as principally a delicate compliment to Mayor Cermak and Premier Mussolini.

Members of the party have already agreed on the chief articles of their report, Judge Sullivan declared, and after a general meeting here on Aug. 25 they will proceed immediately on the drafting of a lengthy document, which they hope will effect a top to bottom reorganization of the police, judicial and prison systems in Illinois along the most advanced lines of European thought.

France emphatically does not fall in with the most advanced lines of European thought, Judge Sullivan pointed out, being too greatly addicted to "rough stuff" and operating on the fundamental error that catching criminals is the one way of reducing crime.

Judge Outlines Report.

What the commissioners have in mind, he said, is something much more drastic—abolition of crime by transforming criminals into model citizens when, and after, they are caught.

According to Judge Sullivan, the main lines of the committee's report will be as follows:

First and foremost, legislative changes by which maximum penalties for any offense be eliminated. The court will simply hand down a minimum sentence when the jury returns a verdict of guilty, and the prison and parole board will then have power to decide whether the prisoner should be released at the end of his minimum term or whether he should be kept in prison for a longer period. The prisoner's behavior in prison and possibilities of his permanent reform would be deciding factors in the length of sentences.

While in prison the criminal would be encouraged by a system of rewards and privileges, and the length of his term would depend on the way he seizes this opportunity.

In order to make this system practical the commission will recommend that the parole board sit permanently, that wardens be experienced criminologists, and that even prison guards be obliged to pass civil service examinations and take special training.

Scoots Here from Indiana Harbor

SERGT. MICHAEL J. SHEAHAN AND NICK ISPAS.

Scoots 20 Miles

Nicholas Ispas, 9 years old, 2307 Lock street, Indiana Harbor, may be hailed as the long distance scooter champion of the United States if the Chicago police are able to verify his story that he scooted all of the twenty miles from his home to the outer drive and 44th street.

He was found last evening by South Park Policeman Arthur Swanson while wearily pushing his scooter along the drive. When taken to the Hyde Park station he told of his long trip, which was interrupted only by stops for a drink of water now and then at filling stations.

Nicholas started his journey at 8 a. m. yesterday when his mother sent him out to find a wooden box to use in starting the kitchen fire.

In turning a street in Indiana Harbor the boy became lost, he said, and he kept on pushing his way along the route which led him through several towns and villages. The Indiana Harbor police were notified of the arrival of Nicholas and he is being held for his parents.

POLICEMAN SHOT AS OTHER POLICE BATTLE BANDITS

Two young bandits were captured and three others escaped in a half hour automobile chase and revolver battle with a detective squad early this morning. Policeman Adam Brychel of the Warren avenue station was grazed on the right arm by one of the bandit bullets as he was walking his beat near Paulina and Van Buren streets.

The captured robbers are James Mash, 17 years old, of 2430 Arthington street, and Samuel Giordano, 19, of 2011 Polk street. One of their escaped companions is believed by police to have been wounded. Four shotguns and a pistol were found in the bandit car.

Shortly before 1 o'clock this morning the five gunmen held up Dave Mattioli in his ice cream store at 4783 Grand avenue and took $30. They next appeared in the restaurant at 200 South Western avenue and took between $40 and $50. A radio report was flashed and picked up by Sergt. James Brady and his squad.

The quintet was sighted at Western avenue and Wilcox street, and the chase, during which more than thirty shots were exchanged, followed. At Van Buren and Paulina streets the bandit car stopped. Three men ran away, the other two, Giordano and Mash, surrendering. Policeman Brychel was walking near by and was nipped in the last exchange of shots.

Rob Hotel Apartment of Sam Levin, Kidnap Victim

Burglars last night broke into the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Levin in the Pine North apartment hotel, 145 North Pine avenue, and stole jewelry valued at $1,200. Levin, a former oil station company owner, was kidnaped for ransom a month ago, held prisoner for several days, and released unharmed.

Loses Life Trying to Rescue Worker from Sand

Thomas Newell, 30 years old, 3313 South Sangamon street, yard superintendent for the Material Service corporation, was killed yesterday when he tried to rescue James Dooley, 27 years old, 9036 South Green street, from a sand hopper on the company's property at 33d street and Racine avenue. When Dooley lost his balance and fell into the fine sand Newell leaped in to save him and was himself engulfed. Dooley was rescued by other workmen.

HEALTH OFFICIAL TRIED TO ALTER RECORDS, CHARGE

Case Completed Against Dr. G. A. Koehler.

DR. G. A. KOEHLER.

Dr. G. A. Koehler, suspended assistant health commissioner, was charged before the civil service commission yesterday with having attempted to have one of the department chemists alter a report on the alcoholic content of a beer sample submitted by the south park police.

The charge was made by Dr. Fred O. Tonney of the laboratory staff, and backed later by the story of Mrs. Frances de Young, who at the time was employed in the laboratory. Their testimony and that of three other witnesses completed the prosecution case, on which Dr. Koehler's dismissal is being asked. He will present his defense tomorrow morning.

Ordered False Report, Charge.

"The sample of beer was analyzed and found to contain an illegal percentage of alcohol," Dr. Tonney testified. "Dr. Koehler came to me, asked about it, and when I told him, said, 'Make the report to show that the alcohol content was legal.'

"I refused, telling him that it was the first time in my twenty years in the laboratory that an official of the department had asked me to change the report of an analysis. He flew into a rage and from that time on made life uncomfortable for me."

Woman Tells Her Story.

Mrs. De Young testified that she was present during a conversation in which Dr. Koehler said: "Damn it, Tonney, you've got to change that report."

Samuel P. Manning, secretary of the department, testified that at Dr. Koehler's order he requisitioned $860 for repairs for a health department automobile which Dr. Arnold H. Kegel, then health commissioner, was using in Mississippi.

Anthony Landis, a postoffice employé, testified that a health department bulletin was revised and printed three times, among the changes being the substitution of a picture of the former mayor for a health cartoon. Dr. Hugh O. Jones, assistant health commissioner, testified that Dr. Koehler edited the bulletin in question.

Two Leap Off Locomotive; Save Lives in Yard Wreck

J. B. Graham, 7739 Stony Island avenue, engineer, and C. C. Stacey, 11211 Vernon avenue, fireman, saved their lives yesterday by jumping from the cab of a locomotive just before a crash that piled up the locomotive and seven freight cars at the entrance of the Markham yards of the Illinois Central railway near Homewood. Graham's train of 46 cars was proceeding north when it crashed into a detached section of 16 other freight cars.

NEW YORK BATHING BEACHES MAY SOON FACE SEWAGE PERIL

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—A warning that every bathing beach within the metropolitan area may have to be closed in the near future unless proper sewage facilities are provided was voiced today by Health Commissioner Shirley W. Wynne.

At the same time Dr. Wynne reiterated his previous opinion that recognized bathing districts in and near Greater New York are safe for bathing at present.

"Though we have found no instances of infection from New York waters," Commissioner Wynne said, "unquestionably, with our growing population, it will be only a question of time, unless facilities for disposing of sewage are provided, before all the beaches have to be proscribed."

ARGENTINA FREES EDITOR AND WIFE, JAILED SINCE MAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 17.—Natalio Botana and his wife, who were jailed on May 7 after the newspaper Critica, of which Botana was editor, was seized by the provisional government for criticising its actions and policies, were liberated last night. They immediately embarked for Montevideo, Uruguay.

The liberation of the Botanos follows a three months' fight against press censorship in Argentina by about eighty newspapers which fell before the government. The Botanas were jailed without charges being placed against them. Efforts to release them on writs of habeas corpus failed. A court's ruling that Botana was privileged to leave the country as a deportee was disregarded by the government.

On August 2, after American interests had brought pressure to bear on the Argentine government, the Critica resumed publication again under the name Jornada. Other previously suppressed newspapers have also reopened. The freeing of the Botanas is taken to indicate that the government's alleged "iron fisted" policy toward the press is nearing an end.

Hunt Burglars Who Got $5,000 in Rosenberg Home

The police yesterday were hunting the burglars who ransacked the Sheridan road apartment of Mrs. Ethel Rosenberg, widow of the former sanitary district trustee, Michael Rosenberg, early in the day, escaping with jewelry and costly clothing valued at $5,000. The apartment, at 2242 Sheridan road, had been searched thoroughly for valuables, it appeared, and two watches, a string of pearls, and an ermine wrap were taken. These belonged to Hazel Rosenberg, 18 years old, a daughter. She and the other children, Harold, 24; Milton, 22, and Michael Jr., 20, had attended a theater with their mother and returned home to find the maid, Rusie Dubeck, 25, telephoning the police. She had just returned herself, she said, and discovered the losses.

FLEET SAILS ON AFTER WEEK AT BRITTEN'S PORT

Congressman Still Denies Political Pressure.

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—As vessels of the scouting force left Fort Pond Bay, Montauk, L. I., this morning after a week's visit, Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, who suggested the visit to the navy department, issued a statement in which he again stressed the natural and strategic value of the harbor. He emphasized the recreational facilities available at Montauk, and denied that any political pressure was brought to bear on the navy department to procure the fleet's visit.

Answers Editorial Query.

Mr. Britten, who is financially interested in the Montauk Beach Development corporation, issued his statement in response to an editorial demand in a morning newspaper asking him to explain why the fleet came to Montauk, the purpose of its visit, and what had been accomplished during the visit.

"In December of 1930," Mr. Britten said, "after the American Motor Boat association had announced that the twenty-eighth annual motor boat classic was to be raced at Lake Montauk on Aug. 15, I called upon Secretary Adams and the chief of operations, Admiral Pratt, to suggest that Fort Pond Bay, L. I., be included in the fleet's schedule of summer operations in the triangular area bounded by Newport, New London and Montauk. This area has long been the subject of many serious war problems by both the army and navy war colleges. Block island, lying between Montauk and Newport, provides a natural 'Helgoland' for the protection of Long Island sound and an offensive position against any force attacking New York City from the north or from the east.

Denies Using Pressure.

"It was later determined by the navy department, without the slightest political pressure or suggestion from me or any one else, that the fleet's itinerary at Newport from June 9 to Sept. 5 would include the week of Aug. 10 at Montauk. This was done because Fort Pond Bay is one of the best harbors on the Atlantic coast; has fine depths of water from the shore line; has a fine anchorage bottom of sand and gravel; has no sand bars, shoals, or shallow depths; has admission to an open roadstead more than two miles wide which leads direct to the ocean in less than ten minutes' travel time by ship, with water ranging from 53 to 60 feet deep."

WHAT IT IS — EDISON SERVICE — WHAT IT DOES

WHAT CONSTITUTES ELECTRIC SERVICE

Most people think of only a button on a wall

TO the average person the meaning of "electric service" is a button on a wall. One button is pushed to put the service "on"; another to cut the service "off" and stop the meter from working. It is as simple as that.

Behind the buttons of EDISON SERVICE, however, is physical property—plant and equipment—in which the Commonwealth Edison Company has invested more than $300,000,000.

Around $111,000,000 of this vast sum is invested in five great generating stations, where electric energy is produced. Nearly $48,000,000 is in transmission lines, used to deliver energy wholesale to neighborhood substations. Nearly $57,000,000 additional is in these 105 substations themselves. The remaining $86,000,000 or thereabouts, is in distribution lines and various kinds of other equipment necessary to retail the energy from the substations to the Company's million meters.

The land required for EDISON SERVICE generating stations, substations, service buildings, and other purposes is 373 acres within the city limits. This is an area larger than Washington Park, and two and one-half times as large as the Loop itself.

The copper wire in the overhead transmission and distribution lines, which deliver EDISON SERVICE to its customers, would circle the earth—not along the short route traveled by record-breaking air-men, but at the equator—and stretch from New York to San Francisco on the second lap. And in addition there is under the streets and alleys of the city enough cement conduit (carrying the larger cables of the Company) to reach three times across the United States.

It is because EDISON SERVICE consists of such a tremendous amount of physical property that it is only necessary to push a button to get an adequate supply of electricity, either day or night and anywhere in the city. This is true whether the particular service needed is a tiny night lamp in a sick room, or 10,000 horse-power in a factory.

COMMONWEALTH EDISON COMPANY
A Home-Owned, Home-Managed Institution

Throughout its existence the cost of Edison Service to the consumer has steadily been lowered. Nevertheless the Company which furnishes it has paid 167 regular quarterly dividends to its owners, who are its stockholders. Customers are invited to become part owners in the Company, and they may now do so on a monthly savings plan. Any Edison Service Employe will give details of this plan.

ROOSEVELT NOTE IS SUPPRESSED BY WHITE HOUSE

Elected Governor Inquired About Waterway.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The White House today finally recollected that it had received a letter from Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York asking for the facts regarding alleged secret negotiation between the United States and Canada over joint construction of the St. Lawrence waterway.

The letter reached the White House more than a week ago, was answered on Aug. 13 by Acting Secretary of State William R. Castle Jr., and since that time the correspondence has reposed in state department files while the White House repeatedly denied knowledge of its existence.

In admitting today that the Roosevelt letter had arrived, the White House and state department announced that the New York governor had been told that the St. Lawrence policy was in status quo, that no new negotiations were under way at that time, negotiations began in the interest of New York state will not be neglected."

Letter Not Made Public.

The Roosevelt letter was not made public. Dispatches that originated in Albany and appeared in New York newspapers last week stated that Gov. Roosevelt had made a virtual demand for facts about the waterway negotiations.

Mr. Castle's reply last Thursday evening was as follows:

"The President referred to me your letter requesting negotiations with Canada on the subject of the waterway. At that it is possible to say that there has been no negotiations of any kind are going on. It is obvious that when the time comes the interest of New York state will not be neglected."

The letter said further in a personal manner and contained some personal reference to Mr. Castle long has known Mr. Roosevelt. These allusions were omitted from the letter as made public here today.

The White House explanation today as made by Theodore G. Joslin, secretary to the President, was that no mention had been made of the receipt of such a letter from Gov. Roosevelt, but only of the existence of secret negotiations.

Reporters Get Different Story.

This does not square with the understanding of newspaper reporters who last week repeatedly inquired of the White House through Mr. Joslin as to whether a letter had been received. Their understanding was, from very direct English, that the White House had no knowledge of the Roosevelt letter.

The state department at the same time repeatedly stated that it could find no trace of the letter and finally positively declared that none had been received after it had checked with the White House. It transpired today that the letter was given by the President personally to Mr. Castle late last Thursday for the acting secretary of state to answer in a personal communication. This Mr. Castle did about 7 o'clock last Thursday evening and then left for the train to go to Hot Springs. Therefore, there was no record of it in the state department as no other state department officials knew of it. Mr. Castle returned this morning from Hot Springs and when the matter was called to his attention immediately cleared up the mystery.

DEMOCRATS ASK NEW YORK QUIZ IN G. O. P. CITIES

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The Democrats struck back at the Hofstadter committee today. Senator John J. Dunnigan prepared a petition which he will submit to Gov. F. D. Roosevelt, asking him to extend the New York City investigation to Republican cities upstate, and Controller Morris S. Tremaine refused to pay the committee's stenographers.

Mr. Tremaine, who is a Democrat, said that he would not pay the expenses of the stenographic work which has been done through the summer months because the rates allowed by Samuel Seabury, committee counsel, are higher than the established state rate.

Exceeds State Rate.

The investigation has been paying the same rate the city of New York pays, 30 cents a folio. The state pays 50 cents. Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, committee chairman, said that he hoped to "iron things out" when he meets the controller in Albany soon.

Senator Dunnigan said his petition would go to the governor tomorrow. Among the cities he wants investigated are Binghamton, Buffalo, Rochester, and Syracuse, all Republican strongholds.

He will charge that corruption and inefficiency exist and that Republican city machines have plundered public funds.

Truck Inquiry Planned.

While this Democratic counter move was going forward, questioning of witnesses by assistants to Samuel Seabury continued and it was learned that George H. Trask is looking into a complaint that 304 trucks used by the department of sanitation for garbage disposal are deteriorating with undue rapidity. These vehicles cost $1,000,000, and with the present city plan to spend $3,000,000 for other trucks in mind, Mr. Trask is going into the specifications of the trucks complained about.

WHITTLE MARGIN TO $35,000 ON THE NEW POSTOFFICE

Reports that a difference of only $35,000 on a fifteen million dollar project was causing Washington authorities to delay letting the contract for the new postoffice and consider advertising for new bids reached Chicago yesterday.

Meanwhile dispatches from Washington said that treasury officials expected a decision today as to whether the contract would be let to John Griffiths & Son, the low bidders, following a conference with a representative of that firm.

Subordinate officials of the treasury department expressed confidence that the Griffiths firm would get the contract, but it was indicated that attempts would be made to induce them to cut their figure.

11 KILLED WHEN STORMS STRIKE BRITISH COAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The whole south coast of England was lashed today by a gale which blew a 20 foot tide against the shore, forcing the evacuation of 500 seaside cottages at Winchelsea and threatening structures all along the cliffs.

Already eleven deaths as result of the storm have been reported.

The storm is the culmination of the worst summer weather Great Britain has known in 35 years. Vacationers were forced to flee from their bungalows this afternoon and automobiles are now standing submerged 700 yards above the usual tide mark. A number of drownings and deaths from lightning has been reported.

"The Old Order Changeth, yielding place to new"

The Seashore in the 90's—seems old-fashioned today, but no more so than automatic refrigerators that are full of noise and machinery.

Noisy automatic refrigerators seem positively antique alongside the absolute noiselessness of Electrolux

IT IS plain good sense to discard obsolete ways of doing things, to adopt newer, better methods. And that's why so many people are turning to Electrolux. Already more than 175,000 homes have chosen this modern automatic refrigerator that works without so much as a single moving part.

The whole thing is so simple. No machinery is used to circulate the refrigerant in Electrolux. All the work is done by a tiny gas flame and a tiny flow of water. Common ammonia, little stronger than the household kind, is first evaporated, then condensed. That's all there is to it, and the result is constant, steady cold, abundance of ice cubes. The chilling action never ceases, but goes on continuously. And the refrigerant itself is hermetically sealed within a rigid steel unit; the gas flame completely protected by an automatic shut-off.

There's never any noise from this refrigerator, and there never will be. It has nothing that moves, therefore nothing to wear and vibrate, even after years of constant service.

Stranger still, the operating cost of this ideal refrigerator is far less than what most people spend for refrigeration. Never more than about five cents a day for both gas and water.

Electrolux is easily installed. Connections for gas and water are through concealed flexible copper tubing, and are quickly made for you by your gas company. And this is important to remember—should your Electrolux ever need adjustment, you get the prompt, efficient kind of service for which your gas company is famous.

These unparalleled advantages, present in no other refrigerator, have made Electrolux the choice of prominent architects and builders everywhere. It is featured in luxurious apartments, shown with pride in fine private homes.

There are 10 household models to choose from, ranging from 3 cu. ft. to 20 cu. ft. capacity. Despite the unique advantages of Electrolux, its prices are no higher. If you want to be sure of getting the most for your money in an automatic refrigerator, see this one at the nearest showroom of your gas company. When renting an apartment, look for Electrolux in the kitchen. And for complete information by mail, write us or phone Wabash 6000.

THE KITCHEN BEAUTIFUL—a roomy, beautiful Electrolux model—extremely popular for families of 9 to 5 persons.

A thing you almost forget the glow of all moving parts.

ELECTROLUX

THE Gas REFRIGERATOR

COSTS LESS TO OPERATE

Electrolux is the world's most economical refrigerator. It operates for about five cents a day—less than the cost of any other means of refrigeration.

CERMAK BACKS DRIVE TO START W. SIDE HIGHWAY

Joined by Whealan in Plea to State.

Mayor Cermak and President Whealan of the county board yesterday enthusiastically indorsed the proposal that money be provided from the state highway fund for a start of construction this winter on an elevated highway through the west side of Chicago.

EMMETT WHEALAN.

The two officials pledged their support to the highway project following the meeting of Gov. Emmerson's unemployment relief commission at the Stevens hotel, which they attended. Several other prominent members of the commission also advocated the superhighway construction plan as an immediate and practical method of providing employment and at the same time giving the city an urgently needed public improvement.

No Raise in Taxes.

Members of the commission approving the project stressed the fact that it would furnish jobs to approximately 30,000 men and put $363,000 a day into circulation through pay rolls without directly or indirectly raising taxes. The legislature, at a special session, could appropriate $22,000,000, the amount needed, from the idle $50,000,000 highway fund.

"I have been heartily in favor of the west side highway and now I am in favor of it more than ever," declared Mayor Cermak. "Everybody knows the unemployment situation we are facing when the snow starts to fly. It would be a wonderful thing if the state could step in and put thousands of men to work earning an honest living. More jobs mean less charity and it is perfectly plain that if is going to be a tremendous task to keep families from actual starvation."

Whealan Tells His Views.

Mr. Whealan said he agreed fully with the mayor that immediate action on a big public improvement would furnish unemployment relief in its best form. He said he hoped Gov. Emmerson would give the most careful consideration to demands that a substantial share of the highway fund be spent at once in Cook county.

Others attending the governor's commission meeting who approved the principle of putting a part of the highway fund to work in Chicago on a major highway project included Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university; Bernard J. Mullaney, vice president of the Peoples Gas, Light, and Coke company; State Representative R. G. Soderstrom of Streator, Ill., vice president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, James Mullenbach, former member of the school board and labor representative; and Ald. James B. Waller, chairman of the city council committee on unemployment.

Opposed to More Taxes.

"I am opposed to further governmental expenditures that would involve tax increases," commented President Scott, "but surely where idle money is available its expenditure at the present time to put men to work would be wise and timely."

Organized labor already had placed itself on record in behalf of the elevated highway project through a resolution adopted by the Chicago Federation of Labor. The statements of Representative Soderstrom and Mr. Mullenbach demonstrated further the eagerness of the labor leaders to get it started. They declared that workers throughout the city would benefit if the employment slack could be taken up by such an undertaking.

"It's one of the soundest, simplest, sanest things that has been suggested," asserted Ald. Waller. "If we could get some of that idle state highway money working in Chicago this winter it would help us immensely."

Another west side business leader joined yesterday in the movement to bring about action on the highway at a special session of the legislature. He was Clarence Kavanaugh, president of the West Side Commercial league and a director of the West Town Chamber of Commerce. He said he believed the prospect of 30,000 new jobs would stimulate business throughout the city and at least take the edge off the unemployment problem during the winter.

An indictment was returned by the grand jury yesterday against Mrs. Bernice O'Connor, 24 years old, for the slaying of her former husband, Edward Joseph O'Connor, on July 21 in her apartment at 4330 Lake Park avenue. Mrs. O'Connor was formerly employed as a cigaret girl at the Via Lago café, and police are searching for Willie Wong, a Chinese, for questioning concerning the shooting.

42 PASSENGERS OF MANITOU ON TRAIN FOR HOME

The 42 passengers of the steamship Manitou, which went aground Sunday in a fog near Mud lake, Owen sound, Ontario, have been transferred by a tug to Sault Ste. Marie and last night they were on their way back to Chicago by rail.

Favorable conditions of the water and position of the boat made the transfer easy, according to H. P. Caufield, assistant to the president of the Michigan Transit company, owners of the boat. Two tugs were working last night to pull the ship from the mud. The ship sailed from Chicago last Friday and was due to return today.

GOVERNOR'S JOB BOARD TACKLES WINTER RELIEF

Reports Increasing Want Among Poor Folk.

present, appreciate the work of the governor's commission last winter, when I as president of the county board had the duty of providing fuel, food and clothing for the poor of Cook county. The demand now is getting greater and greater. If the money were in hand it is none too early to begin aid now.

"I am fearful of what will happen if assistance is not available before the snow flies. It is necessary for every one to give, and give until it hurts, if we would keep some of the children from starvation. There is not a thing you will ask me as mayor to do that I will not do promptly and cheerfully."

Suggest Honor Tax.

The mayor suggested an honor tax of 1 per cent by the retailers, wholesalers, and factories on all goods sold on one day a week for twenty weeks. He reckons this would raise $5,000,000. He, as well as the governor, asserted that many who gave last winter will be unable to contribute to this campaign.

Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, said that he dreaded to think of the conditions approaching without the aid of such an organization as the governor's commission. He pledged full cooperation.

Work of Governor's Board.

The new plan assigns to the governor's commission the function of organizing and coördinating for the unemployment emergency in the state. All executive work and raising and distributing of funds is to be done through local organizations.

The new plan in detail was presented to the commission by D. F. Kelly and unanimously adopted. In Cook county the local unit will be the joint emergency relief fund. It will be the official and sole representative of the governor's commission in Cook county. It will have a membership of 100 and a board of directors of not more than 30 members, among whom will be representatives of all of the major public and private organizations which do extensive charity service.

After the meeting of the governor's commission the local joint emergency organization met and organized by electing Mayor Cermak honorary chairman; President Whelan of the county board, honorary vice chairman; Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman; Clifford Barnes, vice chairman; Victor Olander, vice chairman; Frank D. Loomis, secretary, and Joseph E. Otis, treasurer.

The executive and budget committee of this Chicago unit is composed of Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman, Clifford Barnes, vice chairman; Frank D. Loomis, secretary, and Howard W. Fenton, James B. Forgan, D. F. Kelly, Sol Kline, Lewis E. Myers, and Victor Olander, with the mayor and Mr. Otis as ex officio members. Mr. Ryerson said that plans for raising the millions for relief will be formulated and announced in a few days.

Reports on Relief Work.

Mr. Ryerson, as chairman of the budget and relief committees of last winter, reported that a total of $5,025,806 in subscriptions was received in the campaign for funds conducted under the leadership of Philip R. Clarke. Between Oct. 1 and Aug. 1, last, the emergency relief supplied was as follows:

Families in own homes	$4,812,948.63
Shelter and food for homeless	261,156.24
Children's care	54,469.91
Clinic and medical service	47,969.53
Total	$4,956,834.65

Mr. Ryerson reported that a total of 138,011 families in Cook county had been relieved to the extent of $5,082,091, of which the governor's commission raised 85 per cent.

On Distribution of Funds.

Of this total $3,481,857 was distributed to 94,733 families in their own homes through the United, Catholic, and Jewish charities, Red Cross and Salvation Army; $26,847 was spent on milk for 8,397 other families; $72,870 was expended for clothes for 13,803 families; $1,100,000 was spent to employ 8,223 heads of families on "made work"; $64,977 was distributed to 37 neighborhood settlements for about 9,000 homes; $51,763 was given to 6,700 families in varied donations, and $284,369 was donated to 10,850 families in the country districts of Cook county.

Mr. Ryerson discussed the special aid given to individual members of families. Under this heading he said that $129,823 was spent to buy clothing for 23,051 school children. Other children were supplied with 558,126 school lunches at an average cost of five cents each or a total of $27,500. A total of 23,493 other children were given free clinic service at a cost of $108,435; and still other children were placed in boarding homes for a total of 3,922 months at a cost of $238,342.

$251,883 Spent for Homeless.

For homeless men and women $251,883 was spent. On one night the relief forces provided lodgings for 6,904 men, and on another day supplied 15,141 free meals to homeless men.

The average number of families cared for per month, between Oct. 1 and July 1 last, was 21,165, as compared with 8,491 for the same period of the preceding 12 months.

Woolworth Head Certain Slump Is Over.

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The flagship Leviathan of the United States Lines brought into this port today one of the most refreshingly optimistic gentlemen to land here in some time—an American business man of the first rank, who talked to ledger books dotted with black instead of red and quoted figures to support his assertions.

F. W. PARSON. [A. P. Photo.]

As he leaned against the rail chatting, one gathered the impression that Hubert T. Parson, president of F. W. Woolworth company, had done more than cast a cursory glance over the foreign side of industry and enterprise.

Business conditions are improving readily in Europe, he said, particularly in France. The department stores are going ahead and doing well.

Only Bankers Still Gloomy.

"You still hear pessimistic talk from the bankers," he admitted, "but I am convinced the turn has come, and that the rank and file of business is encouraged. This is true of Germany, England and especially France."

As Mr. Parson talked he dug into his pocket and produced a small memorandum sheet.

"On June 1 of this year our company was $2,200,000 behind our June 1 figure of last year," he stated, "but at Aug. 1 we were only $696,000 behind our figure for the same period a year ago.

"This means that where we were 1 per cent behind on June 1, we are less than 1 per cent behind now, and we expect to pick up during August. By Sept. 1 we expect to be ahead of our Sept. 1 figure for 1930.

Foreign Stores Gain.

"The various English branches of the company were 10.23 per cent ahead of the 1930 figure on June 1 and 12.37 per cent ahead on Aug. 1, is still. The German figures were 3.8 per cent ahead on June 1 and 35 per cent ahead on Aug. 1."

The head of Woolworth's conceded that any chain organization is up against a fairly stiff proposition in these times because of the natural antipathy of the people toward dealing with any one but the traditional storekeeper.

"We have trouble," he said, "because we can't get things made in our own stores. We can get only about 15 per cent of the things we sell in France and we can't make a profit importing."

Youth Confesses Fifteen Robberies in Evanston

Fifteen minor burglaries committed in Evanston last winter were solved last night by the confession of Peter Mangos, 21 years old, an escaped convict. He was convicted as a safe blower in Omaha two months ago, and escaped from two deputies July 10. Evanston police seized him Sunday night at the home of his sister, Mrs. Louise Manouris, 1223 Brown avenue, Evanston. Last night Mangos told of fifteen house breakings which were committed, he said, before he went to Omaha last spring.

Autoist Gets Jail Term, Fine for Drunken Driving

Peter August, 21 years old, 2233 Ellis Island avenue, charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, was fined $100 and sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction by Judge Samuel Heller yesterday. Testimony showed that his car struck another in which W. S. Warnock, 1524 Jarvis terrace, and his wife were riding, on Sunday, and that he struck Mrs. Warnock when she stepped on the running board of his car to talk to his friend. Warnock held August until the police arrived.

COURIER NURSES' INQUEST.

An inquest into the slaying of Jacob Horan, 31 years old, 1227 South Campbell avenue, who was killed Saturday night at Ashland and Washington avenues, was continued yesterday when Edward Hadley, 4440 South Lowe avenue, a witness in the case, testified that he could not identify the gunman who shot Horan.

AIR HOSTESS

MADELINE MOON.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 17.—Miss Madeline Moon, former Northwestern University co-ed and attractive member of the younger set at Montclair, N. J., will fly as hostess on Eastern Air Transport planes between New York and Atlanta, Georgia.

She lives at Montclair with her sister and brother-in-law, Maj. E. E. Aldrin, head of the aviation department of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and a former Army flyer.

Miss Moon is a graduate of Rockford High school and attended Northwestern in 1924 and 1925, residing at Chapin hall while there. She is a native Chicagoan but left there when her father, an Army chaplain at Camp Grant, Rockford, was transferred to Fort Bliss, Texas, at El Paso, in 1925. While at El Paso she completed her college work at the El Paso Junior college.

TWO GUN BANDIT CAPTURED AFTER WILD AUTO CHASE

A two gun bandit ran wild on the south side last night, and ended up in a police cell after a series of escapades, the last of which gave half a dozen policemen of the Woodlawn station an uncomfortable moment. He was too befuddled with moonshine to identify himself.

The gunman first appeared at 63d street and Cottage Grove avenue, where he hired the taxi of John Bangert, 5314 South Halsted street. He directed to be taken to 6252 Stony Island avenue. There he lurched away without paying his fare, and Bangert summoned Vernon Williams, 6105 Langley avenue, another chauffeur.

In the 6300 block in Harper avenue, the gunman boarded the automobile occupied by Joachim Castrejou and Miss Anna Barsema, both of 6023 Harper avenue. He drew a revolver, shoved Castrejou to one side, and drove away, still holding his revolver in one hand.

At 63d street and Harper avenue he crashed into another machine. He was seized by the two taxi drivers and Policeman J. M. P. Bird, who took the gun.

At the Woodlawn station the prisoner suddenly reached into his pocket and pulled out a second revolver, but the policemen present disarmed him.

UP TO CONGRESS TO FIX STATUS OF FOX RIVER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—If anything is to be done in the way of improving Illinois' Fox river, some Illinois senator or representative will have to take the initiative, it became apparent today, as Bob Becker's recent stories in THE TRIBUNE about the stream that's legally navigable and actually isn't began to create a Washington reaction.

It is up to congress to abandon the Fox river as a navigable stream or to pass an appropriation to make it navigable in fact. So far as could be learned from the war department corps of engineers no federal funds have been spent in recent years, if ever, on improving the Fox. Yet, unless a study recently instituted determined otherwise, the Fox river belongs to the navigable category under the law.

Affected by Decision.

That there are dams without locks across it, and that it is impassable at many points during the dry season, does not alter the case if the logic of a United States Supreme court decision in 1921 affecting the Des Plaines river be applied. The court held in that case, which was an appeal by the Economy Light and Power company from a ruling enjoining the construction of a dam, that artificial obstructions abatable by public authority do not render nonnavigable in law a stream which in its natural state will be navigable in fact.

Presumably, by taking the matter into court, the owners of the obstructing dams could be made to alter them to permit the passage of boats; for it has been ruled in the case of bridges that the government can require the owner to alter them in conformity with modern needs and without compensation.

As an important water highway—and its importance lasted as late as 1856—the title to the Fox river passed to the people—that is, to the federal government—under the ordinance of 1787 with its provision that all navigable streams in the Mississippi and St. Lawrence watersheds shall forever be free to the citizens of the United States.

Without U. S. Ruling.

In 1840 the Fox river was declared navigable by act of the Illinois legislature. More recent rulings, notably one by the power commission, have continued to call it navigable, though the point has never been decided by the federal Supreme court.

Under this interpretation riparian owners who have wished to improve the river have had to get permission from the war department and sometimes have had trouble in getting it. Other owners, as appears in a report in 1918 by the Illinois rivers and lakes commission, have filled in the channel beyond the meander line defining their property. Many buildings in Aurora and Elgin are built so far out that the commission found that they constituted encroachments on public property.

Though assuming jurisdiction and limiting the rights of riparian owners the federal government has done nothing in the way of improving the stream. No suggestion for a preliminary survey has come from within the war department, and since it is customary not to commence a survey unless it is officially requested, according to the corps of engineers, it is probable that the Fox river will continue to be blocked by dams, bars, rocks, and weeds until some Illinois congressman comes to the rescue.

According to the Illinois commission the cost of improving the Fox river would not be great. For example, the commission estimated that from Algonquin to Yorkville a channel 20 feet wide and three feet deep with marine railways at the dams could be constructed for $65,000.

Lincoln Park Police Get Medals for Marksmanship

President Warren Wright of the Lincoln park board yesterday pinned medals on twelve members of the park police force who stood highest in each of the four classes of expert, distinguished sharpshooter, sharpshooter, and marksman in the pistol competition held last month by the department. Gold, silver and bronze medals were awarded to the policemen who stood first, second and third, respectively, in the four classes.

Right after the war you got about TWO tire miles for one cent. Today you get nearer THIRTY

Why buy a Second-Choice Tire when First-Choice costs no more?

You expect bargains these days in everything you buy, but in almost no other article can you find such extraordinary value as in a Goodyear Tire.

Prices are the lowest in the history of the automobile—but, more than that, quality is the highest.

As an example, in 1918 the price of a 30 x 3½ cord (the commonest size) was $41.65. Now, a Goodyear balloon for the same make of car (size 28 x 4.75-19) sells for $8.55.

That's only about a fifth of the price; and it's putting it modestly to say that today's Goodyears will give three times the mileage.

Right after the war you got about two tire miles for a cent. Today you get nearer thirty for a cent from Goodyears.

And that's not saying a word about the incomparably greater comfort and style and safety of the new standard All-Weather Tread Tire as Goodyear builds it now!

Isn't it short-sighted to risk delays and danger on threadbare tires when the first-choice tire of the world can be bought at today's record-breaking low prices?

Of course it is! And when you buy new tires let your commonsense answer the question, "Why buy a second-choice tire, when first-choice costs no more?"

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

JAPAN AND OUR PEACE EFFORTS.

The rumpus in Japan over the blunders of two American stunt flyers who failed to provide themselves with the required permit to enter Japan by air and added to the offense by lightheartedly snapshotting a Japanese fortification is worthy of public note in this country.

At Washington in 1922 the United States entered into a treaty of peace with Japan and backed it up with an immediate cessation of our capital ship building, which in four or five years would have given us the most powerful battle fleet in the world. Not content with this sacrifice, it agreed not to fortify any bases in the West Pacific and not to strengthen the Philippine base. After that conference the American government stopped building in cruisers until it had fallen so far below the agreed ratio of naval power, while all the other conference powers speeded up their building, that it was constrained to make another attempt at limitation in 1927, which attempt was abortive. Thereupon a cruiser building program was adopted to restore our navy to the auxiliary strength in the ratio agreed upon for battleships, but in 1930 we called another conference in the hope of bringing about limitation and reduction. The net result of our policy and action since 1922 is that the ratio of 5-5-3, which had been agreed upon for capital ships, and had assumed erroneously would be followed in auxiliary building, has now become 5 for ourselves, 5.3 for Great Britain, and 3.25 for Japan.

Thus, as a result entirely of American initiative, our relative naval strength has diminished and that of Great Britain and Japan has advanced. At the Washington conference alone our concessions made it virtually impossible through the surrender of the right to create and increase naval bases for our fleet to carry on major operations or any other serious operations in the waters or against the Asiatic communications of Japan.

No nation ever received more substantial proof of friendly intent than Japan from the United States at Washington and since that conference. We were encouraged to give this proof at heavy sacrifice of our existing and potential strength by the expectation that it would quiet any legitimate anxieties the people and government of Japan were troubled with respecting the purposes of the United States.

That seemed a reasonable hope, but there have been no signs that it is to be realized. The astonishing exaggeration of the offenses of two civilian aviators trying to make a record round-the-world flight reveals either that the Japanese political leaders and press think it profitable to manufacture causes of affront and ill feeling or that our acts of friendly sacrifice have made no impression upon the Japanese mind.

There will be American organizations which will invite us to make still further sacrifices for the sake of proving again our pacific disposition toward Japan. Common sense will reject that folly. What the American people ought to and we trust will conclude from such experiences is that our efforts to conciliate Japanese opinion, or, indeed, the opinion of any other rival nation, have been largely futile and that the only self-respecting course is to maintain our proper strength without apology.

We pledged peace to Japan in solemn treaty. The row over the aviators tells us that the Japanese do not concede the good faith of that pledge. We backed that treaty by voluntary surrender of our means to attack Japan in her waters. Japan now ignores this sacrifice, although it makes their assumed fears ridiculous. We have followed studiously since the Washington sacrifices a policy and course of action which have reduced our relative naval strength and advanced that of Japan, but the row over the aviators and the untriendliness shown us in this petty episode is a clear warning that our altruism and our pacific endeavors are either disbelieved or taken as an encouragement for further exactions upon our complaisant diplomacy.

We are approaching another international conference for reduction or limitation of armament. At each of these proceedings, except the stalemate conference of 1927, Japanese diplomacy has demanded new concessions and in fact has increased its relative strength. If we had followed the same course Japan would not be looking for causes of affront or cultivating belligerent sentiment toward us among its people.

UNDER THE COTTON BALE.

What the cotton states do not want from the farm board is advice. The planters were told to plow every third row under to reduce the crop. One retort from the cotton belt was for the farm board to plow itself under. No one wants advice from the farm board. The wheat states didn't want it. What they all want and all they want is money. They want to produce to capacity and have the farm board take up the crop. The board is to function as the law of demand.

The board has endeavored to stand between the growers and experience. It has tried to deny realities and to repeal natural laws which will not obey the mandate. Experience is sometimes the kindest as well as a hard teacher. Compromising with it, trying to evade its conclusions, may delay them only to make them more painful. In the end a settlement will be required. The cotton growers have swamped the market. The government helped them to do it and they have the consequences of it on their hands. The farm board has been a costly futility and apparently the smash is yet to come. All the government has succeeded in doing has been to guarantee that when it does come it will be bigger and sadder than it otherwise would have been.

ROOSEVELT AND TAMMANY.

The call for a special session of the New York legislature is taken to mean that Gov. Roosevelt has made his awaited decision and elects to discard Tammany in promoting his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the presidency. The special session is to grant enlarged powers to the Hofstadter investigating committee. Tammany is in one of its periodic escapes of sewer gas and New York politics has taken a turn from bad to worse in the public eye. A New York Democrat with aspirations in national politics has to consider how far he may expect to go with Tammany and how far without it.

Gov. Roosevelt has had to weigh his chances. Without Tammany he might not even get started in the nominating convention. With it he might find the finish was almost coincident with the start. Without his state he would be an orphan; with it, under Tammany indorsement, he might be a ruined candidate at the very beginning.

With the variety of New York scandals which blow up faster than they can be suppressed, Tammany is likely to be again exhibit A of rotten government in the United States, a monumental public scandal which will destroy the candidacy it supports. Gov. Roosevelt requires the character of a liberal reformer to make urbanism acceptable to the rustic Democrat. The countryside is shocking itself into a state of mind over metropolitan aspects of American life, partly as a protection against perceiving the mash cooking down by the old mill and the more egregious faults of bucolic hilarity.

Tammany probably will be just such an asset to a candidate as a millstone would be to a man in twenty feet of water. Gov. Roosevelt evidently has come to that conclusion.

THE THIRD DEGREE.

The sensational charges of a report on police methods by the Wickersham commission have stirred the Chicago committee on civil liberties to protest. The report is objected to as giving the impression that the Chicago police are exceptionally or extraordinarily addicted to the use of the third degree, whereas the civil liberties body asserts that the conditions it bases its report upon existed under a previous police administration and have been corrected by Acting Commissioner Alcock. This supports the latter's indignant denial, and, as the protest comes from a group of citizens who cannot be charged with insensitiveness to the evil complained of or partial to any official who is guilty of the abuse of power, it must be a gratifying assurance to the community that present police methods do not include brutality, at least so far as the orders and policy of the head of the department can be made effective.

The third degree is, of course, unlawful as well as inhumane. It is also in the main ineffective in discovering the truth. The use of torture to extort confession was given up centuries ago, partly because it offended the growing humaneness of society in civilized countries, but also and perhaps chiefly because experience and reason taught that it produced more evil than good. The use of force to extort what passes at first for evidence destroys in most cases the value of the evidence. It is not only cruel but probably in most cases ineffectual. It may seem often the easier method of obtaining information, but it is not one which the American conscience will tolerate. In obscure cases it may persist in spite of public opinion or official orders, but it should be severely punished whenever discovered. It can be rooted out if it is never condoned by authorities.

On the other hand, charges against the police need the best possible verification. They are likely to be inspired by unscrupulous individuals bent on defeating justice by any means. We think the commission of inquiry in this case has been careless in framing its report, if not unduly credulous in its acceptance of testimony. But, if injustice has been done the present administration of the police, the public will be glad to be assured by citizens who have troubled to inform themselves that the third degree is discredited with our present police command. There should be no doubt that the community would indignantly disapprove the use of lawless violence by the police and would wish it drastically punished when found.

COMFORT IN SUMMER TRAVEL.

[Illinois State Register.]

The initiative displayed by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad in putting into service an entire train in which air cooling and air conditioning equipment has been installed augurs business getting possibilities which should go far in repopularizing travel by rail in the immediate future.

The "refrigerated" or air cooled diner put in its appearance a year ago when the Baltimore and Ohio and the Santa Fé system introduced this feature on their summer trains. Other roads have also added such diners, but the B. & O.'s special is the first complete service to be rendered in trains thus equipped.

It is reported that the train which has been air cooled has been averaging three times the patronage it enjoyed when equipped in the usual way, and such has been the interest and appreciation and comment that more complete trains of this kind are said to be planned by the B. & O., and rival roads are preparing to meet the competition.

Automobiles and bus lines have made great inroads into the business of the railroads, but it is conceivable that if the older common carrier is able to perfect its facilities to a point where the traditional irritants of heat and dust and grime can be largely eliminated it will be in a position to reclaim much passenger traffic during the warm months.

The scope of service requirements broadens every year in every line of business. With the railroads, the twin elements of speed and comfort have been well emphasized and in the summer time it would seem that such facilities as air cooled trains should make a strong appeal. The experience of clubs, cafés, and theaters in thus catering to the public has been a real object lesson in appreciation and increased patronage during the heated term. And, we opine, it will prove equally popular with the traveling public.

TOO MUCH SUNLIGHT.

SUNLIGHT is a powerful medicine. All such medicines are powerful for good if used when they are needed and if they are properly used. They are powerful for harm if used improperly.

In certain parts of the world there are people who avoid exposure to sunlight at all seasons of the year. Among them there is much rickets and tetany in childhood, and much osteomalacia in adult life. In this part of the world the people are disposed to get too little sunshine in winter and too much in summer. They suffer from famine for something like six months and they gorge to excess for several months, sunlight being the food with which they are overfed.

Thousands of them are engaged in acquiring a tan from which they will never completely recover. In some these tans will go on to a leathery condition, known by some as weather-beaten, while others will acquire horny patches, some of which will eventually develop into epitheliomas. However, the great majority will suffer no more than a loss of fineness of skin texture and delicateness of skin coloring.

Of those who are now engaged in making trouble for themselves some will become sensitized to light or heat. Of these some will acquire a kind of nettle rash due to light. Others will acquire headaches caused by exposure to light.

Kipling has written of a peculiar form of nervous on-edgeness which develops among people exposed to a combination of excessive light and heat. Light is essential to maturing. It causes seed to sprout and, after that, it causes growth of the plant, formation of its parts, flowering, and the formation of seed. In other words, it contributes to genesis, maturing, and senescence. If the same principle be applied to the human plant it is fair to conclude that whatever promotes the growth of the child, the development of the adolescent, the maturing of the adult also contributes to senescence and ultimate senility.

If this reasoning be correct, exposure to sunlight is good to promote the health of young people, but older ones who would ward off senility and the group of diseases that go with it should avoid excessive exposure to light. Just as an illustration: There is more cataract in India and Egypt than in all the world outside the regions of tropical glare.

RUM RUNNERS' GAS.

Mrs. J. M. K. writes: Please explain toxic gas used by rum runners. The public was warned against this gas today over the radio. I did not get all the speaker said. I think it was called toxic gas and it affected the eyes. Just how does it affect the eyes and is it used?

REPLY.

This gas is related to one of the tear gases used during the world war. These gases are more irritating than poisonous. They disable you and stop you by making the eyes water and causing membranes to burn. They strangle.

Gases of this group are heavy. They do not disperse readily. They settle in pockets and they are absorbed by various substances, causing them to irritate.

IT IS NOT POSSIBLE.

M. H. F. writes: I have read of a man being brought back to life after nine hours under water. Is that possible?

REPLY.

It is not. Nothing is gained by prolonged efforts to resuscitate people who have been under water for more than a few minutes. If the upper air passages are cleared, the water is drained by gravity. Heat is applied and if a few minutes of artificial respiration is unavailing further attempts are useless.

BONDHOLDER'S RIGHTS.

Chicago, Aug. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a bondholder in a hotel corporation now in the hands of a receiver. My bonds as well as others, totaling $90,000, were put up as security for a mortgage on certain property, and this corporation was to build a hotel. We believe there is a fraud, which I would like to prove, connected with this whole transaction, as now we find a second mortgage for $10,000 just put on the property recently, the property being vacant. 1. Can I myself hire a good real estate lawyer to protect my own interest in this case? 2. Would the lawyer have to take all the bondholders as a whole? 3. What facts must one have to show the state's attorney's office in order to have them investigate a case like this? H. Z.

1. Yes.

2. It may be that the trust indenture requires that a certain percentage of the bondholders join in case of foreclosure, but there would be nothing to prevent any individual to employ an attorney to advise and represent him out of court.

3. For us to imagine and describe all possible facts would make this answer of undue length.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—"A" legally entered the United States from Canada, but in preparing his first paper gave the year as 1919 instead of 1922 as the date of his arrival. How can this mistake be rectified? J. S. W.

The first paper, being now more than seven years old, is void. A new first paper should be prepared, giving the correct information. Forms may be obtained in room 776 postoffice building.

PERSONAL MAIL.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can an employer open mail addressed to one of his employés when it is marked personal? 2. After two letters addressed in this way had been opened, what steps should be taken by the employé? 3. If the employé has no funds to fight suit, what can be done? A. G.

1. If the mail was addressed in care of the business, it is reasonable, in many businesses, to insist on the employer seeing it in order to guard against the employé's conducting a secret business in competition with the employer. If the employé enters the business or continues in the employment, knowing that this is the understanding, he would have no basis for objection.

2 and 3. It does not seem probable that there would be any effective legal relief on the bare facts stated.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Ring Lardner

"BIG BILL" TILDEN, for ten successive years America's ranking amateur and now world's professional tennis champion, rates British players about a year or two in advance of American in their quest of the Davis international cup now held by France. That is largely because of his high appraisal of Austin and Perry.

France's cup lifting and cup defending "Big Four," consisting of Cochet, Lacoste, Borotra and Brugnon, are definitely on the decline, in Tilden's opinion. French oncoming youngsters are behind the British and Americans in experience and development. That is why tenure of the Davis cup by France is imperiled.

Between matches of his professional appearance in Evanston Saturday, Tilden talked freely of net conditions in this country. He was so frank in his comment on Yankee youngsters that we will not repeat it in fairness to him and to them. Yet he foresees the time when the United States again will hold the international trophy. Especially sweet was he on the future of Sidney Wood.

As an amateur, Tilden often was temperamental to the point of irritating the gallery. Yet the Wake-Line always liked him, both for his skill and period of competition, which probably place him at the head of all-time net stars, and for his courage in battling tennis officials in many controversies.

In our conversation Lacoste's name was mentioned in connection with mechanical perfection, and we vouchsafed "Yes, but his play was almost uninteresting at times, so monotonous was his defense, in waiting for a break." "Yes," replied Tilden, if he and Koseluh here [Koseluh was sitting nearby] were playing a match they'd never finish the first set." Koseluh laughed, which prompted Tilden to add, "I don't believe they'd ever finish the first game."

Tilden keeps in remarkable physical condition for a man of 38 years in so exacting a sport as tennis. If the drys can derive any comfort or propaganda from it, Tilden never has used intoxicants. He says that early in his career he consulted an eminent authority on the subject who told him that drinks of alcoholic content affected the vision in so fast a sport. "But you smoke cigarets," we countered. "I didn't for many years," he replied. "But tobacco affects the vision, too, doesn't it?" He answered, "Yes, I suppose so, but you can play off that effect, but this physician said it was not so with drink." So young tennis players may have this opinion for whatever it is worth to them.

One time at Philadelphia between Davis cup matches Tilden came into the clubhouse. We thought, of course, he would lie down for rest. "How about a couple rubbers of bridge?" he inquired, and looked at us as a possible victim. We declined, as our bridge is not worth mentioning. George Lott and others made up a foursome. For mild stakes [we don't remember how much per point] Tilden "relaxed" for the next match.

A BIRD IN THE HAND OR TWO IN THE BUSH?

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 18, 1915.

ATLANTA, Ga.—Leo M. Frank's body tonight is on its way to Brooklyn for burial. Under a heavy police guard the body was placed aboard a Southern railway train which departed at midnight. On the train also are Mrs. Frank and several Atlanta friends of the family. The members of the mob that last night avenged the death of Mary Phagan by taking Frank from the Milledgeville prison farm, speeding him 100 miles to within sight of the girl's former home near Marietta and there hanging him to a tree, are unknown. They have vanished and tonight there appeared little chance that they will be identified.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—In an impassioned speech at a public banquet tonight, J. G. Woodward, mayor of Atlanta, Ga., who came west to attend the exposition, startled his hearers by rushing to the defense of the lynching of Leo M. Frank. He sounded a warning to former Gov. John M. Slaton against returning to Georgia.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The interstate commerce commission handed down its decision in the Rock Island railroad investigation, finding the W. H. Moore-Daniel G. Reid syndicate guilty of plundering the road and throwing it into a receivership for its own purposes. As a result of this finding the department of justice will probably proceed against the officers and directors of the road.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—With no loss of life so far reported, but with its water front demolished, three feet of water standing in the streets, and the property and shipping damage mounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, Galveston is recovering from the storm terror which bound it for 36 hours.

AUGUST 18, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Capt. Luke P. Colleran, chief of detectives, must face the civil service commission and, under oath, state whether he received $10 of the $75 collected from the state by the "fake" expense account of Detective Sergeants John J. Tracy and John Cramer, in connection with the bringing back to Chicago of a prisoner from Cleveland. The charge against Colleran was filed by Chief of Police O'Neil and the entire scandal is now in the hands of the civil service commission for full investigation.

CHICAGO.—Four persons were killed and fourteen injured by a grade crossing collision between a 47th street electric car of the Chicago City railway and a Pennsylvania railroad train. The place is a death trap, other fatal accidents having occurred there during the last ten years.

CHICAGO.—Warrants have been issued for the arrest of officials of the Knickerbocker Ice company in connection with the sale of impure ice and tomorrow warrants will be asked for the arrest of officers of the Lincoln Ice company, the Consumers Ice company and the A. Kirschbaum company, according to Commissioner Alfred H. Jones of the state pure food commission.

AUGUST 18, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The bulletin issued at 6:30 p. m. by the physicians attending President Garfield says: "The President's condition is even better than it was this morning. There has been no vomiting during the day. Moreover, a teaspoonful of beef extract has been twice administered by the mouth and not rejected and small quantities of water swallowed from time to time excite no nausea. The wound continues to do well. At present the pulse is 112, temperature 98.5, respiration 18." Aside from the bulletin, the doctors say that the President is holding his own, which is all they could ask under the circumstances. Dr. D. W. Bliss said that if there is no fever in the morning the President's chances will be good.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Charles J. Guiteau attempted to assassinate W. G. McGill, who has charge of him in jail. McGill, in passing Guiteau's cell, noticed a knife in the assassin's hand. The guard drew his revolver, leveled it at Guiteau and demanded the knife, whereupon the murderous ruffian jumped up and attempted to stab him.

THE SCHOOL INVESTIGATION.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—The governor's committee, which is going into the extravagant spending of local governments, should go further in its inquiry into school board methods. How can we expect to have good citizenship when neither teachers nor pupils can look up to the administrative power of the schools with any degree of respect?

During the last ten years many members of the school board have been men of fine character and reputation, but during a large part of the time the actual power has been in the hands of those who used it to personal and political advantage. Several of this type are still in positions of dangerous influence, and every employé in the school system who knows of any case of exploitation should write the facts to the governor's committee and insist that they carry their investigation through. A TEACHER.

CARTOONS AND CO-OPS.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—McCutcheon's front page cartoon of Aug. 4, TRIBUNE, is very misleading. While it is true that the chain store is pushing out unorganized independents, it has also forced out the badly managed chain. On the other hand, well organized independent stores are far ahead of Mr. Chain as they give honest, personal service, and better quality in all lines, helping at the same time to better the community by owning property, church and club membership, and donations to community papers and activities.

As for the second half of the cartoon, coöperative marketing and chain stores directed by Wall street are two different things. Still a small efficient markoting unit, highly organized, mechanized, and systematized, can benefit both farmer and consumer much more than the smaller unit and charge the consumer more because of the high overhead in organization. These gigantic coöperatives you speak of can only make a profit by buying up in overproduction and selling in slack production, using money borrowed from Uncle Sam to keep their heads above water. So in the end we pay more for their goods and let them use our tax money for working principal.

STANLEY O. CHRISTIANSON.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXES.

Chicago, Aug. 14.—The editorial "What Taxes Have Come to Mean" in today's TRIBUNE is very misleading. The editor says "If all personal property were discoverable for taxation the legal levy on it would be confiscatory."

If thirty billion of personal property were uncovered and added to the ten billion of real estate that is now taxed an average of 2 per cent on full value, no one believes the rate would remain 2 per cent of full value. If so, and taxes were collected, it would raise eight hundred million, and in our greatest spendthrift years the politicians never spent a third of that sum. Any one who knows that 1 and 2 make 4 knows that if the taxable property were increased four-fold there would be a cut in the rate—at least until the politicians got their breath. Any statement to the contrary is misleading or would be if it were not so manifestly false.

When all property, real and personal, is called upon to pay something like two-thirds of one per cent of full value real estate and, I think, personal property will pay willingly and we will all forget that threat of confiscation. As the above editorial says, "An equitable assessment of personal property taxes is not possible," but such a statement is misleading, for the same statement applies to real estate and all other taxes, both state and national. An equitable assessment is what we aim at but we will be satisfied with less.

JOHN R. ROSSMUSS.

TO A HIT AND RUN DRIVER.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—As nine out of ten people read THE TRIBUNE Voice of the People, I am in hopes that the man (that's too good a classification for him) who hit me with his automobile on Lincoln avenue and Sunnyside avenue on Saturday night, Aug. 1, 11:45 o'clock, while driving at a fast rate of speed on the wrong side of the street, reads this message. A typical hit and run driver, so low he couldn't touch a rail without the aid of a ladder, and on top of it all, I am unemployed, have been for several months, and now will need a great deal of medical attention before I will be in good enough shape to even walk around and look for work. A man like that who has no more sense of right, no more respect for humanity and no more respect for his own conscience [if he has one] than that, should not by any means be allowed to sit behind a wheel and drive a car. Well, though I can't walk very well, I can stand steadily enough to take a punch at this lover of humanity, and here's hoping we meet some day. Your printing this will afford a faithful reader of your column a great deal of satisfaction [this is all I'll probably get out of the whole affair] and I assure you I shall be very grateful.

A. P. WARNER.

EUREKA.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 11.—I would be much interested in seeing an article you might write on the following proposed law. First, to justify such law, we have the precedent of the Volstead act, which governs our personal behavior and clearly says we cannot spend money for liquor, so it would be just as reasonable to pass another law as follows:

"That every wage earning person, excluding those in business for themselves, shall between the age of 20 years and the age of 60 years deposit, on income periods, in the postal savings 10 per cent of the money earned, subject to withdrawal before the age of 60 only on three conditions, i. e., death, total disability, or a percentage in case of forced unemployment."

Now figure out the far reaching effects of a law like this. For example, assuming that the minimum earning power of a person between the age of 20 and 30 is only $18 per week, and between the age of 30 and 60 is only $25 per week. What would this amount to at 4 per cent compound interest at the age of 60 years? It would mean no poverty in old age, no public institutions to care for the poor, no beggars on the street, in fact, probably no public charges except the mentally deficient. How much money would this save our government? A little research would make this a very interesting proposition. R. W. CASSELL.

Annual Retail Sales in New York

The Census of Distribution figures recently released by the United States Department of Commerce show that the 103,600 retail stores in New York City have an annual volume of sales amounting to more than $4,400,000,000. These are impressive figures, especially to national advertisers whose business it is to get people to buy their merchandise from the local merchants. For here in one city, in one compact, territorially small market, they can sell more merchandise than in dozens of scattered states combined or scores of prominent cities combined—and at much less cost. Philadelphia, for instance, large as it is, has only one-fourth the volume of sales that New York has. San Francisco has one-ninth; Baltimore has one-twelfth; Minneapolis has one-fourteenth; New Orleans has one-twenty-eighth.

Impressive, too, is the fact that when they advertise for business the retail stores of New York put more full-run advertising in The Sun than in any other newspaper. And impressive, also, is the fact that during the first seven months of 1931 the department stores of New York, which have long preferred The Sun, increased their space in this newspaper by more than 14 per cent. over the corresponding period of 1930 and by nearly 20 per cent. over 1929.

If you want more sales in the market of largest sales opportunities — put your message in The Sun, the home newspaper of the better-class families in New York.

LAST RITES FOR MOTHER OF SIX CHINESE LEADERS

Mme. Soong Influenced Entire Nation.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—(AP)—A notable group of Chinese men and women, all of them educated in America, gathered tonight at the bier of their mother, Mme. K. T. Soong, to do homage to the woman who had exercised a powerful influence on modern China.

Harvard university and Wellesley and Wesleyan, the latter at Macon, Ga., are the American institutions at which the sons and daughters of this remarkable woman were educated. Their training fitted all to occupy leading positions in the affairs of China.

Mme. Soong, who knew the old China but lived through the revolution to see her sons and daughters reach posts of influence, reared all six in the Christian religion, to which she subscribed all her life. It was through her influence and in her home that the president of China, Chiang Kai-shek, was baptised a Christian.

All Children in Public Life.

The six children, whose reunion tonight was their first in more than two years, are:

T. V. Soong, vice chairman of the Nationalist government.

Mme. Sun Yat-Sen, widow of the first president of China.

Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the president.

Mme. H. H. Kung, wife of the Nationalist minister of industry.

T. L. Soong, secretary of the ministry of foreign affairs.

T. N. Soong, who holds a minor government position.

The three boys were educated at Harvard university, and the girls at Wellesley or Wesleyan. The family could easily afford such educations, for it is reputed one of the wealthiest in China.

President Attends.

Also present tonight were President Chiang Kai-shek, Minister Kung, Mme. Chiang Hsueh-liang, daughter-in-law of the war overlord of Manchuria, and other high officials of the Nationalist government.

Mme. Soong will be buried tomorrow in Hungjao cemetery beside her husband, C. J. Soong, who died in 1918. He was one of the leading civilian supporters of Dr. Sun Yat-sen in the 1911 revolution and the years following.

'ENEMY' HELD; WITNESSES TO MURDER SOUGHT

Martin O'Leary, 37 years old, who was arrested on Sunday night in a raid on a saloon, was held yesterday on a charge of kidnaping for ransom while the police searched for witnesses to the murder of Policeman Raymond Martin in May, 1929. O'Leary has been sought by police since the murder. He was recently named as a "public enemy" by the crime commission.

O'Leary was arrested by county highway police in a saloon at 6205 Archer avenue, Summit, and was taken to the detective bureau to be shown to witnesses in the Martin murder. The policeman was slain by members of a kidnaping gang who were holding Philip Blumenthal, a former bootlegger, for ransom.

Three other men were seized in the saloon. They are Carl Fontana, 5961 Roosevelt road, Cicero; John Menard, 5012 South May street; and Mike Bartola, 4826 West 28th street. These men also have crime records, police said.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Money! Money!

LORIMER SEEKS A MILLION; ECHO OF 1914 FAILURE

Asks for Leave to Sue Title & Trust Co.

William Lorimer, once a power in Republican politics in Illinois, asked permission of the Circuit court yesterday to sue the Chicago Title and Trust company for $1,000,000.

WILLIAM LORIMER.

It was an echo of the collapse of the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank, a Lorimer institution, in 1914. Lorimer contends that $289,000 of the bank's money had been paid on a contract for stock in the Rose Hill Cemetery company and that this investment was not preserved for the benefit of the bank depositors by the title and trust company which acted as receiver.

Prior Action Recalled.

Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, chairman of the board of the title and trust company, and Frank Gardner, treasurer, said they considered the court action of little importance.

"A similar suit was begun in Montgomery county," said Mr. Gardner, "and the judge before whom it was heard ruled that there was no ground for action.

"The suit now sought to be filed here is the same suit and is based on the same facts as the suit downstate."

Attorney Francis Lowes, for Lorimer, appeared before Judge John R. Caverly with the petition. Outside of court, Mr. Lowes explained that he used this method of starting the action to clear away a possible technical objection to the suit based on the original bank receivership order. The court set the petition for hearing on Oct. 1.

Statement for Lorimer.

A statement in the name of Lorimer, who was out of the city, was issued. This alleged that the Chicago Title and Trust company was the receiver for the Rosehill Cemetery company as well as the Lorimer bank.

"Instead of maintaining the contract for the benefit of the bank depositors," said this statement, "the Chicago Title and Trust company and the minority stockholders substituted themselves in the place of the bank and took advantage of the $289,000 paid out of the funds of the bank for the benefit of themselves, and made the remaining payments [on the cemetery stock] out of dividends on the stock."

'WHO'S DUMB DRIVER?' DEMOCRATS ASK G.O.P. CLIPSHEET EDITORS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The Republican national committee, in its weekly clipsheet letter to editors of country newspapers, today took cognizance of the recent speech Gov. Ritchie delivered on unemployment before the Virginia Bar association, but did so in a statement which caused some perplexity and amusement around the capitol.

The committee denied that there was anything wrong with the economic system of this country, but said "the best automobile in the world can be landed wrong side up in a ditch by an unskilful driver."

The interpretation which Democrats and others immediately put on the statement was that the Republican committee unwittingly had conceded that President Hoover was the "unskilful driver" who had landed the American economic machine "wrong side up in a ditch."

YOUTH KILLED, SISTER INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Leroy Chroust, 24 years old, 2445 South Keeler avenue, was fatally injured and his sister, Regina, 22 years old, was critically hurt yesterday when their automobile overturned on the highway six miles east of Oakland, Ia. Chroust died two hours later in Council Bluffs. Authorities said that a front tire on the automobile Miss Chroust was driving blew out, causing the accident.

Mrs. Emily Shaffer, 65 years old, 809 Rock avenue, Waukeshaw, Wis., died at the Condell Memorial hospital, Libertyville, as a result of injuries suffered Sunday in an accident on route No. 21 near Grayslake, in Lake county.

One automobile fatality in Cook county yesterday raised the year's toll to 707.

Henry Mate, 67 years old, 3226 Fullerton avenue, was fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile bearing an Indiana license, which failed to stop. The accident occurred at 75th court and Irving Park boulevard, Schiller Park.

Treasurer M'Donough's Newly Born Son Dies

An eleven pound son born to the wife of County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough early yesterday died last night in the Mercy hospital. Both the baby and Mrs. McDonough were reported to be doing well yesterday but the baby developed symptoms of pneumonia and a raging fever. Desperate efforts to save its life failed. The funeral, which will be held tomorrow, will be strictly private. Mrs. McDonough was reported to be resting easy.

Wilmette Publisher Pays Daughter-in-Law's Fine

Mrs. Virginia Udell, 18 years old, wife of Rutherford B. Udell of 302 Park avenue, Wilmette, was fined a total of $10.50 yesterday by Magistrate Harry H. Porter of Evanston on a charge of speeding. The fine was paid by her father-in-law, Bertram B. Udell, Wilmette publisher. Of the total amount $3 was assessed as the expense incident to a search for Mrs. Udell by a bailiff.

Funeral Services for Charles Phelan Today

Funeral services for Charles Phelan, late president of the American Asphalt Paint company, 844 Rush street, who was killed last Friday in an automobile accident near Cardston, Alta., will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Graceland cemetery chapel. The Rev. Dr. John Crippen Evans of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church will officiate at the service.

LIEUT. DOHERTY, POLICE VETERAN, DIES IN MICHIGAN

Lieut. James E. Doherty, 65 years old, a veteran of the Chicago police force, died yesterday at Lakewood, Mich., of heart trouble, from which he had suffered for several years. He had been for 43 years a member of the police department, and as ranking lieutenant had been acting captain in charge of various districts. Mrs. Doherty and one of his sons, the Rev. Martin Doherty of Ranier, Ore., had been with him in Michigan.

Three years ago Lieut. Doherty won the plaudits of his superiors when, in command of the Cragin district, he effected the solution of the Billy Ranieri kidnaping case. The instance was the only one in which the victim of Italian kidnapers was recovered completely unharmed and the criminals apprehended. Members of the gang that perpetrated the plot are now serving long sentences at Joliet.

Recently Lieut. Doherty was in charge at the Shakespeare station. His declining health made it inadvisable for him to return to work after his furlough, which began on July 15, so on Aug. 1 he obtained a leave of absence and sought to recuperate at Lakewood. His home was at 2604 North Sawyer avenue.

He was the father of eight children. In addition to the Rev. Father Doherty, they are Eddie Doherty of New York, fiction writer and newspaper man; James L. of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE staff; Frank H., of Hillside; William E. and Thomas R., students, respectively, at the University of Illinois and De Paul; and Kathleen and Eileen.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

MARKHAM "GAS STRIKE" REPORT CALLED FALSE

Rumors of the discovery of natural gas deposits in the area bounded by Western and Crawford avenues and 155th and 167th streets in Markham were declared to be false yesterday by officials of the Public Service company at Harvey, who conducted an investigation. Waste from the Hazelcrest sewage disposal plant which flowed into the stagnant waters of the Calumet Union drainage canal was said to have caused the gas odor.

First reports of the gas were made on July 5. Subsequently F. H. Wahr, vice president of the Howard W. Elmore company which bought the property from the Markham Realty trust several years ago, announced that drilling for the gas would begin Aug. 25, and began interviewing property owners on gas leases.

Dr. Aristides Agramonte, Yellow Fever Foe, Dies

New Orleans, La., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Dr. Aristides Agramonte, one of the heroes of science in the successful fight against yellow fever, died suddenly of heart disease tonight. He was 63 years old. Dr. Agramonte recently was appointed professor of tropical medicine at the new medical school of Louisiana State university. He was the only surviving member of the famous United States army yellow fever commission sent to Cuba in 1900 to fight the disease. The other members were Walter Reed, James Carroll, and Jesse Lazear. Lazear died during the experimentations.

Mrs. Mary Dickinson, Noted for Philanthropy, Is Dead

Scarsdale, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Fiske Welles Dickinson, wife of John W. Dickinson, retired cement manufacturer and banker, died today in her eightieth year. Mrs. Dickinson, who was widely known for her philanthropy, was born in Ann Arbor, Mich., and later lived in Chicago. She is survived by her husband, a sister and three nephews.

DRAINAGE TRUE BILL HEARING IS SET FOR SEPT. 14

Judge Joseph B. David yesterday set Sept. 14 as the date for hearing preliminary motions on the indictments against T. J. Crowe, former president of the sanitary district, and seven associates in the "whoopee" régime in the board which ended in 1928. The trial of the case will start between Sept. 25 and Oct. 1, the judge said.

The judge, however, informed John E. Northup, first assistant state's attorney, that if the counts in the present indictment are similar to those in a previous indictment which he quashed in June he will take the same action in the present case.

Those indicted with Crowe are James M. Whalen, John J. Touhy, Frank J. Link, John K. Lawler and August W. Miller, former trustees, and John T. Miller and Martin Edelstein, former employés of the board.

DON'T YOU WANT TO TALK TO HIM! HE'S OUT HERE WITH THAT COUSIN LORA OF HIS.
YES. YOU KEEP OUT OF SIGHT.
SKEEZIX, YOU STILL DENY SETTING THAT FIRE EVEN WHEN YOU WERE SEEN IN THOSE BUILDINGS TWO MINUTES BEFORE IT STARTED?
YES SIR, I DIDN'T DO IT.
DON'T YOU KNOW IT WILL GO HARD WITH YOU IF YOU DON'T TELL ME THE TRUTH!

VOICE IS VOICE OF TENNYSON, THOUGH WORDS ARE STRANGE

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 17.—A small but learned company assembled in the British museum today to witness the breaking of the seal on the first of a big collection of historical gramophone records stored there for posterity and to hear on the fiftieth anniversary of its recording the voice of Lord Tennyson, poet laureate of England, reading his own works.

It was like waiting to hear a voice from the great beyond. The treasured cylinder was adjusted on an antique phonograph. A groan from the trumpet, interpreted as a preliminary cough from the great poet into his beard, thrilled the tense gathering. Then "Oojee booje, oojee boojee," whimpered Lord Tennyson. A puzzled official examined the label on the record; it was all right. As the instrument was speeded up Tennyson roared angrily. Another adjustment was tried. "Oojeeboojeeoojeeboojee," wailed Tennyson. That was all the poet could be coaxed into saying, and officials are now seeking some one who is an expert in gramophones of fifty years ago.

only the one regret that she had not been left with a baby, suddenly found a newborn child beside her when all hope of ever having one of her own seemed gone.

There is something fragrant about "Pan's Parish"—in the writing, a sense of the rich, sunwarmed Midi. It isn't an important book. But it has charm. Mrs. Peattie is a former Chicagoan, and the daughter-in-law of the former literary editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Ella W. Peattie. She and her husband now live in Provence, the scene of "Pan's Parish."

And speaking of France, today I saw for the first time a book which is a perfect volume for the traveler to France whose French isn't what it might be for a full life in the capital and traveling. It is called "French à la Mode" and is subtitled "The Right Thing to Say and Do in France." It sets down in both idiomatic French and English the conversations which travelers would have over every conceivable situation from dining at the Chateau de Madrid to playing Boule in Cannes. The characters to the kind of things that pleasant travelers always do and they talk like human beings and not like characters out of a copy book or a grammar. There are, besides the conversations, notes which are an excellent little guide book in themselves to places and manners. "French à la Mode" looks like an angel of aid and assistance. It is written by E. E. Pattou, who is the sister of our fellow townsman, Mr. Victor Elting.

MADRID, Aug. 17.—Four thousand Madrid school children are sleeping like kings tonight in the royal sausage factory.

Interested in hog raising, Prince Asturias, former King Alfonso's eldest son, caused a sausage factory to be raised on his estate at Rio Frio, in the health giving mountains near Segovia. The republic decided to put the broad acres to use and beds were installed both in the princely sausage factory and the palace on the estate. The children use the royal bed linen.

Beauty Trade Remains Good, Delegates Say

With 3,000 beauty experts milling about the ballroom of the Hotel Sherman yesterday all busily telling each other that business this year has been unusually good, killjoys who talk depression didn't have a chance yesterday. It was the first day's session of the annual convention of the American Society of Cosmeticians and Hair Artists.

From all over the United States and from Canada, too, came reports, as the enrollment grew, that the depression has in many ways proved to be a boon to the beauty profession. This also appeared to be substantiated in the number of crowds that pushed around the booths where exhibitors displayed their wares—the latest in hairdressing styles, and the latest methods and materials for making milady's complexion the more alluring.

"It seems to be a paradoxical fact that women during a depression take as much if not more care of their hair and their faces than in other times," explained Mrs. M. B. McGavran of Kansas City, president of the association. "They feel that depression must not show in a woman's face, and if they are to return to business or stay in it, they must appear well-groomed despite hard times.

"The beauty business therefore has not suffered to any great extent and in many cases the depression has proved to be a boon.

"Beauty schools report increased business and larger enrollments. And it stands to reason that the revolution in hats made by the Empress Eugenie model is going also to start a revolution in hair-dressing and cosmetics."

Mrs. Gavran then went into an enthusiastic description of some of the tricks of the trade when it comes to the difficult task of making a Eugenie hat sit demurely on a head with shorn locks.

"A Eugenie hat simply can't be worn with bobbed hair unless the hair gets some temporary length," she said. "Therefore, extra hair. Not the old fashioned switches, not the knobby rats. Merely pin-waves, if you will. Pin-waves are easily fastened to the head to fill in that void space on the side where the Eugenie hat exposes the hair. Or if milady would rather, they may be fastened to the hat and removed at will."

And with pin-waves will come, the beauty experts predict, other old-fashioned accessories such as hair nets, hair pins and hair ornaments. Hair nets are quite necessary, it was pointed out, because the exposed wave will not "stay put" on some kinds of hair with a net. And "staying put" is one of the requistes for hair crowned with a Eugenie hat.

All will be taken to the park before 10 a. m. and after a full day of entertainment will be taken back to their homes by the motorists who have volunteered their cars for the occasion.

Members of the White Sox baseball team, it was announced, will autograph baseballs for the orphans in the morning, radio stars will sing and clowns and acrobats will appear.

Mayor Cermak's car is one of those volunteered. Persons wishing to donate the use of their automobiles may call William E. Webster at Dearborn 0718. All but 100 of the quota of 1,000 cars had been pledged yesterday.

CONSTANCE BENNETT.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 17.—Constance Bennett has sent a cable to her studio—Pathe—here, breaking the news that she is "bringing a whole carload of new duds" back with her from France when she sails for New York Aug. 24. The studio will be expected to pay for gowns which Miss Bennett wears in her coming starring film, "Compromise."

Tay Garnett and Tom Buckingham, both of them movie directors, are authors of the story which Garnett also will direct. Miss Bennett has one of the studio agreements which many girls here long to get, but few achieve, permitting her to buy the Paris clothes she thinks would fit her screen roles, while her studio pays the bills.

President Hoover's Autos Forced to Leave Stable

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The White House stables, like the horses once housed there, have ceased to be part of the executive domain. Consequently, President Hoover's fleet of automobiles has been dispossessed and for a while will be kept in a rented garage until a solution for the parking problem has been found. The stables, in which the presidential machines were stored for a long time, are being razed to make way for the public health service building.

New Camera Takes Better X-Ray Pictures

Aids Surgery by Giving Right Exposure.

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—A new X-ray camera which shuts off automatically when it has just the right exposure for a perfect picture was described today by a group of American radiologists returning from Europe.

They brought news of several X-ray developments. All returned as delegates from the third international of radiology. They were Edwin C. Ernst, M. D., of St. Louis, president of the Radiological Research institute; Bundy Allen, N. D., of Tampa, Fla., president of the Radiological Society of North America; and B. H. Orndoff, M. D., of Chicago, executive secretary of the American College of Radiology.

DR. B. H. ORNDOFF.

The camera has an X-ray backstop behind the picture. This backstop catches the rays after they have penetrated the film and measures them by ionization in a partial vacuum. It is set so that when just enough rays have passed to make the film perfect, the backstop automatically switches off the electric current to the X-ray tube, whereupon the exposure ceases.

The film can be set for any exposure desired. The radiologists said the device is highly valuable for treatment of diseases where success depends upon viewing internal organs with X-ray pictures. Often a slight darkening of otherwise normal shadows tells the story of the disease. There has been some difficulty in distinguishing diseases from mere uncertainties in exposure.

Another new device insulates a high power X-ray tube of 200,000 volts or more so completely that it can be touched with bare hands without the slightest shock or danger. The insulation is obtained by applying an old principle in a new way. The big tube is grounded by a metal covering in its insulation, so that any excess current, instead of jumping to persons or objects nearby, is carried back to the center of the transformer supplying the supervoltages.

This tube, said the radiologists, makes examination of patients by X-ray easier and safer. It is also like substituting a 200 inch telescope for a smaller one. Most 200,000 volt X-ray tubes are held at least 20 inches distant from a patient, because of danger of shock. The new installation makes is possible to lay a big tube directly on the patient's body, and to secure an intensity which increases with the approach of the tube at a rate inversely the square of the distance.

Dr. Ernest told of carrying through Europe's clinics and laboratories a new American X-ray meter the size of a lady's handbag. He said that its readings showed the Europeans "are not using any more effective X-rays than are available in America." His little black bag is an answer to rumors that Europe is ahead in "effectiveness" in X-rays.

FOOT WASHING RITE REPEATED IN CHURCH OF MAYKING, KENTUCKY

Whitesburg, Ky., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Footwashing, a religious rite observed almost annually in the Kentucky mountains for approximately 150 years, featured the annual meeting yesterday of the congregation of the old Thornton Baptist church at Mayking, near here.

The services were held inside the church, the women standing on one side of the little building and the men on the other. More than twenty ministers and several hundred persons from this community and other mountain settlements took part.

Preceding the footwashing ceremonial, the bread and wine communion service was held.

Scriptural mention of footwashing in the time of Christ was referred to during the sermons. The footwashing practice dates back to about 1781, or soon after the founding of the First Baptist Church in Kentucky.

It first was conducted by John Taylor in the Baptist church he founded in the blue grass section.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

My cheers for the first play of the new stage season, revealed at the Garrick theater last night, are somewhat hollow. It is my duty, no doubt, to welcome this beginning of another year of the drama's joys and sorrows with the effusiveness of Greeter Gaw, but I cannot manage to make much of a noise. Whenever I felt in a back-slapping mood at the premiere, "A Modern Virgin" did something or said something to cause me to suspect that I had wandered into a talking picture show by mistake. This artless frolic in the lair of Ol' Debbil Sex may have been born and bred on Broadway, but its heart is in Hollywood.

It's a sort of companion piece to "Young Sinners," although not nearly so grown up. Elmer Harris, its author, has probably been told by his severest critic that he was becoming too intellectual, and that he should spin his bedtime stories with a simpler and more childlike touch. At any rate, the vein of fake sophistication in "A Modern Virgin" runs on a level with the mass mind in the first year of junior high school.

Well, let's tell the story of this farcical comedy, which deals with the adventures of a wild little rich girl among the bold bad clubmen. She is nearly seventeen, and she behaves like a lusty kitten who has just discovered catnip. She sleeps without pajamas, wallows in caramels and censored novels, and makes blind dates with random telephone numbers. She has a fiancé whom she detests; her middle name is Rebellion, and she yowls for lovers, while her guardian aunt and the family doctor stand by, registering horror.

The clubmen of her telephone flirtations—noble fellows who share the secrets of their little red address books—decide to teach her a lesson, in order to give the play a plot. So it is arranged that the most favored man in the group shall take her to a hunting camp, and that the others shall intrude at the embarrassing moment. To complicate matters, one of these perfect gentlemen is to disguise himself as a murderous escaped convict, a fiend in human form named Collins.

The frameup does not work according to schedule, and the clubmen themselves are the ones that get flabbergasted. When the fraudulent convict appears, ready for rapine and slaughter, our dauntless heroine gives him battle with a cavalry saber, plucked from the wall, and soon makes him look like the loser in a Heidelberg duel.

In the third act she becomes the unwilling bride of the fiancé whom she says she hates. The curtain falls when the honeymoon is one day old and she is perfectly happy.

A promising young actress named Margaret Sullavan plays this rampant girl with high animation and decided charm. She was one of the several novices who won reputations in "Strictly Dishonorable," and is the most striking reason for attendance upon "A Modern Virgin." Roger Pryor is effective as the suave playboy who leads the hoyden into the trap, and Herbert Rawlinson appears as the harmless, necessary fiancé of the improbable and unpersuasive story.

More Sneeze Way Into Hay Fever Hospital

Ragweed Pollen Blown to Sensitive Noses.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Various noses which heretofore this season had not by even so much as a sneeze, protested the presence of pollen in the air, yesterday developed a true hay fever manner.

A morning breeze carried pollen from the giant ragweed clumps in the prairies and vacant lots of Chicago's suburbs. The result was an increase in the number of hay fever victims who tried to crash the gate at the pollen free ward in the University of Illinois Research hospital, 1817 West Polk street. There an experiment is being conducted under the direction of Dr. Ben Z. Rappaport and Dr. Tell Nelson.

Among the latest volunteers as subjects of experimentation are an engineer who has had hay fever for 23 years, an asthma victim of 31 years' standing, and a south side garage owner who said he would devote all his time to the experiment if it would be any aid to science.

Chicago's loop district, according to a daily pollen count taken by O. C. Durham, a botanist, during each hay fever season since 1924, is remarkably free from aggravating pollen.

The peak is usually around Sept. 1, after which it begins to drop. Although the season lasts from Aug. 15 to Sept. 30, it is mild after Sept. 12.

Last year, due to the dry season, the first real hay fever day was Aug. 22. Following is a comparison of the pollen count, or number of pollen granules per cubic yard, as taken at the federal building with that taken at the municipal airport from Aug. 23 to Sept. 2, after the peak had passed, last year:

	Federal building.	Municipal airport.
Aug. 23	9	97
Aug. 24	144	941
Aug. 25	54	93
Aug. 26	71	257
Aug. 27	90	294
Aug. 28	170	294
Aug. 29	33	644
Aug. 30	392	644
Aug. 31	230	629
Sept. 1	260	247

A Chicago woman executive of a radio station wrote that both she and her boss had experienced their first hay fever sneeze of the season, and asked that she be admitted as a case that treatment had failed to help. More than 150 applicants, to be admitted to the ward as volunteer research subjects, are on the waiting list, but the physicians in charge are not satisfied yet. They want more as reservists.

Skin tests made on the first eight hay fever victims to be experimented on, showed that they were all severe cases, strongly positive. This does not mean, however, that they did not obtain complete relief. Even the best case among them, an Oak Park man who has hay fever, seasonal asthma and seasonal eczema simultaneously, was enjoying life in the ward, which is filled with filtered air.

Physicians pointed out, however, that filtered air is only an adjunct to treatment. Most of the applicants have not had treatment.

Experts say that Chicago is more free from pollen, and consequently from sniffles and sneezes, than are other parts of Illinois.

One expert says pollen rises to a height of from 4,500 to 5,000 feet, and does not descend until it strikes cool air, or until it is well over the lake. Other theories maintain that the pollen from fields 200 miles away May be breathed by Chicagoans.

Playing With Fire

By WILLIAM MAC LEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Doris Silver, a dude ranch guest, is rescued from a runaway horse by a handsome young stranger, much to the annoyance of her companion, Ranse Brennan.

INSTALLMENT II.

LEE HIRES A HAND.

Along one of the nomadic roads of the border land a horse ambled at a road gait. The rider sat the saddle with the careless ease of long habit. He was in no hurry. While he jogged along his mind mulled over a detail of a recent incident not precisely clear to him.

A shimmer of heat danced above the sun scorched plain. Now and again a dust eddy, an inverted cone, whirled across the desert sand. The vegetation had stamped upon it the stark gray look of life that has fought to endure. The clumps of cholla and prickly pear bristled with thorny defiance. The hole pecked cahuaro were like grim old sentinels ready to succumb to years. Even the Apache plumes were dry and desiccated. There was something fantastic about the jig-saw line of hills standing against the horizon, as though they had no depth and substance but were a paper mâché stage property without genuine reality.

Why had an instant dislike flared up in him at sight of Ranse Brennan, the rider asked himself? Before the man had said a word, before the insult of the offered silver, he had known they were to be enemies. The feeling still existed, and it was unreasonable. Was there not room in this wide world for each to go his own way and never meet the other?

The road ribbon wound up a hill shoulder and dropped abruptly to cross an arroyo. Beside a sandy wash a small car stood. One wheel was jacked up and a spare tire leaned against the running board. From the interior of the car a pair of shapely legs projected. The owner of them seemed to be searching for a tool. Judging by the fervent "Damn!" he heard the horseman guessed she was not finding it.

"Have you lost something?" he asked politely.

A slim body and a brown boyish head emerged from within. The look that swept over him was keen and swift.

"My temper," she said shortly.

"May I help you find it?"

She smiled and he observed that the amber eyes beneath the dark lashes became warm as molten gold. "You have," she told him.

He swung from the saddle, dropped the bridle reins to the ground, and came forward. Both of them took it for granted that it was his job to change the tire. Inside of ten minutes he had the last bolt tightened. He removed the jack and replaced it with the other tools underneath the seat.

The girl had been watching him, curious in spite of herself. His worn clothes proclaimed him a cowpuncher, but he did not look like an ordinary waddy. What was it about him that gave the impression almost of distinction? Was it the careless good looks? The poised grace with which he carried himself? The expression so recklessly sardonic and yet so engaging?

"Where do you come from?" she asked, curtly.

"Are you with some outfit near here?" she asked. "I don't think I've seen you before."

"I'm riding the chuck line." He said it lightly, as though his bread and butter were a matter of the least consequence in the world.

She frowned, studying him. The man was competent. That was stamped all over him. What was wrong with him then? Why did he have to go to a country where he was not known to look for a job?

"Where do you come from?" she asked curtly.

He waved a hand that might include all the points of the compass in its circuit.

"Where did you work last?" she insisted.

"I fixed a lady's tire on the Palo Duro road," he said blandly.

"Which reminds me. I haven't thanked you—and I do."

"Pleasure was mine," he drawled.

"I'm not just being inquisitive," she went on. "If you're looking for work, I know of a place."

"I'm looking for the kind of work I'm looking for," he answered, smiling at her.

"Do you drink?" she wanted bluntly to know.

"I thought this was a prohibition country."

"You're going at it in a queer way to get a job," she said coldly. "I need a man myself to help on a guest ranch I run near here, but if I employ you I'll have to know more about you."

"Yes, ma'am," he admitted.

A change had come over him. His manner had taken on the simulation of the humility of labor looking for employment after many rebuffs. It was apparent even in his voice. But the eyes were still full of gay impudence.

"Why did you leave your last place?"

"Had a few words with the boss, ma'am. He canned me—gave me my time."

"You oughtn't to be looking for work, a man like you. You can ride and rope, I suppose."

"Yes, ma'am."

She made a characteristic swift decision. "I own the Lazy R. It's three miles up the road. I'll give you sixty dollars a month and board to ride for me."

The question he asked seemed irrelevant. "Do you know a man called Ranse Brennan?"

"He's my foreman. Why?"

"O, nothing."

"Do you know him?"

"Met him this mo'ning, ma'am." He went back to the order of the day. "You've hired a hand."

"All right. Report to Mr. Brennan."

She nodded a little farewell and got into the car.

"Who shall I say hired me?" he asked.

"Lee Reynolds. What is your name?"

"Call me Slim, ma'am."

"I prefer to call you by your name, if you're not ashamed of it." She gave him a look severe with reproof. What right had he to mock her with this pretense of humbleness, with this relapse into the voice and manner of an unlettered cowpuncher? She did not propose to put up with any nonsense from him. If he worked for her he would find that out. He could reserve his humor for the other boys in the bunk house.

"Yes, ma'am." There was a momentary hesitation before he suggested Smith. "John K. Smith," he added an instant later.

That was not his name, of course. She knew that. But she was a product of the old west which carefully refrained from curiosity about a stranger's past.

"Very well. Since that name suits you, it does me."

Her foot touched the starter. The car moved down the road.

Dipping down into the valley where the windmills of the Lazy R flashed sun signals at her, Lee Reynolds took herself to task.

"Now why did you do that?" she asked herself. "Why did you hire that impudent, good looking young scamp? There's something wrong about him. There must be. You've probably bought trouble, Miss Reynolds. Why for did you do it?"

She did not know why. Her offer had been born of one of her fool impulses, as she called them. Ranse would not like it. She knew that. He would feel she was infringing on his rights as foreman. Lee shrugged her shoulders. If Ranse did not like it he could do the other thing. She had a crow to pick with him anyhow on another matter.

Lee drove into the courtyard of the Lazy R and left the car under the shade of a huge live oak. In the corral three men were busy with some wild young colts.

"Ranse back yet, Dune?" she called to one of them.

An old man came to the fence and answered, "No, Miss Lee, he ain't."

"Will you tell him when he comes I want to see him?"

"Sure will."

He watched her walking to the house, a light trim figure that moved without effort, springily, as a young deer does. She was a recent product of an eastern finishing school, but that free gait had found its genesis in the untamed heart of the girl. It was an expression of her spirit. No schoolmarm had taught it to her.

Old Dune Daggett's eyes followed her with a pride in them he did not attempt to conceal. Ever since she had been a baby he had served first her father and then her. He had taught her to ride and to rope and to shoot. She was the ewe lamb he cherished above all living things.

"Something out of the ordinary about that girl," he boasted to the perspiring youth who joined him at the fence.

Kansas mopped his face with the sleeve of the shirt he wore. "It don't hurt a fellow's eyes any to look at her," he agreed. "Funny about Miss Lee. She's pretty as a new painted wagon, but she ain't what you'd call feminine in her ways. Me, I like a girl that waits for a fellow to take the lead, a girl——"

"Hmp!" snorted Daggett. "Who cares what you like?" Why, you cain't even rope a bronc. You don't know sic' 'em. Nothing but a brakeman. Call yoreself a cowboy, an' just now missed yore throw three times. In my time you would have been in a livery stable. If there were any good top hands left I'd certainly send all you corral dogs high-tailin' to town. But the country ain't what it usta be."

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A. D. R.: TO CHECK EXCESSIVE perspiration under the arms use a twenty-five per cent solution of aluminum chloride in distilled water. Apply it every other night until three applications have been made. It should be daubed on gently and allowed to dry on.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Deserved the Slap.

"Dear Miss Blake: Do you think a girl deserves a slap in the face for teasing a fellow who is not the good natured sort she thinks him to be?

"MICKEY."

There is a limit to one's good nature. I think you deserved your punishment, even though it was rather drastic.

Hats and Coiffures Stress Importance of Trim Profiles

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

As we were saying yesterday, what went last season is going to look like last year's beret this.

As some one says: "For a long time we've been looking beauty in the face. Now it's turning on us—with all the force of its profile charm. The new hats are responsible, of course, and the new hair style that must be taken on with the profile important.

The best suggestion to offer at the moment so that the new beauty procession won't get too much under way without your being in it is to get the profile viewing habit. Not of the cheek and chin and head alone, but of the entire length of you. No one can honestly judge the reducing improvement in her figure until she views herself with a long side look.

I'll wager there are scores of women who haven't the ghost of an idea of what their profile view presents. They have been in the habit of looking at themselves square front and letting their looks go at that.

You can't know whether you're getting a lumpy back from a front view. You don't get a good perspective on the chin nor the drooping jaw line until you veer the hand mirror and yourself to one side and take a look.

I should say that of all the departures we're facing with the new beauty mode, nothing is more important than this one of studying the side lines. It's understood, of course, that you'll tend the front views out of habit—but get the profile viewing habit at once.

Something different you will want to do with your hair, no doubt, since it's the side sweep and a well set off cheek that's going to matter. The newest hair movement does sweep back away from the face following the backward and up sweep of the new brims, and the way the hair disposes itself in the back is something that has to be gone into with intent to have nothing but perfection there.

The tip of the ear is left exposed the better to show off the curve of the cheek. The temple is not hidden under a lock of hair. The hair here goes back away from the face, too.

Wealthy Parent May Complicate Matters for Young Couple

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Ten years ago Mrs. James A. married the son of a wealthy father. The latter's wife died shortly after his son's marriage and he later took unto himself a second spouse. The son and his bride moved to another town, the young man to take over one of his father's numerous businesses. It proved the least paying one of his rich dad's many enterprises. Barely a living wage could be extracted from it, so the young wife tells. But the house into which they moved in the new town belonged to the boy's own mother. It's expensive to keep up.

Now, the wealthy father and his second wife spend the winters at Hot Springs, Florida, or in Europe. Then from March to October they settle down on the young couple with the sixteen room house on their hands, the work of which has to be done by the young wife as her husband cannot afford a maid. The father has a life interest in the house, hence his visiting claims. He never gives the young pair a penny, nor a thank you.

He even makes the younger pair pay their way into the movies or share whatever amusement expense he proposes. The husband has tried to tell his father that he is not equal to the strain, he financially nor his wife physically, but the old man goes on the warpath about the ingratitude of children, etc. And his interest in the house is brought up to justify his long stays.

Obviously the young couple do not want a break with the father but it's heading that way.

Now it may not be the time to suggest that the son get out of his father's business and get into something else on his own, free and away from all debt to said parent. But that's what the young pair should work for. No doubt the son's hope of inheriting his father's money, or part of it, has to do with the present concession to his demands. But what is the use of waiting for or planning on dead men's shoes if youth escapes in the waiting, and if life becomes too bitterly hard to stand. It's better to plan life, forgetting completely about the inheritance that may one day be yours.

500 Negro Mothers, Kids Sent to Camp Reinberg

Five hundred Negro mothers and children were sent yesterday to Camp Reinberg, conducted at Palatine by the county bureau of public welfare, for a ten days' vacation. Two of the seven groups sent to the camp this summer are composed of Negroes, Joseph L. Moss, director of the bureau, stated.

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE SUGAR TO SWEETEN DRINKS

How could we go through summer without home-made drinks sweetened to taste with sugar and chilled with ice!

Nothing can take the place of sugar in sweetening drinks. And housewives all over the country look upon refined cane sugar as the standard. Use it for iced tea, coffee and chocolate, milk shakes, lemonade and fruit punches. Refresh yourself with a sweetened drink. The Sugar Institute.

Bi-Colored Coat Is Striking New Style

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—It is high time for some thoughtful soul to ask, "Whither are we drifting?" with these color contrast clothes that every body is wearing. How much more are the style makers going to divide our clothes into different plots of color?

The newest thing in Paris is the bi-colored coat, and it is going over big. We've had the bi-colored suit and the bi-colored ensemble, but the coat in two colors is something different. You may see one of these two color wraps in the accompanying sketch. It is a midsummer coat with a top of white crêpe marocain and a lower part of black crêpe marocain. The dividing line between these two colors begins at the waistline in front and rises to the tip of the shoulder blades in the back. There is a sash of black crêpe marocain to replace the usual belt, and it ties at the center front in a floppy bow.

The collar of this coat is a straight, standing band that is joined to revers in front. The sleeves are large at the armholes and dwindle to fit the arms from elbows to wrists. These sleeves are being worn in some of the most fashionable French summer coats.

The black, or skirt, part of the coat is cut in gores that flare from the hip line to the hem, so that there is an effect of circular cutting. The coat barely meets at the waistline in front and is worn over a white frock, and with a black straw hat that dips and ripples across the front. It is from Maria Guy.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Art Student Needs Desk.

"One of my sons does a lot of drawing and he is going to enter the Art institute in the fall. I wonder if you know of a discarded flat top office desk which I could have for him. I don't care how shabby it is for I could refinish it. It would be the ideal thing for him to work on. His father is working only part time and we are having a difficult time getting along. "T. D."

Such a desk should be useful to this art student during his hours of work at home. If you have an old one, he'd be grateful to get it, even if it is in a rather worn condition.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Wore Dress Wrong Side Out.

While dressing for work one morning I took great pains to look presentable as we were to have a managers' meeting that day. I was sitting in the elevated when I noticed some girls laughing and giggling. I felt they couldn't be laughing at me as I thought I was fairly well dressed, so I paid no attention to them. When getting ready to get off I noticed that my dress was being worn inside out. I made a dash for the door and a long run to the office. For the rest of the afternoon I could see nothing but those girls laughing at me.—M. J.

Movies and Bridge Called Obstacles to an Education

Movies, bridge and idle automobile riding yesterday were called pitfalls in the path of seekers of self-education. They were so named by Dean Gordon J. Laing of the University of Chicago in an address at the opening session of the national convention of the Pi Omicron sorority at the Stevens hotel. A college graduate has only the basis of an education, he urged, and every one should continue his study.

A Spanish Grandee discusses American Women

"Your American women, ah, she has the grace of our own Señoritas . . . the chic of the Frenchwoman . . . the culture of the Italian . . . the allure of the Oriental.

But, alas, she has not the ravishing complexion of the Englishwoman."

It is true that the English complexion is the loveliest in the world, in spite of the inclement weather and yellow fogs. For 142 years the women of England have used Pears' Soap for radiant skin.

W. R. Ruffners' 2d Daughter Now Engaged

BY THALIA

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM ROGERS RUFFNER of Ruffwood, Highland Park, announce the engagement of their daughter, Virginia Underwood Ruffner, to C. Badger Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm H. Reed of Pemberton Heights, Austin, Tex.

Miss Ruffner made her debut in December of 1929 at a joint garden party given by the Ruffners for her elder sister, Miss Marianna Ruffner. She graduated last year from Miss Dow's school at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y. Mr. Reed attended the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., and the University of Texas. He was a member of the first university cruise, 1926'27. The wedding is to take place soon after the first of next year.

The Ruffner household must be an interesting place these days, what with the prospective bride, a prospective debutante, and the newly engaged daughter of the family. Miss Louise Ruffner is to make her bow on Sept. 24, and Miss Marianna is to be married on Oct. 24 to Harrison Tyler Todd, son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Henry D. Todd of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Ruffner returned from Texas Monday evening after a month's visit with her fiancée's sister, Miss Malcolm Reed, who was her schoolmate at Briarcliff.

Scipp of Chicago Marries Miss Tyrrell of England.

The marriage of Miss Roberta Tyrrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tyrrell of Cliffe Kent, England, to William C. Scipp of Chicago and Middleburg, Va., took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax Harrison at Middleburg on Saturday afternoon. The bride, who has been a member of the faculty of Foxcroft at Middleburg, was attended by Miss Ivy Harrison as maid of honor, and Miss Hatta Scipp as bridesmaid. Mr. Scipp's best man was Walter Lefens of Chicago. The Clarence P. Scipps, Mr. and Mrs. Lefens, and Mr. Edward A. Record were the Chicagoans present at the wedding. Mr. Scipp recently purchased a place in Middleburg, which he has restored and remodeled, and for the last two years has divided his time between Chicago and Middleburg. He and his bride departed immediately after the wedding reception for their wedding trip.

Louis Bouvs Portraits of Relics of Mr. Winterbotham.

In the living room of the Joseph Winterbotham place, Baxter Birches, at Burlington, Vt., is a screen by Louis [I think it was exhibited at an arts club (two seasons ago) with paintings on it of Mr. Winterbotham's mother and niece, Mrs. George Sheldon [Louise Winterbotham] of Stony Carpenter. In a little colonial house on the grounds that used to be the law office of a former owner, Mr. Winterbotham has installed many of the choice paintings of his collection. There are sliding panels that conceal the paintings. Mrs. John Alden Carpenter's characteristic touch is in the interior decoration of the house which is unmistakable, even in pictures of it.

Anderson, Mrs. Charles G. Stevens, Mrs. J. W. Moulton, Miss Mary Covert, Mrs. Robert Cox, Mrs. Anson Cameron, Mrs. S. F. Wheeler, Mrs. W. Rufus Abbott, Mrs. Fred Sauter. The judges are Mrs. Robert Hammond and Mrs. Fred A. Record of the Barrington Hills club and Mrs. Edwin B. Frost, president of the Lake Geneva Garden club.

The 18 guests at Miss Mary Anderson's buffet luncheon at the Drake yesterday agreed that it was a happy thought to have a party in midsummer, when sociabilities in town are few and far between. It was all very jolly and gay, and after luncheon Miss Ethel Hottinger, the opera singer for whom the luncheon was given, sang. She is departing the end of the week for a year in Europe.

Swedish Day Set to Help Jobless During Next Winter

In order to meet the unemployment situation among their own people this winter, all Swedish organizations in Chicago are uniting for the first time in their history in a Swedish national day. The proceeds of this event, to be held Sept. 20 in Soldiers' field, will go to charity, the committee announced last night at a meeting in the Hotel Sherman.

In explaining the plan of the festival Bernard Johnson, chairman of the program committee, said he expected between 50,000 and 100,000 Swedish-Americans and their friends to attend. He stressed the need for funds because "more of our people than ever before will need assistance this winter."

As the program was outlined tentatively, the chief speakers will be Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom and State's Attorney John A. Swanson. There is to be a parade with representatives from all the Swedish societies, with Col. T. A. Siqueland as marshal. There will be a football game between Swedish and German teams, other athletic events, folk dancing, music by various bands and choral societies and drill teams.

John E. Ericsson is chairman of the committee, John C. Thunholm, vice chairman, Justus Mosart, secretary.

Food Talk.

As you sit visiting with your friends on your pretty screened in porch, do you sit with one hand grasping a pitcher of ice and lemonade while your other hand holds a tall green glass in which vivid little cherries pop about? Your fetching new shade is partially lowered to protect your from the glare of the late afternoon sun and a big oscillating fan sweeps you all with a kind breeze. You relax in your chair as you sip your refreshing drink and are comfortably conscious of the thought that you really haven't minded staying at home this summer.

Half of the charm of any food or drink lies in its garnishing. For those of us who are fortunate enough to possess an electric refrigerator, garnishing is greatly simplified. Vegetable coloring, which you can buy in such attractive colors, applied to your ice tray, results in fascinating cubes. Try for a note of contrast when you are thinking of serving iced drinks some afternoon or evening. Yellow ice in grape juice, green ice in orangeade, red ice in a mint drink—and there are ever so many more. If you have no means of making cubes, you may garnish with fruits and mint leaves. A slice of orange which has the same circumference as the top of a glass may be laid across the glass and be held in place by the insertion of a soda straw through the center of the orange.

An excellent thing to have on hand in your refrigerator is a syrup made of equal parts of sugar and water which has been boiled for ten minutes. This can be used in nearly all the fruit beverages you wish to make. Then you can squeeze a few oranges, lemons, grapefruit, or whatever you wish to use, add the syrup and water to taste, and serve an iced drink in a jiffy. Gingerale, to me, improves most of these drinks, but it should be stirred into the juice mixture just a minute or two before you are ready to serve it.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS.

1 egg.
2 cups flour.
2 tsp. baking powder.
¼ tsp. salt.
1 cup blueberries.

Mix ¾ of the flour with the blueberries. Cream the butter and sugar. Add the beaten egg. Sift together the baking powder, salt and remaining flour. Combine the two mixtures alternately with the milk. Add the floured blueberries, and bake 25 minutes in greased gem pans at 400° F.

SPANISH STEAK.

Buy a piece of round steak ¾ inch thick. Pound flour and sprinkling of salt into it. Sear the steak on both sides in a heavy frying pan in which a large walnut of butter has been melted. Place the steak in a roaster. Make a water gravy in the frying pan and pour over the steak. Slice two large onions over the steak. Cover the whole and bake for an hour in a slow oven.

Weather Gets Far Ahead of Ice Fund Gifts

As the thermometer went skyrocketing into the humid 90's yesterday, bringing suffering to the poor living in the thickly populated districts of the city, only two gifts arrived in THE TRIBUNE free ice fund to meet the added strain caused by the hot weather.

The week's reprieve from the heat was a blessed relief to mothers of the tenements. Fewer crying babies, more comfort when working over a washtub in a hot kitchen. Sleep at night in rooms that for the first time in several weeks were cool enough to invite immediate sleep.

But the hot weather is back again and may be here to stay until late September, as has been the case in previous years. This will mean a greater demand upon the free ice fund. Already more ice has been delivered to needy families than during the same period of time in other years. This is because there are so many more needy families this year, many whose purses are empty because of prolonged unemployment.

THE TRIBUNE free ice fund must have more money to buy ice for these families. Children have been unusually thoughtful this summer spending the hot days working away in the sun selling lemonade, or practicing many, many times to perfect a play or an opereita to give as a benefit for the free ice fund. Some saved out of their allowances, others stayed home from the circus, some gave prize money. In countless ways the children have loyally done their share.

Now, grownups, can you do yours? Two more families will receive ice from $10 sent by E. P. Knight and $1 from Edward Barry that came yesterday. This brings the total to $2,402.12. Please send all contributions to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

America Is in Sad State, Chicago Is Worse, Lecturer Says

To Dr. George Arundale, a leader of theosophists in Australia, who came to Chicago to attend a convention of the American Theosophical society, the United States, and Chicago in particular, is in a sad way.

He mentioned that last night as he stood upon a platform, against a background of palms and ferns and baskets of rather full blown roses, in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman. Before him sat row on row of middle aged and elderly women, with a thin scattering of men and younger women.

Dr. Arundale told his audience that, after all, the government of the United States wasn't really a democracy, as Abraham Lincoln had defined a democracy. He listed it was a "despotism," and he added that the government of Russia and that of Italy were fruits of democracy as the world knew democracy.

Dr. Arundale's audience laughed when he said that a modified Mussolini would be a good thing for Australia, England, France, "and any place but America, which couldn't stand being God's country and Mussolini's country."

"You have here," he said to Chicagoans, "the stockyards. You're inordinately proud of them. But I want to ask you this: when you have the sort of attitude between the human and the subhuman which the stockyards represents, how can there be anything but the spirit of war?"

At another moment he said:

"My faith is in women rather than in men. In every country I visit the women are the superior creatures, compared to whom men are poor creatures at best."

All Saints Church Plans Picnic for This Saturday

Old All Saints church, 25th and Wallace streets, will hold its annual picnic and outing next Saturday, Aug. 22, at Justice Park, Archer and Kean avenues. The Rev. Father John J. Doody is pastor. The proceeds are to be used in defraying the expense of All Saints guild hall, which is used for recreation. Once an active parish financially, All Saints represents a congregation of people many of whom depend on the church for daily foodstuffs. There are, says Father Doody, "eighty thousand people in the small area of a little more than a square mile. It's a crowd to think of seriously from a civic standpoint."

Athletics Should Be Given Normal Place in Life of Student

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I read recently in your column an article about the danger of competitive sports for high school girls—it was the story of a high school girl who thought she had burned herself out with too much competition.

"When I was in high school I was not allowed to take even gym, for my parents did not see any sense in it. As a result, when I got to college I took everything along that line in the curriculum, even though I wasn't a physical educational major. I thought at times I was doing too much, but now I am mighty thankful that I had it.

"The very first year I met a wonderful coach—in fact, there were two of them. My roommate couldn't see any joy in playing basket ball and tennis for an hour if you didn't keep score—she had played basket ball in high school. But those coaches taught me to swim, dance, and play highly organized games for the beauty and pure joy of it.

"Today I am more than glad that I had those four years. I had some competition—it made me nervous at first, and I cannot say I enjoyed it. I still swim here at home—to show the youngsters I can at least keep up with them and teach them a few things.

"If only high school girls would learn to play games for the game's sake and not for the glory of winning they would be a better and a stronger generation. They do not realize the beauty of companionship in playing with some one instead of against them. Let's have more play days instead of tournaments.

"AN INTERESTED READER."

Here we have another slant on high school and college athletics—athletics for fun, not for top place at any cost. We should have more coaches like those mentioned here. It is in the keen competition and exhibition work that the danger lies.

It is well to remember that it is the high school [or prep school] years during which it is considered most vital to prevent the strain of too intensive or highly competitive athletics.

Puppets Will Give Display of Magic as Sally's Gang Watches

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Doesn't a puppet show sound like the most fascinating kind of entertainment, boys and girls? And this puppet show, in particular! To begin with, "Rumpelstiltskin," the Grimm fairy tale which is to be enacted by the little mechanical figures, is such a delightful story with its dwarf and its miller's daughter who wants to become queen and all the other characters which appear in it.

Can't you just imagine the lovely heroine with her golden locks and the little man with the wizened face and pointed cap and the handsome prince! They're really just dolls, but they've been made so realistic in appearance that it's difficult to believe that the tiny actors as they go through the paces each rôle calls for are not live persons. We'll be able to see how it's all accomplished, though, for Miss Wagner, director of Mobet's puppets, has promised that we may go back stage after the performance and see for ourselves just how the show is operated.

The party will be on Thursday afternoon, Aug. 27, of course, and the locale this time will be the south side of the city—Shotwell hall in 55th street. We'll be assured of a grand time, too, for in addition to the play we'll meet the most clever puppet of all—Tito, the clown. He'll talk to us and tell us such interesting things that we'll want to meet him again. Then, too, we're going to have refreshments. Yes, this will be a marvelous party and I don't want any of you to miss it.

I shall have one hundred guests and they will be selected from the letters they write me. You see, I want to take the boys and girls who will enjoy such a party most, and the only way I can judge is by what you write to me. Every letter must reach me no later than Thursday morning, and it should contain your name, address, and age.

Training Camp Boys to Honor Mrs. Patten Today for Her Help

Today has been designated Patten day at the citizens' military training camp at Fort Sheridan, in honor of Mrs. Louise B. Patten, widow of James A. Patten. Two years ago Mrs. Patten outfitted the athletic field at the camp, and this year gave $700 for the purchase of athletic equipment for the citizen soldiers.

She will dine this noon at the camp mess with Company B, which is leading in camp athletic contests, and will be the guest of honor at a track meet and a regimental review in the afternoon.

Thursday will be D. A. R. day at the camp and Saturday Visitors' day, at which awards will be presented to winners in various camp competitions.

BERTHOLD OF BADEN AND GREEK PRINCESS MARRIED IN CASTLE

BADEN-BADEN, Germany, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The chapel of historic Neues Schloss was the scene today of the religious wedding of Margrave Berthold of Baden and the Princess Theodora of Greece. The civil ceremony was celebrated last Saturday. Only relatives and intimate friends attended the ceremony today.

Among the guests were Grand Duchess Hilda of Baden, Princess Marie of Baden, Prince Andrew of Greece, who is the bride's father; the bride's three sisters, Margaret, Cecelia, and Sophia, and Queen Sophie of Greece. The crown princess of Sweden, Prince Waldemar of Denmark, the duchess of Cumberland, the duke of Brunswick, and the grand duke and the grand duchess of Hesse and Mecklenburg also were present.

The ceremony was followed by a dinner in the ancestral hall of the castle, where in 1680 a brilliant meeting of German princes with Napoleon III. took place.

The margrave, son of the late Prince Maximillian of Baden, last imperial German chancellor, and his bride are each 25 years old and together are related to most of the royalty of Europe. Princess Theodora's mother is Princess Alice of Battenberg and her aunt, Queen Sophie of Greece, is a sister of the former kaiser. Prince Christopher of Greece, her uncle, married the former Mrs. W. B. Leeds of Cleveland.

USE KLEENEX
in place of irritating handkerchiefs

WHAT a wonderful relief is Kleenex during hay fever! Don't endure another season with old-time handkerchiefs. You know how quickly they become damp, disgusting . . . how they inflame and irritate your skin each time you touch them to your face.

Hay fever season is at hand. Don't delay. Buy a package of soft, dry Kleenex disposable tissues. They will provide grateful relief from harsh, irritating cloth.

Doctors recommend Kleenex

Many already know Kleenex from its widespread use during colds. Doctors are recommending disposable tissues. Schools are teaching their use.

Kleenex is a soft tissue . . . utterly unlike any tissue substance you have ever seen. It's so exquisitely soft! So marvelously, instantly absorbent.

It costs less to use Kleenex and destroy it than to pay for handkerchief laundry. If handkerchiefs are washed at home, the use of Kleenex eliminates this most unpleasant of all washing tasks.

Other important uses

Kleenex comes in Cellophane wrapped packages . . . conveniently arranged to permit removal of tissues with one hand.

Use Kleenex for removing face creams, as famous movie stars advise; for dusting and polishing. Motorists find many uses for Kleenex. It pays to keep a package always in the car. At all drug, dry goods and department stores.

"I take no risks in removing cold cream! Kleenex is always on my dressing table."
JEANETTE LOFF

"Early in our careers, we movie actresses learn to use Kleenex when removing make-up with cleansing cream. It's so absorbent that it picks up all powder and dirt, leaving the pores really clean. And Kleenex is absolutely sanitary in itself, unlike the soiled towels and cloths that some people still use."

Four outstanding examples of the Great American Value

Consider how much your money buys in these popular Chevrolet models

CHEVROLET

These days, people are investing their automobile money carefully. They are deciding on cars only after they are certain that each dollar they spend brings them a big dollar's worth of satisfaction.

That is why, month after month, during 1931, the Chevrolet Six has been leading all cars in sales. That is why the four typical Chevrolet models illustrated at the right are so prominently in evidence on every street and highway. Buyers have convinced themselves that Chevrolet gives more quality for every dollar. Smarter style. Finer comfort. More complete dependability. Greater economy. Proved six-cylinder performance. And prices right down among the lowest at which motor cars are sold!

Like all Chevrolet models, each of these popular cars is a six—a modern six of proved design. And you know, as well as engineers do, that multi-cylinder design is standard practice among practically all cars today. Nothing less than six cylinders can give you the fine engine-balance that produces a really smooth flow of power. Nothing less than a six can give a complete elimination of objectionable vibration at its source. Six-cylinder smoothness is built-in smoothness, quiet smoothness, economical smoothness. Drivers of sixes never want less!

Each of these Chevrolet cars gives you many proved features that add to riding comfort. There is no substitute for long wheelbase and long springs—so Chevrolet offers a 109-inch wheelbase, supported throughout 82% of its length by four parallel-mounted springs.

Each of these Chevrolet Sixes also gives you smartly styled, richly finished bodies, built of wood and steel—the same type of construction as used in the most expensive cars.

And here's one of the best things of all: Hand in hand with all these great advantages goes an economy of operation and upkeep that is unexcelled! The Chevrolet Motor Company and its dealers have a very large number of letters from owners, showing that Chevrolet costs less for gas, oil, and upkeep than any other car, regardless of the number of cylinders.

If you want to get an accurate check on how much your money buys in a low-priced car, study the models illustrated here. Read the special features beneath the one that you favor most. And don't forget that there are 20 big, fine-looking examples of the great American value from which to choose. Get the facts and figures now! You'll be convinced that your dollar buys more in a Chevrolet Six.

Twenty beautiful models, at prices ranging from $475 to $675

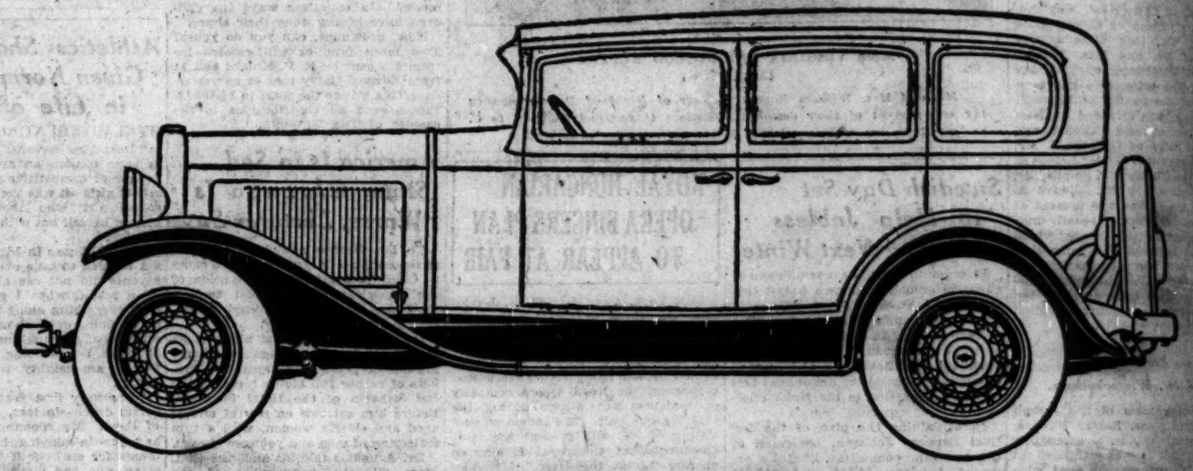
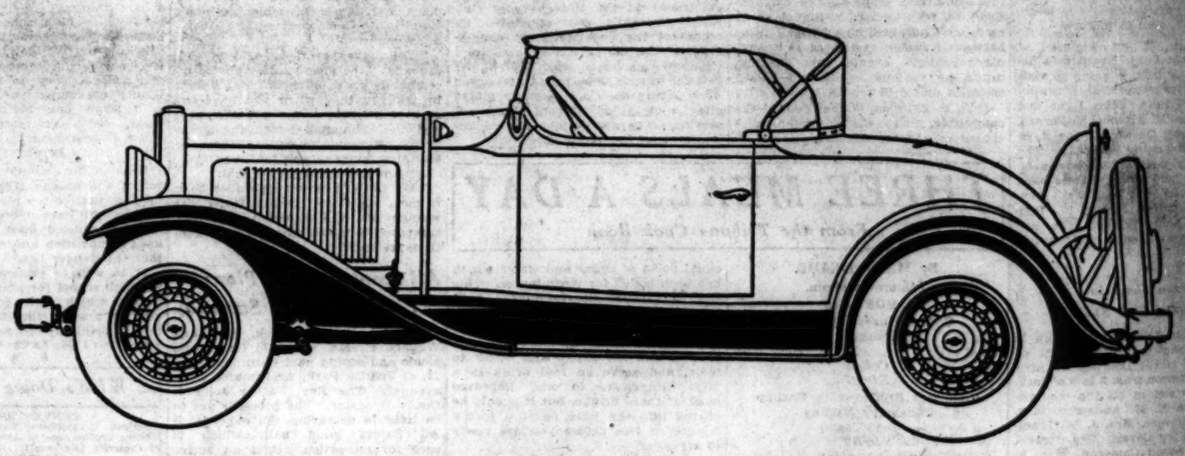
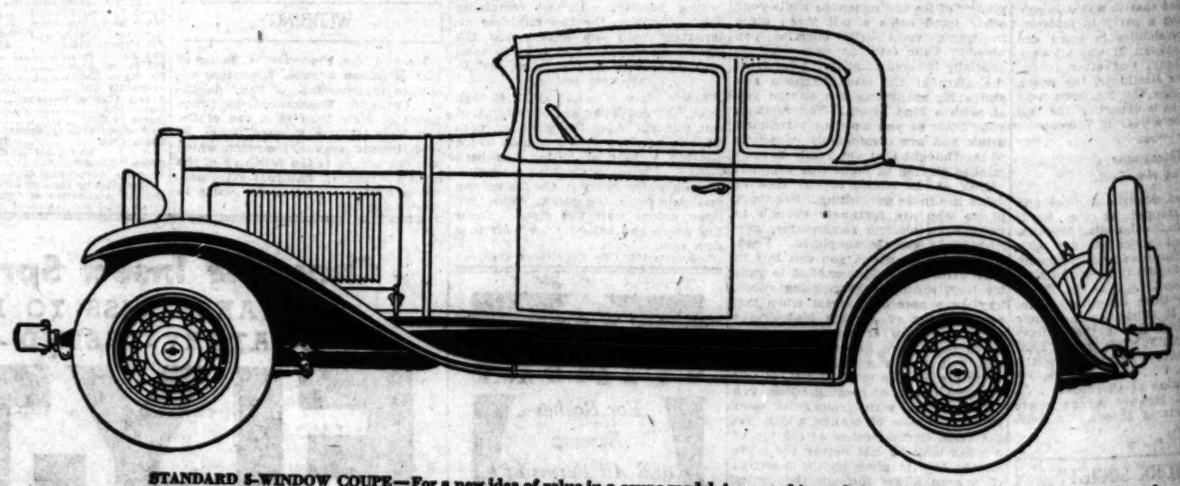
THE COACH—Make it a point to examine closely this family car. View the smartness of its wood-and-steel body by Fisher. Swing open the wide doors. Test the form-fitting driver's seat and adjust it to proper leg room. Then notice the space in the rear seat, the large amount of leg room, the richness of the upholstery, the width of the windows. With its many obvious advantages, this handsome, roomy car costs only $545



STANDARD SEDAN—If you want a four-door sedan providing maximum comfort at minimum cost, look over this beautiful five-passenger model. Get into the back seat of the Fisher body and notice how wide it is, how soft and restful the cushions are, how the beautiful fittings add to the luxurious appearance of the whole interior. Stretch your legs—you'll have ample room to do so. And, finally, note that the price of this big six is only $635



SPORT ROADSTER—See this swagger car if you are looking for a fast, smart open model. View the handsome ensemble of chrome-plated tie-bar, radiator grille, headlights and horn. Note how well the top is tailored. Open the rumble seat and see the ample knee room. Here is a sport car of genuine distinction—available in a wide choice of striking color combinations. Notice the smartly-appointed interior, yet it costs only $495



STANDARD 5-WINDOW COUPE—For a new idea of value in a coupe model, inspect this quality car. Notice the complete range of vision achieved by the 5-window feature. Notice, also, that the form-fitted seat is conveniently adjustable and that the windows can be quickly raised and lowered. This particularly attractive car has a wide package ledge and a generous rear deck. Yet with all these quality features, it is priced at only $545

CUBS WHIP BRAVES, 6-0, 3-2; TAKE 2D PLACE

Sox, Cubs to Give 100 Per Cent of Gate.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—They are planning a ball game for charity between the White Sox and the Cubs in Chicago and, strange to say, charity will get 100 per cent of the receipts. The ballplayers, managers, and promoters who have conducted shows in the interests of charity will regard this as a glorious precedent, for the understanding always has been that when charity's sake, they also head the list of benefactories.

In the Chicago ball game, Charles Comiskey and William Wrigley will pay all the expenses of the production before furnishing the ball clubs and the grounds; so, charity, for once, will receive the gross receipts and not the net.

There is a great difference between the gross receipts and the net in any proposition, but it is never so great as when the eleemosynary instinct seizes the gangsters and they fight for charity.

Leonard Bout Nets $17.

Benny Leonard, who is now returning to the ring, once fought for charity's sake in Chicago, and when all the worthy subjects connected with this laudable enterprise had helped themselves to the charity, each according to his needs and his conscience, the gross receipts of many thousands of dollars had dwindled to $17 net.

Rather oddly, the broken down prize fighter in whose aid the boys had given of themselves so generously was not properly grateful for the $17 net, and when the promoter of the contest went to him later on and said, "My boy, your condition is making my heart again, and I am going to run another benefit for you," he replied, "No you are not; it is my turn to run for you."

Last year Tuffy Griffith and Willie Ritchie obeyed that charitable impulse in Chicago, fighting ten rounds for the benefit of Gov. Emmerson's fund for the relief for the unemployed. This is the same fund that will receive the gross receipts, not the net, of the impending charity ball game. Tuffy and Willie drew a gate of $6,000, which was about $20,000 less than they would have drawn if charity had not assisted in the soundness of the ballyhoo.

It was a very successful show. The two needy young prize fighters who went down to their last few hundred borrowed dollars, divided $40,000 between them. Then there were the allowances for the expenses and, finally the promoters, in a pardonable pride, were able to report a net contribution to the governor's fund of $17.

They Like to Fight for Charity.

The trouble with charity in all charity prize fights is that everybody has a manager but charity. When charity is the drawing card, a manager would insist on a flat guarantee and the option of a percentage of the receipts. It would be no trifling percentage, either, because charity not only draws customers whom the prize fighters, themselves, could not draw, but obviously the government tax of about 16 per cent, thus enhancing the fighters' percentages, too.

A prizefight that would draw $50,000 under the auspices of the New York Yankees or the Chicago Stadium would be likely to draw $60,000 under the auspices of a charity. Moreover, under the management of the Garden or the Stadium that $60,000 would be subject to a tax of about $3,000, so that the fighter's percentage would be based on a gate of $42,000. But the same prizefight, produced under the charter of a charity fund, not only would draw the same money, but would enjoy exemption from the government tax. A percentage for 37½ per cent of the net would draw $15,750 under ordinary auspices, but $22,500 under the auspices of charity. It is no wonder that the prizefighters are numbered among the most enthusiastic charity workers in the United States.

Walker Disposes of Jack Gagnon in 37 Seconds

Walker, giving away 27 pounds to the Boston fighter, dropped Gagnon with a terrific right to the head 18 seconds after the opening bell. Gagnon staggered to his feet and Walker dropped him again, this time with a left hook and for the full count.

MICKEY WALKER.

A crowd of 8,000 saw the battle. Walker scaled 167 pounds; Gagnon, 205.

WHICH league plays better baseball, the National or American?

American league fans point to the consistency with which their representatives have won recent world series as the answer. You find many National league followers who claim the strength of the entire league is not centered in one club.

When the New York Yankees were the class of the American league they won the pennant easily. The same goes for the Athletics since their climb to the heights.

Reader L. W. J. submits the following idea to bring about a fairer comparison of league strength:

"Continue the world series as at present, the winning team to be acknowledged champions of the world.

"Then commence simultaneously a series of games, best four out of seven, by the other teams in both leagues. Let the second place National club play the second place American, and so on down to the eighth place teams.

"A schedule can be worked out similar to regular season play. When the Cubs, for instance, are playing Washington on the north side the Sox will be playing Pittsburgh in Pittsburgh. When the Cubs and Senators move to Washington the Pirates will come to Comiskey park to play the Sox.

"Thus there would be continuous baseball for a week or more in each of the cities having representatives in both leagues.

"When all of these contests are finished a tally will be taken to see which league has won most games. The league with the greater number of victories would be proclaimed league champion for the year. Thus it would be possible to have the Athletics, for example, champions of the world, but the National league the league champion.

"Baseball hasn't had a change in years and I believe adoption of a plan like this would have a wonderful reaction. It would help to keep alive the interest of fans in eighth place cities because the last place clubs would have as important a bearing on the league championship as the world series championship itself."

Until baseball leaders decide the suggestion has some merit, fans may turn their attention to the Sox-Cubs game on Sept. 9. This brings together a National league club that has been in the upper bracket all season and an American league team that has been playing "first division" ball for the last two or three weeks.

Chet Grant, a quarter back at Notre Dame 15 years ago, makes the following observations in regard to Westbrook Pegler's recent story about the hall system at Harvard that is to be and the hall system at Notre Dame that is:

"The story that the hall football teams at Notre Dame feed the varsity is a myth. Inter hall football is really the outlet for those who cannot or think they cannot make the varsity. It is a part of the general system at Notre Dame but in no sense a preparatory or even a supplementary phase of the football system. If we had no intercollegiate football, inter hall competition could and very likely would go on just the same.

"Joe Brandy, Pete Bahan and Cy Kasper reached the varsity squad by way of inter hall play. In all my time I recall no other hall players who became monogram wearers. I predict subsequent years will show the same ratio.

"At any rate recruiting from inter hall ranks is a minor incident to development of varsity teams. Writers by representing it as an integral factor of our football system intensify the erroneous impression that Notre Dame exists largely for football."

NEW YORK HAS GOLF LINKS WITH REAL 19TH HOLE

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Liquor is being sold at the "nineteenth hole" of the city owned Clearview Golf club at Whitestone, Queens, according to prohibition agents who appeared before Edward E. Fay, United States commissioner in Brooklyn.

Three agents who went to the club restaurant with three women last Saturday reported buying rounds of drinks for the party and arresting the two men in charge. The restaurant leasee, Charles F. Murphy, was held in $500 bail for a hearing Aug. 26, charged with possessing liquor and maintaining a nuisance.

HAWTHORNE FANS WITNESS PARLAY THAT IS A PARLAY

BY FRENCH LANE.

Old Bill Weant, who owns Oakland farm down in Kentucky, put over a double victory at Hawthorne yesterday that caused some 12,000 racegoers to gasp and wonder what was happening.

He started his big two horse parlay when he saddled Matadi for the Lake Bluff purse, which was the day's feature, and watched the son of Dunbar gallop to victory and pay $23.60 in the two dollar mutuels.

Thirty minutes later he slapped the saddle on Coady's sleek chestnut back, then loitered into the infield and watched this 4 year old son of Cherokee gallop straight home paying $20.10.

Mr. Weant used to be quite a betting man and most of his associates believe he made a good sized parlay on this pair. If he parlayed them for as much as $100—that was a small amount for Weant when he was in his prime—he got back $11,-$99.20, which is considerably more than his two horses are worth and which is probably considerably less than the veteran Kentuckian won on the day. Some folks say he had a $200 parlay riding but Weant, silent in such matters as most Kentuckians are, only shook his head and said, "I wish it had been a $500 parlay."

And Then He Quit.

Matadi had just left the selling plater ranks before stepping into the Lake Bluff purse, which engaged a band most of which had been beating each other as regularly as they had been coming together.

Abdel, after winning the last time he faced the same sort of opposition, was made the favorite and he flattered his backers when he pulled out into a lead of six lengths going down the back stretch.

It looked like he was going to head into the stretch about twelve lengths in front, then loaf on home. He did head into the stretch far ahead of all the others, but proved that his heart isn't quite as big as his many backers believed it to be. He started to quit, and once he began to shorten his strides, no horse ever gave a better exhibition of quitting. He dropped right back to nowhere and Quatre Bras II., Very Well and Matadi moved on past and started one of the liveliest fights of the year at Hawthorne.

A sixteenth out Very Well's nose was showing in front and it looked like the folks who bet on Ald. John Coughlin's horses were going to collect on a 66 to 1 shot. Another second and Quatre Bras II.'s nose was out there. Then Matadi moved up on the outside and whipped them both, beating Quatre Bras II. by a nose and Very Well by three-quarters of a length.

Alderman Almost Smiles.

It was the second time in as many racing days that Coughlin horses had a chance to make the alderman smile. Karl Eitel failed at long odds in the Illinois Owners handicap last Saturday.

When Coady won the mile and a furlong fifth race it was an even greater shock. He had been beaten lately by some pretty cheap horses. In this contest he was running against $3,000 and $3,500 horses. Yet Jockey Lefoy Cunningham shot him to the front as the start was made and he kept him there despite some stout challenges which Montanaro, John Mackler and Tela made. He wound up by beating Montanaro by a neck, with Tela third but dropping back at a rapid clip.

Couldn't blame Weant for the loud howl he let out over in the infield. Neither could you blame him for tossing his old straw bonnett into the infield lake.

CHICAGO JOCKEY IS THREATENED AFTER VICTORY

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—A story that Jockey Dave Bryant of Louisville had been chased out of Chicago by a band of hoodlums after he had refused to "pull" the horse Givanna in a race at Hawthorne on Aug. 11 was related here today by relatives of the jockey.

"In the race," so the story goes, "At Sunrise was a topheavy favorite and Bryant was warned beforehand that if he came on and won with Givanna he would find himself in trouble.

"The jockey didn't think he had much of a chance with Givanna so paid no attention to the threats. But at the head of the stretch Givanna began to run and went on to beat the favorite, At Sunrise, by a length and a half.

Warned to Leave Chicago.

"The same persons who warned the jockey not to win with Givanna were waiting for him at his hotel in Cicero when the lad returned after the races. They told him to leave town immediately or go for a ride. So he left Cicero and returned to Louisville."

Jockey Bryant, after spending the last few days here, left Louisville tonight for Dade Park, where he expects to begin riding tomorrow, and could not be reached to verify the statement his relatives had made.

According to the story, Bryant told his relatives his victory on Givanna had smashed a $60,000 betting coup which Cicero plungers had attempted to put over on At Sunrise.

One of Bryant's eyes was badly discolored when he arrived here, but the jockey said he got the bump on the eye while exercising a horse the morning before he left Cicero.

HAWTHORNE INVESTIGATES.

Joseph A. Murphy, presiding steward at Hawthorne, said last night that Hawthorne officials had been investigating the Bryant case since the jockey quit riding at Hawthorne last Tuesday.

"We have learned," Judge Murphy said, "that Bryant, while riding Givanna in the race, had told a number of his acquaintances to bet on At Sunrise if they wanted to win some money. The people whom Bryant told to bet on At Sunrise became angry at Bryant after they saw him ride his horse out and beat the horse he had told them to wager on.

"They possibly threatened him. As far as we can learn he left Chicago without any harm coming to him."

Estelle Replies to Jack's Suit with One of Her Own

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—A double-barreled attack on Jack Dempsey's divorce plans was decided upon tonight by Estelle Taylor, his actress wife.

First, she signed her own divorce complaint, charging Dempsey with extreme cruelty. It will be filed tomorrow in the Los Angeles Superior court.

Secondly, it was agreed to resist Dempsey's own suit, filed today in Reno, to the last ditch. This will take the form of an attack upon the jurisdiction of the Nevada courts on the ground that Jack is a legal resident of this state. Miss Taylor's attorney, Joseph Scott, also is planning to go to Reno and take a hand in the Dempsey hearing, fighting every inch of the way, and permitting Jack no "setup."

After months of attorneys' conferences in Reno, San Francisco and Los Angeles, and innumerable statements from both sides, the domestic troubles of the celebrated pair are now certain to be aired in the courts.

Blame Jack's "Temperament."

Scott, in announcing the move, attributed the dropping of negotiations to "Dempsey's temperament" and asserted his wife had made only modest demands in the distribution of their community holdings.

Miss Taylor, in her complaint, makes general charges of cruelty but gives no specific instances, and the document is not sensational.

It states that her pugilist husband for a long time prior to the date of separation, has been guilty of extreme cruelty in his conduct toward the plaintiff in that he wrongfully inflicted upon plaintiff grievous mental pain and suffering without justification or excuse.

It also refers to the recent visit of Joe Dempsey, Jack's brother, to Los Angeles and his taking an expensive automobile away from Miss Taylor while she was attending a beach party. This act, it is asserted, was done prior to divorce proceedings and the car is declared to be the property of Miss Taylor, a gift from Dempsey.

Continuous Ill Treatment.

Ill treatment is alleged in a generalized statement which says, that "continuously since the date of marriage, said defendant has by particular acts of conduct, the exact time and place of which the plaintiff does not remember, and by a general course of conduct which plaintiff believes defendant to have pursued for the purpose of harrassing and molesting and otherwise disturbing her, has caused the plaintiff to suffer great and grievous mental pain and suffering and mental anguish."

It is set forth that the couple were married at San Diego on Feb. 1, 1925. The date of separation is given as March 11, 1931. On this date, Miss Taylor declares, Dempsey left their Hollywood home "without the consent of the plaintiff" and has not returned.

WHITE SOX CALL DR. WEILAND TOO LATE; LOSE, 3-2

Bob Rescues Caraway and Holds Boston Scoreless

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Bob Weiland pitched brilliantly in a lost cause yesterday in the White Sox final with the Boston Red Sox. Robert got in the game with none out in the second inning after the Red Sox had scored all the runs with which they thrashed the Comiskeys, 3 to 2.

The first 20 men to face Weiland failed to reach first. Then just before he was to conclude his work in favor of a pinch batter, he allowed the bases to be filled before accomplishing his 21st and final putout. Which is a sight of good pitching to be wasted.

It was the second time in eight days that Weiland's fine efforts were wasted. The first day of his recall he pitched a 1 to 0 game. Yesterday, however, he was not charged with the loss, because Pat Caraway had been present long enough to register his 18th setback of the year.

In Tie for Sixth Place.

The licking was the third suffered by the White Sox in the four game series with the Red Sox, and yesterday's reversal plunked them in a tie with the Bostonians for sixth and seventh places in the American league.

There are those who fear that the tie will not prevail throughout the week, for the Red Sox will open against the tail end Detroit Tigers tomorrow, whereas there is some possibility that the White Sox will not fatten up against the world champion Athletics, who come to Comiskey park tomorrow. The Chicagoans will rest today.

Connie Mack was kind enough not to start Lefty Grove against the White Sox in the last Philadelphia series, but his benevolence is not expected to prevail in this town. Lefty has signified that tomorrow would be a good day for him to hang up his 25th victory of the season—against the team that has administered one of the two defeats he has suffered this year. Red Faber will seek to veto this big idea.

Van Camp Foils Sox Rally.

The Red Sox came out of the first inning with the score 1 to 0 in their favor, mostly because Van Camp made a one hand leaping catch to cut off two White Sox runs.

The visitors got their run because Rhyne doubled off Sullivan's bare hand and came home on Miller's single to center.

In the White Sox half of the first Sullivan singled with one down, pause while Reynolds flied to Webb and went to third on Fonseca's single to right. Norman then drove the ball to left and for a while it looked like a homer, or at least a triple. But Van Camp backed against the wall, leaped at the right instant, and pulled down the ball in his gloved hand.

Caraway didn't see a putout in the second inning. Pat walked Oliver. Then Pickering tripled to right to score him. Berry singled to left, scoring Pickering, and Weiland came on the scene in place of Caraway. Weiland got the side out without further distress.

Weiland Makes a Run.

Weiland got around in the third because of an accident to Rhyne. Bob led off with a single and went to second on Blue's infield out. Sullivan sent a grounder to Rhyne, but Hal caught his spike in the soil, causing him to fall just as he was throwing. The ball went to the boxes, Weiland scoring and Sullivan pulling up at second. Reynolds flied to Oliver and Rhyne threw out Fonseca.

After Norman had popped to Pickering to start the fourth, Kerr doubled to right and went to third while Cissell was beating out an infield single. Grube then grounded to Rhyne, who launched a double play, Pickering to Sweeney. Umpire Dinneen's decision on the first base end of the play brought a concerted protest from the White Sox cast when it appeared Grube had beaten the throw by two or three steps, but it stood as a double play and Kerr's run didn't count.

Rhyne was the twenty-first batsman

2d Goes 10 Innings Before Smith Wins.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 17.—Winning doubles headers is becoming a habit with the Cubs. They annexed another twin triumph today, victimizing the Braves first, 6 to 0, and then, 3 to 2, in a struggle which went ten innings because the Chicagoans tossed away the winning run in the ninth on a terrible bit of base running by Bobby Smith when pinch batter Hornsby delivered a long fly with the bags loaded. The happy conclusion moved the Chicagoans into second place, which is where most of the experts think they belong.

Not many things of a stirring nature took place in the first battle. It began as a struggle between Pat Malone and Bruce Cunningham, an ex-Cub, but the latter was gone and forgotten long before the finish. The cause of his banishment was a noisy fifth inning in which all the runs of the battle poured over the plate in a bunch. As compensation for this bit of roughhousing on the part of the Cubs, the Braves were rewarded with only three hits off Malone, who wouldn't have permitted an enemy to reach second base if Gabby Hartnett hadn't committed a pair of passed balls.

Bell's Error Hurts Smith.

With both Smith and Old Man Tom Zachary dueling in the pre-dinner engagement, the business of scoring was exceedingly dull, at least for seven innings. But the Cubs, with an explosion of hits, broke the depression with two runs in the eighth. The lead was short lived, but it wasn't Smith's fault. Les Bell erred on a ball that should have ended the home half scoreless and Randy Moore, an ex-White Stocking performer, went through the opening with a triple. The error ruined what otherwise would have been a beautiful pitching effort by the veteran from Georgia.

That luck evens up in the long run was evident in the tenth when the winning run took form. With Ed Brandt on the job as the last hope of the Braves, Grimm poked a grounder to Moore, who immediately erased all the glory of his triple. He pegged so wild to first that Grimm took two bases. Hartnett's deep fly to right let Der Kaptink go to third, whence he scored on a single down the third base line by Bell. Thus the latter atoned for his costly blunder in the eighth.

Lon Warneke and Willie Sherdel will pitch in the final of the series tomorrow.

FIRST GAME

The high powered jolt which involved all the scoring in the first game began when Malone singled to center with one out in the fifth. He rumbled to third on Blair's double to right center. A pass to English filled the bases. Cuyler slapped a single over Maguire's head, Malone and Blair scoring and English sprinting to third. Barton singled to center and followed Cuyler across the plate when Wilson poled a triple into the right center field corner. Cantwell relieved Cunningham of further embarrassment and closed the rumpus without further damage except a single by Hartnett, which moved Hack across the plate.

Outside of this one large inning the Cub attack was noticeably impotent. There were only four hits outside the half dozen bunched for profit in the fifth. Cuyler singled after a pass to English with one out in the first, but neither Barton nor Wilson could propel the ball outside the infield. Grimm opened the second with a single and was stranded on first. Hack beat out a single over Cantwell's head after two were gone in the seventh and

Garden Demands Examination of Schmeling's Eye

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—An official investigation of international scope is to be conducted by the Madison Square Garden corporation of Illinois into the injury which Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion, reports will prevent him from fulfilling a contract to defend his title next month in this country against Primo Carnera.

This became known today when William V. Saxe, president of the Illinois corporation, revealed that he has cabled the National Boxing association affiliates in Germany, requesting an official examination of Schmeling.

William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden corporation of this city, explained that the European investigation is being conducted through the N. B. A. at the wish of Carnera.

CARDS, GIANTS BREAK EVEN IN DOUBLE HEADER

St. Louis Wins First, 6-5; New York 2d, 7-5.

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—A five-run rally in the eighth inning of the final game of a double header gave the New York Giants an even break against the St. Louis Cardinals today. The Cards won the opener, 6 to 5, while the Giants took the second game, 7 to 5.

Paul Derringer had the Giants well in hand in the second game until he blew up in the eighth. Terry starting the rally with a home run and finishing it by grounding out. A four-run rally in the same inning decided the first game although the Giants made a bid by counting three times in the ninth. Bottomley and Hafey hit home runs in the Cards' big inning. Scores:

died stealing. Then in the eighth Bell, who previously had exploded three beautiful drives only to have them flagged, doubled down the right field line with two out.

Part of the limited amount of annoyance the Braves were able to furnish Malone came in the first inning. Richbourg scratched a hit to English and went to second on a passed ball. Spohrer singled in the second and was forced by Urbanski. Then there was a long period of depression for the Tribe. Between the second and the ninth Maguire was the only hostile to survive and he was hit in the ribs. In the last inning Malone made his performance less brilliant by walking Maranville, who was washed up in a double play, after which Berger delivered the Braves' third hit.

SECOND GAME

The Cubs had a lot of chances in the first six innings of the second game, but none so good as one which bobbed in the seventh. After Hartnett's demise on a fly to right, Bell singled through short and Smith forced him. Jurges lined safely to right center for his third single of the contest and Smith hurried to third. Luck then intervened in behalf of the Braves. English poked a hard grounder toward first and Neun managed to touch the ball with the tip of his glove. It caromed straight to Maguire, who pegged it back to Neun in time to get the decision.

The break through Zachary's defense in the eighth began with Cuyler hitting the right field wall just inside the flagpole for two bases. Cuyler tore home on Barton's single to center, and the latter moved down to second on the throw in. Wilson flied to right and it was deep enough to let Barton go to third. He sauntered home when Grimm singled to center. Hartnett singled past Maguire, so Frankhouse was called in. He induced Bell to bounce gently into a double play.

Bell's Error Hurts.

A single by Schulmerich, batting for Frankhouse, started Boston's tying effort in the eighth. The next two men popped out, and nothing would have happened if Bell had come up with Berger's hopper. Instead he booted it. Moore than tripled against the right field bleachers, Schulmerich and Berger carrying home the tying runs. The inning ended with Worthington flying to Barton.

The setting for the Cubs' colossal blunder in the ninth had its start in Smith's single off Brandt. Jurges sacrificed and English singled to right. Smith halted at third and English raced to second on the throw to the plate. Cuyler was purposely passed and Hornsby decided he would swing for Barton, who dislikes southpaws. Hornsby hammered a treacherous liner toward right and Smith started home. When Richbourg caught the ball Smith dashed back to tag third, but it was then too late to make another break for the plate. Wilson flied to center to close the unhappy incident.

Jimmy Adair, the new infielder from Reading, is due to make his appearance in a Cub uniform tomorrow. Should the Braves work a southpaw, Hornsby intends to give the 22 year old phenom a chance to show what he might do as a third baseman.

CINCINNATI WINS DOUBLE HEADER FROM BROOKLYN

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds made their last appearance of the season at Ebbetts' field today and won a double header from the Brooklyn Robins to even the series. The scores were 4 to 1 and 8 to 3.

The first game was a pitchers' duel between Bill Clark and Silas Johnson until the eighth, when an error and a hit caused Manager Robinson to send in Relief Pitcher Jack Quinn. Quinn was ineffective and the Reds scored three runs.

The second game was all Cincinnati as Owen Carroll held the Robins to six hits and his teammates drove Babe Phelps from the mound with a five-run attack in the third inning. Scores:

COURT DISMISSES CHARGE AGAINST UMPIRE GOETZ

Columbus, O., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Charges of assault and battery against Larry Goetz, Milwaukee, American association umpire, were dismissed today in Municipal court by Judge Joseph Clifford, who ruled that evidence in the case was contradictory.

The charges against Goetz were filed Saturday by G. K. Pinkerton, Columbus, following a game between Columbus and Kansas City, during which pop bottles were hurled at Goetz by fans. Pinkerton charged that Goetz attacked him after leaving the ball park.

man to face Weiland and the first to reach first base. He did it with a single to center after Russell and Van Camp had fanned in the eighth. He went to second on Miller's single and proceeded to third when Reynolds juggled the ball. Webb walked, filling the bases. Then Sullivan threw out Sweeney.

Just a Single Would Have Helped.

The White Sox were one single away from tying the score in the eighth. After Pinch Batter Fothergill had been tossed out, Blue singled to left and was forced by Sullivan. Reynolds then dropped a double on the right foul line and Sullivan stopped at third. The rally ended when Fonseca tapped to Russell.

The White Sox made a run in the ninth. Cissell tripled and came home on a passed ball. Jolley then hit a mammoth drive, which would have been a homer to either right or left. But as it was it went to center and simply gave the fleet and talented Mr. Oliver a chance to do his stuff.

SHADE WINS IN A ROMP; ESCAPES OSTER'S WALLOPS

Bobbing Dave Puzzles Boston Slugger.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Dave Shade of California outfought and outclassed Willie Oster last night at White City to win a ten round decision with a mastery which was as humiliating to the Boston middleweight as it was effective. And there was none in the crowd of 4,500 who disputed the decision.

DAVE SHADE.

In only the sixth round did Oster have any chance. Even then it was with Shade's permission. From the first session, when Dave dashed and weaved about the ring baffled Oster, peppering him with easy lefts and rights, until the last few minutes, when he duplicated the performance, it was Shade's show.

The veteran of 13 years in the ring was magnificent on defense as only a fighter can be who is superior in speed and brain. In the third it seemed as if he pulled up sharply when he had Oster helpless on the ropes.

Infuriated Willie is Helpless.

Shade's oft repeated question, loud enough to carry to the ring-side announcer: "How did you ever knock out anyone?" was the goad which Dave applied to his foe. Whether Shade meant to worry Oster or not, he incited infuriated Willie, who could do nothing about it.

The fight of the night was between Harry Firpo, Newcastle, Pa., middleweight, and Johnny Burns of California. Firpo won in eight rounds, adding to victory in the last six minutes. His sharp left hooks and jabs did more damage than Burns' furious but sometimes misdirected infighting.

George Nevos, a Chicago Greek heavyweight, outwrestled Emil Johnson, a Chicago Swede, in five rounds, neither could hit and the timid display evidenced by Johnson gave Nevos the advantage.

Wistert Wins Comeback.

Jim Wistert, South Chicago heavyweight, returned to the ring after nearly a year's absence because of a dislocated shoulder and whipped Julio Matousek in five rounds. Billy Gladstone, former Central A. A. featherweight champion, now scaling 130 pounds, won a close four-round battle with Glen Camp of Chicago.

In the four-round opener Joey Bosak was decisioned by Leroy Dugan.

Hymie Malloy announced that the gate receipts were $4,030.95. Only 1,600 paid. The others were women who were admitted without charge.

OWL PROVES DUD CROW DECOY AS DARKNESS NEARS

BY BOB BECKER.

The great horned owl, either alive or stuffed, always has been a success as a lure in hunting crows, but, judging from our experience a few evenings ago, old Bubo, the hated enemy of crows, is pretty much of a bust as a decoy on a sundown crow hunt. Instead of swooping to attack the owl decoy and circling and calling to all birds to get on the job at once, crows which spotted our owl decoy the other evening seemed to be too frightened to fight and found the business of getting to their night roost very pressing.

This experiment with the crows was staged on a farm west of Wheaton, Ill. The field selected was a rolling piece of country with trees on a hill at the end of the tract, a pond in the low part of the meadow, and a stand of hickory and oak trees near it.

Set Out Two Decoys.

Two owl decoys were used. A live bird was placed outside a group of thornapple trees on top of the hill. Several shooters concealed themselves in this vegetation.

About an eighth of a mile below this location in a grove of trees a mounted owl was placed on a fence post. This grove had about 60 crows in it when we drove through about seven o'clock. The flock moved westward into other timber and the assumption was that many of them would come back because it looked as if the birds wanted to roost in this particular group of oaks.

Two of us sat down about 35 yards from the owl decoy. In about 15 minutes a few crows appeared, apparently on their way to roost. The first one to arrive saw the decoy, cawed loudly and circled a couple of times. We let him swing around and continue his broadcasting so that he would bring up the rest of the flock.

Too Near Night.

Then came the surprise. The crows instead of charging the owl decoy and raising a big rumpus streaked away as if they felt that twilight was no time to fool around a great horned owl, the bird being such a killer when night comes. Later we got in a shot at two birds that were flying over the decoy on their way to roost.

This pair saw the stuffed owl, cawed half heartedly a couple of times and, without hesitating a second, speeded up for their roost. Judging by this experience, sundown at this time of the year is no time to stir up action among the crows with the use of a horned owl. Apparently the black rascals wisely consider it good business to leave old Bubo, the killer, alone when night is at hand.

Marge Roesslein Cards 88 to Lead State Women's Trials

GRIFFITH MEETS O'KELLY MONDAY AT WHITE CITY

Tuffy Griffith will make his next start at the White City arena Monday night when he faces Con O'Kelly of Ireland. Mique Malloy is presenting the show.

O'Kelly beat Gramoco Bergomas at Madison Square Garden several weeks ago. He holds a win over Ernie Schaaf and fought Jimmy Maloney a draw. He lost a decision to King Levinsky a few months ago at Boston.

Tuffy will be making his first start since he defeated Paul Pantaleo at White City last month. It was Griffith's fight all the way. Malloy will sign the supporting card today.

JIM FOULIS TOPS PROS WITH 68 IN STATE TOURNEY

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Jimmy Foulis of Hinsdale, a rank outsider in the championship guessing, stormed over the Quincy Country club today with a brilliant 68 to take a three shot lead at the halfway mark of the 36 hole struggle for the first Illinois state professional golf championship.

Without even a fair acquaintance with the lightning fairways and badly burned greens, Foulis was right at home during his journey. He went out in 34, one under par, and came back with the same score to bound into the lead and to equal the course record.

Trailing Foulis by three shots came Abe Espinosa of Chicago, the only other entry to the more than 60 starters to equal par. Abe went out in 36 and returned with a par 35 to lead the field until Foulis, without a single galleryite at his heels, posted his tally. His more famous brother, Al, and Gunnar Nelson of Rockford finished right behind him with 72's.

Five others came in with 73's. Jimmy Noonan, Chicago; George Dernbach, Chicago; B. Herd, Chicago; Johnny Rusnak, Macomb; and J. Drucker, another Chicagoan. Harry Cooper of Chicago, the ranking favorite with Al Espinosa, started with a fine 35, but wound up with a 46, principally because of a seven on the 18th, where he drove two balls out of bounds. His 75 total placed him far down the list as exactly 20 members of the field had that score or better. Foulis' card:

Foulis—out	444	345	334—34

Private Course Golfers Ask Old Ball Be Returned

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The old golf ball is still the choice of golfers in the Chicago district, regardless of whether the vote is taken on private or daily fee courses. A month ago THE TRIBUNE completed its poll of the daily fee courses and the old ball defeated its new rival by an overwhelming vote. First reports at seven private clubs throughout this neighborhood indicate that the pellet discarded by the United States Golf association at the beginning of this year will win by an even larger margin than on the daily fee courses.

Two clubs—Park Ridge and Knollwood—already have been polled and the combined ballot for the pair resulted in a vote of 60 players who demand the return of the old ball, while only ten are in favor of retaining the new. Five other clubs—Flossmoor, Glen View, Elmhurst, Olympia Fields, and Chicago Golf—also are conducting a poll. Members may obtain blanks at any of these. When filled out they are asked to turn them over to the club professional, who will send them to the golf editor of THE TRIBUNE.

Another point noted in the ballot at Park Ridge was that the new ball did not make half as commendable a showing in the approaching and putting departments as it did with daily fee golfers. Forty-eight voters were opposed to the shot to the green with the new ball and 22 favored it. In the matter of putting, 54 stated they didn't care to make their putts with the present ball and only 14 championed the cause of the new ball on the green.

The vote on Park Ridge and Knollwood follows:

PARK RIDGE.

Want old ball back	51
Want to keep new one	8
Like approach with new ball	20
Don't like it	32
Like putt with new ball	13
Don't like it	46

KNOLLWOOD.

Want old ball back	9
Want to keep new one	2
Like approach with new ball	2
Don't like it	9
Like putt with new ball	1
Don't like it	10

Among the comments included with the ballots were the following:

New ball almost has ruined golf for me.—J. R. Histed, Knollwood.

Wind affects new ball too much.—H. E. Hughes, Park Ridge.

New ball is inferior in every respect.—A. N. Clagett, Park Ridge.

Like size of new ball and weight of old ball.—H. Reck, Park Ridge.

Would not like to see old ball come back, but would like to see new ball made heavier.—J. J. Wade Jr., Knollwood.

PRETTY POLLY DIES.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Pretty Polly, who won $197,000 in her day as a racing filly, died today at the age of 30. During her four seasons on the track she was defeated only twice.

WHAT'S THIS? A CHARITY GAME FOR CHARITY!

charity by the prizefighters in New York, the two principal philanthropists were Jack Sharkey, an inveterate altruist whose career has been marked by many such sacrifices, and Mickey Walker, who is by no means a novice humanitarian himself. The boys split the nominal sum of $34,000 between them out of gross receipts of $223,000. The charitable object was reported to have received $35,000, which was not at all bad as such things go.

The greatest purse ever turned over to charity from a sporting event was the $607,412 given to the Salvation Army after the Army-Navy game in New York last year. Even so, this production was not a complete charitable success, because Mr. Grover Whalen could not realize that the customers needed charitable treatment themselves and overpriced the tickets.

Donate a Baseball "Natural."

The proprietors of the Chicago ball clubs may seem to be gathering much credit for a small contribution, inasmuch as their teams will have to be paid anyway and the plant maintenance is taken care of in their regular overhead charge. Their out of pocket expense will not be very large, either.

But it happens that the White Sox and Cubs this year will be opponents in a renewal of the old Chicago city series unless the Cubs overtake the Cardinals. When the prize fighters fight for charity they argue that a natural rivalry is goods on their shelves which they should not be asked to sell for less than the market price. Mr. Comiskey and Mr. Wrigley are donating not only the clubs, the grounds, and the cash expense, but a baseball "natural."

Unemployment is not local to Chicago and a similar showdown between the Giants and the Yankees in New York under similar conditions might help. But charity prizefighters would hardly relieve the situation, for it takes about ten dollars of spending to yield a quarter's worth of relief. If the public had enough money to buy that many prize fight tickets there would be no need of charity.

HELEN MOODY IS 6-0, 6-0 VICTOR IN 21 MINUTES

Favorites Have Field Day as Tourney Opens.

Forest Hills, L. I., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Wielding her racquet with the same crushing force that enabled her to capture six national titles, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody of Berkeley, Cal., returned to national tennis competition today after a year's absence, to rout Edith Sigourney of Boston, Mass., a first-ten star of other days, in love sets, 6-0, 6-0, in her opening bid for the 44th annual championship The match consumed just 21 minutes.

The champion appeared to be at the top of her form, but her opponent offered so little opposition that the ease with which she won may have been misleading. Mrs. Moody did display more versatility than usual, however, and indicated that she will use more finesse and less power in her attempt to recover her laurels from the present possessor, Betty Nuthall of England.

Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., removed Mae Ceurvorst of Wichita, Kas., from the championship by means of a 6-2, 6-2 victory. An inaugural crowd of 1,000 was given the impression that Miss Jacobs is ready to make the best bid of her career for the title.

Mrs. Harper Victor.

Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper of Oakland, Cal., who, according to the ranking, is America's premier player, but in reality is not in a class with Mrs. Moody and Miss Jacobs, romped to a 6-1, 6-0 triumph over Olga Kalios of Norwalk, Conn. Another seeded contender, Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana, Cal., followed her into the second round, beating Mrs. William M. Shedden of Boston, Mass., 6-2, 6-0.

Numerous favorites came through. Mrs. John Van Ryn defeated Mrs. Elizabeth Rebold of New York, 6-2, 6-0; Miss Phyllis Mudford of England defeated Mrs. Anna Fuller Hubbard, 6-3, 6-0; Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, England, defeated Miss Rosamund Newton, 6-1, 6-0; Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup defeated Miss Anna Page, 6-1, 6-0.

Helen Jacobs Wins.

Miss Ceurvorst, playing in the big event for the first time, performed creditably, and in spurts held her own against her veteran opponent, but Miss Jacobs won points almost at will when she chose to go after them in earnest. She relied chiefly on chop strokes and drop shots, resorting to straight driving only when she had to protect her lead.

Miss Jacobs used Miss Ceurvorst as a practice target for the shots with which she hopes to make a strong bid for the title. Her varied attack lured her opponent into errors and earned the first set for the Californian at 6-2.

Miss Jacobs, apparently satisfied with her workout for the day, set about to terminate the match speedily. She broke through in the third game of the second set at love, registered another shut-out against service in the fifth and then won her serve again to end the set at 6-2.

Miss Alice Marble of San Francisco, the girl who forced a remaking of the championship draw when her entry was lost in the mail, was eliminated by Miss Mary Greef of Kansas City at 6-2, 6-2.

BRITT IS KILLED.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 17.—(AP)—James Birse, 27, of Valois, a suburb, one time flyweight boxing champion of Canada, was killed yesterday when his automobile swerved from the road and turned over in a ditch. The former prizefighter was better known as Jimmy Britt.

Guard HAIR against SUN and WATER with Vitalis!

HOT sun and water are your hair's worst enemies. From the minute you crack your first drive down the fairway or step on the springboard, your hair is in danger. Before long, it's parched, bleached out, split off—tousled by every breeze that blows. The natural oils dry out, leading to dandruff and thinning hair.

This summer—before leaving the club for hours in the open, take 2 minutes to rub Vitalis into your scalp. Then let sun and swimming do their worst!

Your hair will be healthy, lustrous, and stay neatly in place. Ask your barber about Vitalis. And get a bottle today from your druggist.

BARBERS PRESCRIBE IT! When your barber examines your hair, and suggests Vitalis, remember he's prescribing for a condition he understands. Follow his advice. He knows what Vitalis can do for hair health.

GRAND CIRCUIT TROTTERS OPEN AURORA MEET

Calumet Butler Races Tomorrow.

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Stars of the harness horse world were quartered tonight at the Exposition Park Jockey club track for the four day Grand Circuit meeting which opens tomorrow at the Central States fair. Among the noted performers is Calumet Butler, which won a surprising victory over Nedda Guy and other great 3 year old trotters in the $60,000 Hambletonian stake at Goshen, N. Y., last Friday.

Nedda Guy will not be on hand to renew the duel, but Calumet Butler will be challenged by Charlotte Hanover from the Hanover stables of Hanover, Pa. Thomas Berry will drive Charlotte, who was the winter book favorite for the Hambletonian. Berry has a feeling that he will even scores at Aurora.

Meet in Hotel Baker Stake.

The race in which the two meet is the Hotel Baker stake on Wednesday. A half dozen of the best 3 year old trotters in the country will add to the competition.

During the meeting turf enthusiasts will have an opportunity to witness two of the world's fastest racing geldings in action. They are Winnipeg, owned by Ed Baker of St. Charles and piloted by Sep Palin of Indianapolis, and Kinney Direct, owned by J. B. Reynolds of Kansas City, Mo., and driven by R. S. Parker of Smithville, Mo. These two will meet in the Aurora 2:06 pace, a purse of $1,000, on Aug. 21. Winnipeg now holds the world's record of 1:57¾ for pacing geldings against time and Kinney Direct holds the record for 1:59 for pacing geldings in a race.

Three Races Today.

Tomorrow three races are to be run, two for trotters and pacers of the "2:15 class which have never started on a mile track. The other race is the Elgin, a stake for 2:18 trotters. Followers of the harness horse game seem to be showing more interest in the race for the mile track debutantes than in the contest for the seasoned performers.

Jubilate Pays 30-1, High for Saratoga Meet

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The longest priced winner of the Saratoga meeting scored today when the veteran trainer, Gwyn Tompkins, sent out Jubilate to be a driving victor in the 39th running of the Catskill Claiming stakes at 30 to 1. The Catskill was worth $5,800 to the winner and was over the seven furlong route.

Mrs. Alfred Sloane is the owner of the Brookmeade stable, whose colors Jubilate bore. She is in Scotland. The colt ran up off a hot pace and came driving down the stretch under urging by the western jockey, Eugene James, that was a pattern of form. Jubilate carried 104 pounds and was timed in 1:24.

James scored a double for the day. In the Fonda purse, which was the race before the feature, he brought the Everglade stable's Dodgson from last place to first in the same kind of a drive that was later to win with Jubilate.

Tompkins now has scored twice with Jubilate since the meeting began. Last week Jubilate broke running, led from start to finish, and finished seven furlongs through the mud in 1:38 2-5 with as good a horse as Pari-Mutuel driving behind him.

MATE TRIES AGAIN

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—In an effort to prove he deserves to rule the 3 year olds of the turf, A. C. Bostwick's Mate, badly beaten in the Saranac handicap, will make his second start of the Saratoga meeting in the $3,500 Kenner stakes tomorrow.

The twice conqueror of Twenty Grand as a 3 year old finished a badly beaten colt in the Saranac, which was decided over a mile, but tomorrow the distance will be three-sixteenths of a mile farther—a factor that should favor the son of Prince Pal. He will be asked to meet the same class of colts that showed him the way home in the Saranac, with the addition of Mrs. Katherine E. Hitt's Sun Meadow, which outgamed Jamestown to finish second back of Twenty Grand in the Belmont stakes.

Neither will Mate be asked to give away so much weight, as the lightest weighted of the six overnight starters are Rocky News and Blenheim, with 113 pounds each.

Danour, the 2 year old which won the Saranac, will have 123 pounds in the saddle, only 3 less than has been assigned to Mate and Sir Ashley. Sun Meadow will pick up 117 pounds.

$4,200 IS DAY'S TOP PRICE AT SARATOGA SALE

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Another week of bidding at the yearling sales opened tonight with a smaller crowd, partly due to showery weather, and the lowest average price per head of the current season. Forty-seven baby thoroughbreds changed hands for a grand total of $30,125, averaging $641. The highest single price was $4,200, which Andrew Jackson Joyner paid for a bay son of High Cloud out of Lassie, from the consignment of Dr. M. W. Williams.

This colt is a half-brother to many winners and a full brother to Flier, a horse which ran a mile in 1:36 1-5 and won the Jubilant purse. His dam, Lassie, was a winner and has given a number of notable winners to the turf.

Tigers Recall Outfielder from Toronto Club

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Detroit baseball club today announced the recall of Gerald Walker, outfielder, from Toronto of the International association. Walker, a brother of Harvey Walker, Tiger outfielder, came from Evansville originally.

SUN FIRE, easily best, was under restraint in the early racing and, coming fast when called upon, moved to the front rounding the stretch turn and was in hand at the finish. WINNIE JO, forced to the outside in the last quarter, but was no match for the winner. BRUSH made up ground and was going well at the end. MAECENAS tired after heading the field briefly at the stretch turn. STICK-MUDDED and THUNWIN stopped when the real racing began. GREY GULL was badly outrun.

COLONIAL BELLE on the outside in the early stages, caught the leaders at the stretch turn and, assuming a handy advantage as eighth out, won easily. PORTER'S DREAM finished very fast to beat out Bryonia. BRYONIA was always well up and raced fairly well to the finish. LATE DATE came fast in the final furlong. REPLACEMENT DEMAND SEEN IN SOME LINES

Survey Finds Signs of Revival.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Just as periods of depression are born of inflation, whether in securities or commodities or both, so eras of prosperity are born of deflation. With the accompanying factors of reduced consumption and even greater curtailed production of goods.

It is the history of boom times that production is vastly stimulated but is usually fairly readily absorbed. Whether or not inflation of inventories by manufacturer and merchant and consumers purchase commodities first have a considerable period of life to more than usual degree. The end of the cycle reverses this process and depression usually lasts until consumers' wares are used up or become obsolete. Then replacement ushers in a new era of prosperity.

Analysis of this cyclical movement is outlined in the current issue of the CHICAGO TRIBUNE business survey. It is noted particularly that certain indications of revival now are manifest in improvement in the wool manufacturing industry and better demand for wearing apparel.

When Pickup Comes.

"How to enlarge from this depression is to be accomplished and when," the survey says. "Two years have passed since the boom and in that period of time one gives a lot of wear to his equipment. The pickup comes when the manufacturer without support, the retailer with low stocks of goods and the consumer, having put off replacing his worn out effects as long as possible, beginning to buy.

"This forces the retailer, who has let the stocks to supply the consumer, to place orders with the manufacturer. And the latter, having no stocks of goods on which to draw and no great supplies of raw materials, must set things rolling by calling his workers back to their jobs and by ordering the necessary supplies of raw materials. The workmen who have been out of employment, having their buying power renewed and this generation a new cycle of spending.

"At the same time, when current sales begin to increase, the managers of existing enterprises are encouraged to begin the improvements which perhaps have been planned for several years and the organizers of new business are encouraged to let their contracts. All this adds to the cumulation of forces which make for recovery in values.

Cites Mail Order Sales.

"Chicago is a great merchandising city. But the shelves of retailers have been sold bare and manufacturing plants have long since dumped their distress merchandise. There are evidences that the consumer has been in a position to replace his wornout semi-durables. Sales of the mail order houses are approximately at last year's levels, and department store sales, if allowance is made for the decline in the price level, are not much below 1930 totals. That would indicate that consumers have begun to make replacements.

"That retail stores under the impetus of larger consumer buying have begun to purchase is indicated in some further facts. The leading clothing manufacturers of Chicago are somewhat late in beginning the manufacture of fall lines, due to hesitancy of retailers in placing orders. But orders in good volume finally did start to come along, for leading clothing manufacturers now have more employes at work than at this time a year ago. Similar reports of intensive activity have come from other clothing centers. To similar effect are reports on shoe production. During May output of shoes, which means that orders have been placed for them, was 32 per cent larger than in the same month last year.

Silk Consumption Rises.

"Other reports indicate that orders with manufacturers are receiving have resulted in increased demands for raw materials. The consumption of silks by mills during the last three months has been 14.9 per cent larger than in 1930 and the consumption of wool has been larger by 31.6 per cent. These are concrete facts reflecting increased demand on the part of consumers. And such expansion in demand for semi-durable consumer goods is the essence of business revival. We are convinced that the fundamentals for domestic recovery are now at work."

It is noteworthy that the wool manufacturing industry, beginning last February, has used more wool in every month this year than in the same month last year, while such consumption in May and June also exceeded the same months in 1929.

Chicago Ry. Equipment Co. Starts Work on Big Order

The Chicago Railway Equipment company, a division of the Franklin Steel works, has started work on 10,000 steel brake beams for the Erie Railroad company, the largest order for Franklin, Pa., plant has received in three years. The contract will provide three months work for one mill.

Says Rail Rates Injure Great Lakes' Usefulness

BY SCRUTATOR.

Glancing at a map of North America the average person would decide immediately that almost any location in the basin of the great lakes provides splendid opportunities for industrial development because of the water transportation available.

The cost of carrying goods in boats on the lakes is only a fraction of carrying such goods by rail, but this means little to the shipper or consignee unless these lower costs are reflected in the rates paid.

Before the Panama Canal act was passed the railroads owned boat lines on the lakes. Successive advances in the lake-and-rail rates brought them up to a level almost as high as the all-rail rates. Shippers, consequently, had no incentive to ship by water.

Difficulty Arises.

"These boat lines under the control of the petitioning railroads have been first a sword and then a shield," said the interstate commerce commission.

Divesting the railroads of their boat line subsidiaries returned port to port business to a competitive basis, but beyond the fringes of the lakes difficulty arose.

Traffic between a lake port and a city not immediately on a lake or between two points near but not on the shore line involves a combined lake-and-rail haul.

At present the difference in the rates charged for lake-and-rail and for all-rail hauls between New York and Chicago, for example, is so small on the important classifications that it scarcely equalizes the services. Separate contracts can not be made with the rail and water carriers. The railways actually tell the boat lines what they must charge for their part of the service.

Different Sets of Rates.

Another obstacle to economical use of water transportation is imposed by the railroads by charging one set of switching rates for traffic originating on railroads and another for traffic from the boats.

An example: A terminal company has a distributing warehouse for commodities arriving by rail and water. On one side is an inlet from the lake, on the other are railroad sidings.

If a manufacturer wishes to bring in a dozen carloads of a certain commodity by rail and reship the contents to various points within the Chicago switching district he can do so at switching rates.

Neutralizes Economy.

If he chooses to ship in the same commodity by boat and reship it to points in the Chicago industrial area by car, he must pay Illinois road haul mileage rates to the railway. This, of course, goes a long way toward neutralizing the economy of water transportation.

In the Chicago switching case this discriminatory feature was placed before the interstate commerce commission by witnesses supplied by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

"The ex-lake switching rates range from 60 to 100 per cent higher than the rates on corresponding ex-rail traffic," said the commission's report. "The proposed rates range from 43 to 100 per cent higher.

"The Chicago Association of Commerce urged that all restrictions be removed from ex-lake traffic and that it be accorded the same level of rates as ex-rail traffic. The testimony in this respect was limited and entirely lacking in comparisons of ex-lake and ex-rail traffic as to trasportation characteristics, and affords no basis for a definite finding."

Based on Cost Study.

The commission's decision was based on a cost study presented by the railways, which undertook to alienate the expense of switching every car on certain railways within a given period.

On the basis of that cost study the commission ordered certain advances, which it is now assumed will fully compensate the carriers for the service performed.

If that is true of ex-rail traffic it is also true of ex-lake traffic. One would naturally think that the commission in the absence of testimony to the contrary would decide that industrial switching was industrial switching whether the goods were manufactured here or elsewhere or whether they were brought to Chicago by rail or boat.

Under present arrangements the usefulness of the great lakes is being destroyed by railway rate structures.

RAILWAY ISSUES AT RECORD LOW LEVELS IN N. Y. BOND MARKET

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The bond market declined irregularly today, although it had a tendency to advance in the early trading.

A long list of railroad bonds, which were the most active of the domestic issues, reached new low record prices and a still greater number closed lower for the day. Among the former group were: Boston and Maine 5s of 1967, Baltimore and Ohio 4½s of 1960, New York Central new 4½s of 2013, Erie series B 4s of 1953, Great Northern series D 4½s, and Southern general 4s.

Foreign obligations were highly irregular. Many of the sharpest fluctuations occurred in this group. Argentine and Chilean loans were both active. The former eased off, but the latter gained ground. German and Brazilian loans provided a large turnover, but the net changes among them were about equally divided between gains and declines.

Public utility and industrial loans were less active than either the rail or foreign obligations and the downward trend among them was less marked. Columbia Gas and Electric 5s of January, 1961; Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s, the new Delaware Power and Light 4½s of 1971, Detroit Edison collateral 5s, International Telephone 4½s of 1939, and New England Telephone 4½s of 1961 were among the public utility issues to close lower.

Net Income of 335 Concerns for Six Mos. Is $329,095,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—Aggregate net income for the first six months of 1931 reported by 335 typical industrial companies amounts to $329,095,000, a 43 per cent decline from the $631,732,000 recorded by those same companies in the corresponding period of 1930, the Standard Statistics company reported today.

"Railroads continue to record highly unsatisfactory comparisons, a decrease of 52 per cent, as compared with the first half of 1930, having been revealed for 24 carriers. Profits of seventeen utilities registered an advance of 3 per cent. However, this small gain is translated into a recession of 8 per cent for 16 utility companies when revenues of American Telephone and Telegraph are excluded from the total.

Food Products Do Well.

"Sufficient reports are now at hand to present a generally accurate description of the experience among the various industrial groups during the first half of 1931. As was to be expected the food products group showed relatively the most stable level of income, with an aggregate decline for 25 companies of but 10 per cent.

"While 21 retail trade units experienced a combined gain of 43 per cent in earnings, this increase was largely due to the very substantial expansion of Kroger grocery. Including the favorable results of General Motors, earnings of automobile manufacturers were only 31 per cent below those of a year ago. Excluding the stabilizing influence of this company, the remaining fourteen companies so far reporting realized a level of income 59 per cent lower than that in the 1930 interval.

Less Than Average Declines.

"The decline in chemical earnings for sixteen companies was less than the average for general industry and amounted to 27 per cent. Both the theater and tobacco groups, while not entirely representative as yet, give evidence of a less than average decline.

"Among those groups which showed about an average decline are automobile parts, building and electrical equipment. The machinery, railroad equipment, oil and steel industries experienced income declines of 50 per cent or more."

Ludlum Steel Reports.

Net earnings of the Ludlum Steel company for the June quarter aggregated $7,130 after charges and taxes, it was announced today. This was equal to 14 cents a share on the 50,000 shares of $4.50 preferred stock, on which no dividends are being paid. In the same period last year the company suffered a net loss of $45,579.

Operations for the first six months resulted in net profit of $23,433 after charges and taxes, equal to 46 cents a share on the preferred stock, against net loss of $95,422 in the first half last year.

Equals $2 a Share.

Net income of the Duplan Silk corporation for the year ended May 31 amounted to $71,299 after interest and taxes, equal to $2 a share on 35,591 shares of $3 cumulative preferred stock, against $1,243,945 in the preceding fiscal year, equal after preferred dividends to $2.55 a share on 350,000 common shares.

Report of the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel corporation and subsidiaries for the first half of 1931 showed net profit of $623,763 after all charges, equal after preferred dividends to 68 cents a share on 749,454 common shares, compared with $1,803,238 or $2.24 a share last year.

A net loss of $192,923 after charges was announced by the Detroit Steel Products company, compared with net loss of $145,339 in the first half of 1930.

SEARS-ROEBUCK 4 WEEKS' SALES ARE $23,769,479

Tonnage sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago mail order and chain store concern, continue to run higher than a year ago, although dollar sales are moderately lower as the result of declining commodity prices.

Sales for the four weeks ended Aug. 12, which was the eighth period of the company's thirteen-month year, totaled $23,769,479, compared with $24,344,275 for the same period last year, a decline of $1,574,796, or 6.3 per cent. Sales for the present year have totaled $208,476,686, compared with $223,607,283 last year, a decline of $15,130,597, or 6.8 per cent.

The company announced yesterday that installation of operating units in its stores of the Kroger Grocery & Baking company will be extended within the next month to stores in Indianapolis, Detroit, St. Louis, Kansas City and Memphis. Units now are operated in Chicago, Minneapolis and Cincinnati.

CHINA ASKS FARM BOARDFORWHEAT ON LONG CREDITS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—With its recent proposal for southern farmers to plow under a third of their cotton acreage rejected by three more governors, the federal farm board today received a new plan for disposal of some of its surplus holdings abroad. The American consul at Nanking, China, asked, on behalf of the Nationalist government, if the farm board would sell its wheat on long term credits for consumption in Chinese flood areas.

Chairman James C. Stone of the farm board would make no comment. It is known, however, that he has studied the possibility of a sale to China and that the obstacles, particularly in the way of extending credit, were found to be very great.

The three governors who replied to the cotton proposal were those of Arkansas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico, the two former definitely turning it down, the latter stating that he had called a conference of the cotton trade for Aug. 29.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Bids for three new ocean mail routes to start Oct. 1 were opened today at the postoffice department. They will run between New York and Baltimore to Rotterdam and Antwerp; Mobile and other gulf ports to English, Irish, Belgian and German ports, and Seattle, Wash., to Colombia, Jamaica, and Mexico. The postoffice department took the bids under advisement.

Find Utility Bonds Bright Feature of Present Market

Noting that gilt edge bonds are still in preference, while bonds of higher yield continue sensitive to events of the moment, Hornblower & Weeks in their August investment review point out that public utility bonds are the bright feature of the present market. Current events are demonstrating with increasing emphasis the factor of stability in earnings which favors public utility operations during depression, the review says. The increasing spread between representative rail and public service issues they interpret as reflecting considerable switching of funds from railroad bonds into public utility bonds, and they expect this movement to continue until railroad earnings have evidenced material improvement.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—Wall street stuck a pin in the bubble of constantly mounting stock prices today, with the result that rapid deflation took place.

A large number of leading issues lost a great part of the gains they laboriously acquired during the last few days under the judicious guidance of "bulls" taking advantage of the recently improved technical position of the market.

Losses ranged from one to five points in a long list of favorites, and some of the more volatile shares were hammered down from six to ten points.

Lends Primary Impulse.

Unfavorable developments in the banking field in the middle west, where four Toledo, O., financial institutions, whose resources aggregated more than $100,000,000, were forced to suspend, lent the primary impulse to today's selling movement. Aided considerably by the market's natural tendency to react after several days of steadily rising prices, and the public's disposition to eye railroad stocks questioningly, the list generally was in poor shape to resist pressure.

From the opening bell most of the leaders were shaky, and outside of a short lived rally in the early afternoon nothing like resistance developed except in the oil group. The oils profited from news that the east Texas field had finally been brought under restraint.

Pivotal Shares Weaken.

Transactions continued on a moderate scale. The turnover amounted to about 1,500,000 shares, with a large part of the stock changing hands during the forenoon.

Virtually all the old line pivotals were depressed two points or more today. United States Steel set the fashion, as usual, with a drop of 3½ points, but American Can, Westinghouse, American Telephone, Bethlehem Steel, General Electric, Radio corporations, and other favorites dropped as much or more ground.

Auburn suffered the most severe decline, selling off ten points. Among the railroads Santa Fe lost 4, Union Pacific 5, New York Central 3½, New Haven 2¾, Southern Pacific 2½ and Baltimore and Ohio 2½.

Chemicals Under Pressure.

The chemical shares were under pressure most of the time also, and did not give a very satisfactory performance. Allied Chemical dropped 5 points after news came out that the Chilean nitrate combine had decided to cut prices following failure to reach an agreement with the manufacturers of synthetic nitrate.

The Toledo bank failures appeared

FREIGHT TRAFFIC AT LOWEST LEVEL SINCE YEAR 1922

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—Freight traffic on the railroads dropped in the first six months of 1931 to the lowest level reached in that period since 1922, the year o the shopmen's strike, it is shown in figures issued by the bureau of railway economics. Freight moved in the 1931 period totaled 174,328,000,000 net ton miles against 170,214,000,000 in the same period in 1922. The 1931 figure was 17.9 per cent below the corresponding 1930 period and 26.9 per cent below the corresponding 1929 period.

Freight ton miles moved in all 1930 were 383,787,000,000 against 447,321,000,000 in 1929, the latter a record high figure.

Eastern railroads reported a reduction of 18.1 per cent in freight in the six months compared with the same period last year. Southern roads reported an 11 per cent decrease and western roads a 17.5 per cent decrease.

M-K-T RAILWAY ANNOUNCES CUT IN ALL SALARIES

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A general reduction in salaries of officers and unorganized employes of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas lines, effective Aug. 15, was announced today by President M. H. Cahill, who said the action was necessary because of the general business depression, reflected in decreased car loadings and diminishing revenues.

Officers and supervisors earning more than $5,000 a year have taken cuts ranging up to 20 per cent, while those earning less than $5,000 have been cut 10 per cent. The new policy does not affect workers whose wages are covered by agreements with organizations of which they are members, nor organized clerks and others who for several months have worked five days a week and received pay on a 5 day week basis. It was announced that "the new salary rates are not permanent and that former levels are to be restored whenever conditions warrant."

Land Bank Men Examine Mortgages in Porto Rico

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Irving P. Whitehead, general counsel to the Federal Land bank of Baltimore, Charles Jackson, secretary of the bank, and George P. Alderson, a director, arrived today to examine the situation regarding the bank's mortgages on farm property here.

Mr. Jackson expressed a belief that the difficulties in collections which have caused some complaint by mortgagees can be adjusted. Local newspapers have reported evictions from farms on which mortgages were foreclosed and charged the bank's policies were causing suffering among the farmers.

Three Western Railroads Report Weekly Loadings

The Atchison during the week ended Aug. 15 handled 32,758 revenue freight cars, compared with 30,836 in the preceding week and 36,256 in the corresponding week of last year.

Total loadings by the Milwaukee road during the week ended Aug. 14 were 30,006, compared with 30,188 in the previous week and 37,515 in the same week of last year.

During the period from Aug. 1 to 14 the North Western handled 59,066 cars of revenue freight. This compares with 53,652 cars in the first two weeks of July and 71,522 cars in the corresponding period of last year.

Two Million Dollars a Day

The electric light and power industry requires more than two million dollars a day of new money from the investor to keep pace with the customer's demands for service. This money buys materials and goods provided by farmers and miners, factory workers and men of the building trades. Americans who work or want to work have a stake in the good credit of the electric light and power industry.

MIDDLE WEST UTILITIES COMPANY

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES WILT UNDER SELLING

Leading Issues Share in General Weakness.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Last week's aggressive bull leadership was absent when roll call was sounded yesterday in the stock market. Temporarily lacking effective sponsorship, the recent speculative favorites on the Chicago exchange were forced back under the moderate selling fire which came from professional sources.

In the absence of any convincing news to bolster the hopes of a fall trade revival the Toledo bank failures were exploited by traders looking for profits on the short side of the market. The blowoff in Toledo did not come as as a surprise to financial community and it was felt that the stock market took the development with as much equanimity as could be expected.

The net losses here amounted to a point or so among the active shares. Bendix, U. S. Radio, Insull Utility, and other leaders shared the weakness.

Elect Grigsby Directors.

At the annual stockholders' meeting of the Grigsby-Grunow company yesterday Don M. Compton and Sheldon Clark, vice president of Sinclair Consolidated Oil company, were elected to the board of directors. Mr. Compton has been vice president and general manager of the radio company for about a year. The elections fill the positions left vacant by the resignations of William C. Grunow, former president, and Arthur Winans.

Marshall E. Sampsell, president of Associated Telephone Utilities company, announced yesterday that gross earnings of the company, including profit of subsidiaries from the dates of acquisition, amounted to $4,382,000 for the June quarter as compared with $2,944,000 in the second quarter of 1930. Consolidated net earnings totaled $2,044,000, against $1,786,000 last year. Net after all charges but before depreciation was $710,765, against $685,122.

Reports Small Gain.

National Battery company yesterday reported net earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30 of $488,827 which is a gain of $8,461 over the preceding year. L. J. Shields, president, told stockholders at the meeting in St. a surprise to the financial community ings resulted from an aggressive advertising and merchandising program and the effecting of production economies.

Mr. Shields told stockholders that two contracts involving more than $26,000,000 have been closed by the company. One of the contracts, with Montgomery, Ward & Co., was renewed for a five year period and the second was closed with the Western Auto Supply company for a four year term. The contracts, Mr. Shields said, cover all of the requirements of the purchasing companies for the length of the contracts.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Cotton goods sold moderately today, with prices easy. Viscose rayon was selling steadily, and several southern mills were engaged ahead on rayon goods more freely than last year. Wool dress goods were in moderate demand. Silk goods were in better call for the day from the cutting trades. Burlaps were steady.

BULLISH NEWS FAILS TO HELP WHEAT PRICES

...quidation Forces Corn Market Lower.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bullish influences fell flat as a market influence in wheat yesterday. A fractional advance at the opening was the result of scattered buying on further reports that Russia would discontinue rationing wheat and rye early in 1932, and the world's trade was almost a unit in expressing the belief this would result in a material contraction in Russian exports. The advance brought in aggressive commission house selling, and scattered liquidation developed in the September. Prices dropped 1¼@1⅝c from the early high, the weakness in the stock market having some influence at times and the finish was ⅝@⅞c lower, with September leading. The latter closed at 49⅛@49¼c; December, 49@51¼c; and May, 57⅝@57⅞c.

There was more or less spreading either way between the various deliveries. September wheat went to 1¾c under December at the last against 1¼c at the finish on Saturday. Winnipeg was higher early and closed ⅛@¼c lower, with October 1c at the last, while Liverpool closed ¼d for the day, with October 6.47½c.

China After Wheat.

Continued rains in Europe is relieving fears of a wet harvest and are the main influence in the Liverpool wheat market along with the Asian news. Reports that the Chinese government was inquiring of the American government what credit terms would be available for the purchase of some of the grain held by the stabilization corporation was received late in the day to be a market factor. There was some improvement in the European demand for North American grain, however, with sales of 960,000 bu reported in all positions, including hard winter and Manitobas.

Increased country loadings of winter wheat were reported in parts of the southwest, indicating a weakening in the holding tendency on the part of farmers, and this was reflected in an easing in the cash basis here and at Kansas City and Omaha. Owing to the fact that there have been no recent official reports of spring wheat seeding cut for hay or feed in the northwest the trade is somewhat inclined to wait for the next official estimate as the yield to show below the 118,000,000 bu indicated on Aug. 1, which would make the crop the smallest since 1926 when winter and spring wheat were first estimated separately. In 1931 the spring wheat crop was 97,000,000 bu.

An estimate of world's import requirements of 750,000,000 bu wheat for the 1931-32 season was received during the day from a leading English house, or somewhat above the total recently given out by Broomhall, of about 40,000,000 bu less than was actually taken in 1931-32. Foreign government milling regulations were lauded as against a normal business condition of the theoretical needs based on supply and demand figures.

Despite visible supply of wheat continues to accumulate, there being a gain of 1,004,000 bu the last week, and the total is now 223,949,000 bu, a new record, compared with 175,020,000 bu last year.

September Corn Weakens.

Liquidation was on in September corn early with a decline of 1¼c from Monday's finish to 45@45⅛c, a new low for the season, and at one time it was only 5⅛c over the December. Longs who had been selling September and buying December on the theory that the nearby future would decline sharply, started to close their spreads with the result that the September rallied ⅝c from the low point and not only ¼c on the December for the day. Net losses were ⅛@⅜c with September, 45⅛c; December, 39⅝@39¾c, and May, 41⅝@44c, the December coming within ¼c of the low figure of the season at the inside price.

A renewal of drought talk from parts of the corn belt had little effect on the market, as the trade has a feeling that barring unusual developments between now and the end of the month the September government estimate may show a larger yield than the 2,370,000,000 bu indicated on Aug. 1. Country offerings to arrive were light, but the shipping demand was slow and the basis in the sample market easier. A decrease of 287,000 bu in the visible supply brought the total down to 8,667,000 bu, against 2,-49,000 bu last year.

Oats were firm early, but weakened later and closed ⅜@½c lower, with September 21⅝c, or within ¼c of the largest figure of the season. December was 23⅝@23½c, and May, 31¾c at the last. Reports of a severe shortage in supplies of feed grains of all kinds in parts of the southwest had little effect. Rye closed ½c lower in sympathy with wheat, September being 23⅝c; December, 27½c, and May, 41½c.

to have a direct effect upon the stock of Electric Auto Lite company. Selling was especially heavy in this issue early, apparently upon the theory that it might have had its funds tied up in one or more of the defunct institutions. Later, however, it was said the company's banking connections were satisfactory.

Taken As Ill Omen.

Action of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad in reducing salaries from ten to twenty per cent was taken as another ill omen by those who hold carrier securities. The preferred A stock of the road is still paying dividends, but with the present yield about nineteen per cent. A change in payments is naturally looked for.

The situation among the rails admittedly is far from promising, with the farmers and the steel industry and others offering continuous and serious opposition to the proposed fifteen per cent rate increase. Inland Steel producers today voiced their complaint before the interstate commerce commission.

Although the market was in the dumps generally, experienced observers were inclined to believe that the recovery will be resumed. Even today there were signs that pool operators on the constructive side are not all timid. The gold stock, Alaska Juneau, was pushed into slightly higher ground on a large turnover.

Rye Norman's Visit.

Wall street was inclined to point out that those interested in depressing prices were not extremely aggressive in their selling efforts even though they had the psychological advantage of adverse banking news from Toledo. Big names are being connected with the upward movement in stocks just at present, and a move is looked for in the near future since brokers are weary of shrinking sales volume.

The visit to Canada of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, has begun to excite comment in financial circles here. Although Mr. Norman is ostensibly on a holiday, it is reported that he will confer with heads of our federal reserve system regarding matters of policy.

With England in its present nonetoo-good financial situation, Wall street naturally is exercising its prerogative of gossiping—but as yet there is no news.

COTTON RANGE LOWER; LOSES $1.00 PER BALE

Cotton trading was without particular animation today. Liverpool was lower and led to selling of American cotton. Rains were reported over a good part of the belt during the week-end and the weather is comparatively favorable for support. December in Chicago dropped to 7.22c, from which there was a little rally on short covering and the close was at losses of 18@22 points. New Orleans, and Chicago, 23@25 points in New York. Spots in New Orleans broke 25 points to 6.70c. New York was 20 points lower at 6.32c, while Galveston and Houston were 6.73c. Liverpool closed 7 points net lower, with sales of spots 4,000 bales, including 2,000 bales American.

The cotton movement from Aug. 7 to Aug. 14 was 37,000 bales, against 160,585 bales last year. World's available supply was 4,585,630 bales, against 2,895,797 bales. Exports for the week ended Aug. 14 were 28,160 bales, compared with 45,350 bales the same time last year. Traders as a whole see nothing of particular interest in the market at present. NEW HIGH ON BUTTER

November butter gained further headway due to additional bullish developments on Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, striking another new high for the season at 19¾c, 2½c above the previous record of 17¼c, 2¾c above the close Saturday and 2½c over the close Monday. November eggs compared to Friday's close, 1½c higher. Potatoes were firm, were weak, and 5c to 10c higher. The continued advance in butter is a result of a steady flow of bullish storage and production news. Last week's storage reports showed well over 1,000,000 lbs more out of storage than had been expected from the four markets showed an additional 121,000 lbs more out. New York reports appeared from many sources and the market continues firm. Egg news on the other hand was bearish, considerably less eggs were moved last week than last year and the daily report showing 7,700 cases less coming in picked up, sending the market off ½c, but recovered at the close brought in a slight covering at the close and a partial recovery. The total trading of 315 cars in the three commodities was the heaviest trading day since May 15. Sales: Butter, 2,783,200 lbs.; eggs, 1,180,000 doz.; potatoes, 868,000 lbs. Prices follow:

LARD LOSES EARLY GAIN

Lard met good buying early yesterday with packers doing the selling. Hogs were higher and offerings of product were well absorbed. The late weakness in the grain stocks led to a recession in the quotations and prices declined and closed 2½@2c net lower. Bellies were 5½c lower to unchanged, with trading well. Liverpool said was 1s 3d to 1s 6d higher and helped the market here for a time. Exports of lard for the week were 7,810,000 lbs., against 8,444,000 lbs last year. Of bacon they were 2,437,000 lbs, against 2,641,000 lbs last year. Hog receipts at western points were larger than a week and a year ago. James Poole, a stockyards specialist, after a trip of 800 miles in northern Illinois and northwestern Iowa, says he found swarms of pigs everywhere and no disease of consequence, hogs being in as healthy a condition as any other season. Marketing interests, he says, centers on September and October prices. Prices follow:

Top yesterday, $9.25; average, $6.40.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 7,000; hogs, 18,000; sheep, 11,000.

Western range territory moved cattle and sheep to market in volume yesterday and packers tightened up considerable on "sorts." Quality counted more than usual and only highly finished offerings got a great deal of action. Stock came from Washington, Idaho, Montana, and the Dakotas.

About 65 per cent of yesterday's sheep receipts, or about 19,500 head, came from the range. Although the west is reported to have a record supply of lambs, the movement to date is behind 1930 and 1929. The 1,000 range cattle here yesterday was the largest supply of the season and traders look for a steady flow of stock from the range from now on.

The same determination to discount poorer grades of meat animals was recognized in the hog market also yesterday. Strong to higher prices were paid for stock showing evidence of having had plenty of grain, while others ruled weak to 25c lower. The extreme top price advanced 10c, at $7.75, highest since last Tuesday, while the general average declined 10c, at $6.15, the two prices showing a spread of $1.60.

A year ago the two prices were $1.05 apart, and two years ago showed a spread of $1.25. Order buyers were eager for choice grades of lightweight stock and found it difficult to fill orders, due to the acute scarcity of stock averaging 150@220 lbs, suitable for eastern trade.

Outsiders so far this month have purchased 26 per cent of the Chicago receipts, against 18 per cent during the same period in 1930. Supplies have been running exceptionally small for some time. Yesterday's arrivals, at 23,000, were smallest for Monday since December, 1926. The seven leading markets during the first half of August handled 635,000 hogs, against 736,000 a year ago. The total was 15 per cent smaller than the three year average of corresponding weeks.

December Offers Back to $6.

Offers on the hog futures market were lowered 10@25c yesterday. December mediums were offered at $6.00 and heavy grades for the same month were offered at $6.10. September light were offered at $7.75, mediums at $8.00, and heavy grades at $7.50. The latter carried bids of $6.50. Light weights for today's delivery were bid $7.50, but there were no offers to sell at that figure in view of the lighter supply in sight at the leading markets. Five western markets expect only 42,500 today, against 54,400 last Tuesday.

Three states, Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa, had $10.00 yearling steers on the market yesterday. There were 125 head at the price, averaging in weight from 879 lbs to 1,072 lbs, the latter being the heaviest at the price since the top quotations reached the $10.00 line. Numerous sales were made at $9.90, and $9.25@$9.50 were common prices for well finished beef steers.

Choice 1,383 lb steers reached $9.75 and some 1,600 lb cattle were sold at $9.50. At the low time in May heavy cattle of similar quality and weight were slow sellers at $6.75@7.00. Butcher stock held firm and some sales of baby beef heifers showed strength. The latter reached a new top of $9.85 when thirty-two, averaging 694 lbs, sold at that figure. Best calves were steady, while others slumped 50c. Demand for stockers and feeders improved again, and some sales were 15@25c higher yesterday. A shipment of 1,073 lb fleshy western steers sold to a feeder dealer at $7.25.

Lambs Slump Sharply.

Only a scattering of "hand picked" lambs were eligible to $8.00@8.25 on yesterday's session, while bulk of medium to good grades went for local slaughter under severe "sorts" at $6.50@7.00. The latter kinds in some instances were $1.00@2.00 lower, considering quality and sorting, while top quotations were pulled down 50@75c in sympathy with the big break in bulk of offerings. Culls were subjected to sorting at $4.00, with inferior grades of thin lightweights downwards to $3.00.

Aged and yearling sheep ruled weak to 50c lower. Old ewes are back to the lowest prices on record, good fat heavy native ewes selling at $1.00@1.50, while only choice handy weights are eligible to $2.00@2.25. A few carrying breeders sold at $3.00. Feeding lambs were slow at $5.00@5.50.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 7,000 cattle, 18,000 hogs, and 11,000 sheep, against 8,072 cattle, 39,388 hogs, and 18,382 sheep the previous Tuesday, and 6,497 cattle, 19,130 hogs, and 18,806 sheep a year ago.
